Ag, Rural Affairs Committee Sets Hearing On Dairy Compact

VERNON ACHENBACH JR.
Lancaster Farming Staff

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The state House Agriculture and Rural Affairs Committee has scheduled a Feb. 23 public hearing at the state Capitol on proposed legislation that would enable Pennsylvania to join the Northeast Interstate Dairy Compact.

The hearing announcement was made this week, and all interested parties are invited to attend. It is to be held from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. in Room 60 of the Capitol East Wing (near the cafeteria).

A tentative list of witnesses was being compiled this week, and early in the week the list included representatives of the state's major agricultural organizations, the Pennsylvania Association of Milk Dealers, the three major dairy cooperatives operating in the state, as well as some people who claim to represent factions of the dairy producer industry.

Those who wish to testify should contact state Rep. Raymond Bunt's Harrisburg office at (717) 787-6937 immediately. Rep. Bunt is the majority chairman of the House Agriculture and Rural Affairs Committee.

In effect since 1997, the Northeast Interstate Dairy Compact was initially authorized by the U.S. Congress as a temporary means to prevent the loss of family and small-sized dairy farms in the New England states, because of the effects of transitioning away from federal support pricing.

Sen. Patrick Leahy, of Vermont, was the major proponent of establishing the Compact for his home state. Vermont (along with the other New England states) has a climatic and feed production disadvantage compared to the nearby traditionally strong dairy states of New York and Pennsylvania.

With transportation costs now minimalized because of better highways and inexpensive fuels, the loss of federal government price supports for those New England states would have left dairy producers there vunerable to being

Wayne Stough Saluted For York Beef Leadership

JOYCE BUPP
York Co. Correspondent

SEVEN VALLEYS (York Co.) — One of York County's best known breeders of Simmental cattle found himself in the spotlight when the county's 4-H Beef Club saluted Wayne Stough as its 1999 Citation Winner.

Stough's name is the latest to be added to a list of annual honorees in a York County's 4-H Beef Club tradition that began in the late 1950s. His recognition came as the highlight of the club's annual awards banquet, held at the Seven Valleys Fire company Hall.

The Spring Grove cattleman is a 31-year leader of York County's 4-H beef program, after growing up in the program himself as a member. Following military service after graduation from Spring Grove High School, Stough worked for a period of time as a herdsman and manager in beef and swine operations. For the past 20-plus years, he has been employed by the P.H. Glatfelter Paper Company.

Stough, his wife Brenda, and their three sons and a daughter have bred and raised beef cattle for many years. They are active in the Simmental Association, where Wayne serves on the state board of directors as well as working with various senior and junior programs. He was instrumental in helping to establish the Pennsylvania State Simmental Field Days and continues to assist with its planning and operation.

In addition to his long tenure of leadership activities with the 4-H Beef Club, Stough is active in his family's church, the Paper Union and the advisory committee of the Spring Grove schools. He has served on both the North Codorus Township and York County Planning Commissions and volunteers as a fire police officer for the township.

CATTLE: Compared to last week's closing prices, slaughter steers closed weak to .50 lower. This week's steer offering was the largest in several months and a large portion of the local barns are said to be full of market-ready cattle. At the same time, most analysts are expecting a tightening of fat cattle supplies in the major feeding areas through the early Spring months. Western direct trade broke loose on Wednesday at mostly 63.00 live and 98.00-99.00 dressed, after waiting until late Friday to trade last week's showlists. Local Holstein steers ended the week .50-1.00 lower, after last week's advances, and slaughter heifers were not well tested. Slaughter cows and bulls sold steady. Supply was made up of around 39 percent slaughter steers, 5 percent slaughter heifers, 39 percent slaughter cows, 4 percent bulls, with the balance made up of feeder cattle.

SLAUGHTER STEERS: High Choice and Prime 2-4 1115-1460 lbs 62.75-67.00, few ideal up to 74.50. Choice 2-3 1085-1485 lbs 60.50-63.50, few high dressing 1-2 up to 71.75. Select and low Choice 2-3 1005-1480 lbs 56.25-61.25; 1500- 1570 lbs 53.75-58.75. Select 1-3 900-1355 lbs 53.00-57.75.

ATLANTA, GA.
FEBRUARY 17, 1999

DELMARVA BROILER/FRYER MARKET. FEDERAL-STATE

Movement of ready-to-cook whole birds was generally no better than fair and was often limited to standing committments. Seller offerings varied from plant to plant, but were fully adequate to ample on the 2.5 and 3 pound sizes. Heavier weights were adequate to closely cleared. Live supplies were mostly moderate; weights were light to heavy, mostly desirable to light. Processing schedules were moderate to moderately heavy. Less than trucklot asking prices were unchanged at 52 to 66 cents. In the parts market, wings were in heaviest supply, bone-in breasts in closest balance. Other cuts were fully adequate to ample.

ATLANTA, GA.

EASTERN REGION FROZEN EGGS, FEBRUARY 12, 1999. FEDERAL-STATE

All prices were unchanged. Trade sentiment was about steady. Demand was light. Supplies were at least adequate. Liquid and frozen eggs (ingredients included) processed under federal inspection in the Eastern region for the week ending February 6, 1999 were 4% less than last week, and 12% less than the same week last year. Shell egg supplies were adequate.

NORTHEAST BROILER/FRYER PARTS - PART I FEDERAL-STATE

Trucklot buying activity was spotty with dealers cautious and usually limiting purchases to immediate needs. Offerings were irregularly available with whole breasts generally in the strongest position, but not attracting much interest. Retail and distributive movement seems best on seafood items with other meat items currently taking a back seat. The market tone was about steady.

PRICES PAID PER POUND, ICE PACKED AND CO2 PACKED BROILER/FRYER PARTS, DELIVERED TO FIRST RECEIVERS IN POOL TRUCKLOT AND TRUCKLOT QUANTITIES.

National Grain Market

St. Joseph, MO
Wed Feb 17, 1999
USDA-MO Dept Ag Market News

DAILY NATIONAL GRAIN SUMMARY

Wheat bids were mixed, lower due to ideal growing weather continues in the hard red winter wheat areas and indications the export market is oversupplied. However, recent substantial export orders offered some strength to wheat bids. Corn bids were slightly higher. Soybean bids fell slightly lower on lack of export sales, some farmer selling re- ported, and good crops in South America moving into the supply channels. Wheat mixed, 2 cents lower to 4 cents higher. Corn steady to 2 cents higher. Sorghum 1 cent lower. Soybeans 1 to 4 cents lower.

The OLD FARMER'S THIS WEEK WITH ALMANAC

BIRTHDAY OF THE TOOTHBRUSH

February 24 marks the birthday of the nylon-bristled toothbrush, as marketed by DuPont, on this day in 1938. And what did we do before then, you wonder? Well, there were sage branches and boar's bristles and other fine inventions of necessity. The invention of the first toothbrush is credited to an Englishman, William Addis, who was incarcerated for creating a riot around 1770 With nothing but time on his hands, he bored holes into a meat bone and glued tufts of natural bristles into them. Before that, tooth care was accomplished with a wet rag. (George Washington added chalk to his rag, as recommended by his dentist)

Be true to your teeth or your teeth will be false to you.

TIP OF THE WEEK

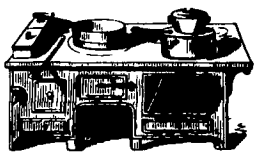
SQUASH CASSEROLE

1 cup sugar
1 cup flour
1/4 teaspoon nutmeg
1/4 teaspoon cinnamon
1/2 teaspoon salt
20 ounces frozen or cooked winter squash
3-1/4 cups milk
1/2 cup (1 stick) butter, melted
6 eggs, beaten

Combine dry ingredients in a bowl, then stir in squash Add milk, butter, and eggs. Mix well, then pour into a well-greased 13x9-inch glass baking dish Refrigerate for at least 2 hours before baking, then bake at 325° F for 1 hour

Makes 6 to 8 servings.



The OLD FARMER'S WEATHER PROVERBS

If cold at St. Peter's Day (Feb. 22), it will last longer.

If February give much snow, a fine summer it doth foreshow.

Thunder in February or March, poor sugar (maple) year.

Fog in February means frosts in May.

FFA

THE FFA THEME — MAKING THE CONNECTION

The future is only a tomorrow away, and we need leaders to meet the challenges rapidly transforming our world Grown from the strong roots of American agriculture, an organization is preparing today's students with the knowl edge and skills to provide this leadership These are the young men and women of the FFA

In schools across the nation, agricultural education and the FFA are connecting students to their communities Their contributions are valued by government and businesses that recognize the importance of investing well By working with community leaders, members embrace their civic duty and become active citizens

Becoming a leader takes strong personal commitment Members make the connection between education, hard work and a strong entrepreneurial spirit FFA programs and activities reveal that education is more than homework and classes, and include competitive events that provide recognition for members who want to test their talents and strengthen their skills

America leads the world in agricultural production and technology The global market is full of opportunity FFA con nects members to the limitless possibilities by equipping them with a larger understanding of the world around them FFA has made a commitment to provide a stepping stone to the diverse and exciting careers awaiting our members

The spirit of "the blue and gold" reaches out in all directions FFA members stretch across the nation from the smallest of towns to the largest of cities, yet they are still connected Through agricultural education and FFA, all are developing their potential for premier leadership, personal growth and career success They are truly "Making the Connection"

Now Is The Time

By John Schwartz

Lancaster County Agricultural Agent

To Think Safety

Farming has the undesirable distinction of being the most hazardous occupation in the United States, reports Leon Ressler, Lancaster County Extension Agricultural Environment Agent. Now is a good time to review your equipment and regular routines to spot safety lapses.

Do not wait until tragedy strikes! Take the time now to replace any missing guards on PTO shafts or covers on augers. Check all fire extinguishers on the farm to make sure they are in working order. If you do not have any, purchase several for important locations on the farm.

Remove any piles of flammable trash that may have accumulated. Make sure all crop protection chemicals are stored away from food and feed and kept under lock and key at all times. Any hazardous sanitizing products should be stored out of reach of children.

To Make Tractors Safe

Rollovers and runovers account for a majority of fatalities on farms each year, according to Leon Ressler, Lancaster County Extension Agricultural Environment Agent. With this in mind, now is a good time to install ROPS devices on any tractors lacking them.

When operating a tractor make sure you always wear the seat belt. Also, decide now to adopt a firm policy of no riders on any tractor at any time. Check to make sure your lights are working on all tractors. Make sure all implements and tractors have an orange triangular slow moving vehicle sign easily seen by anyone overtaking the equipment.

To Protect Your Hearing

Power equipment may be responsible for reducing the hearing of many farmers and their family members. Agricultural workers are definitely at risk, many at high risk for noise exposure, according to Dr. Chris Eicher, Ohio State Agricultural Engineer. He believes that ear plugs should be part of the dress of every person operating equipment.

Normal speech is in the range of 50 to 60 decibels. The threshold for pain is 140 decibels. Most farm tractors without a soundproof cab emit noise at 100 to 110 decibels. Soundproof cabs reduce the level to 85 to 90 decibels O.S.H.A. recommendations limit exposure to 90 decibels for an eight hour work day.

Hearing loss is related not only to the decibel level of the sound but also to the pitch and length of time a person is exposed to it. Farmers should wear hearing protection at all times when operating equipment because there will be times the noise level will exceed what is safe for the ear to hear.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

RECONCILED and RECONCILING
February 21, 1999

Background Scripture:
II Corinthians 5:11-21
Devotional Reading
I Peter 2:18-25

I have been reading — "plowing my way through" would be a more apt description — a little 177-page paperback book by the Nobel Prize-winning physicist, Steven Weinberg. It is entitled The First Three Minutes: A Modern View of the Origin of the Universe. It is essentially a reconstruction of the first three minutes of the creation. For me, it is fascinating but very tough going; there's so much that I do not understand. I'm only up to the first 1.09 seconds after the "Big Bang."

This book is helping me to apprehend, if not comprehend, the sheer enormity and wonder of God's creation (that's me speaking, not Weinberg). Once again I have been made to realize that my God is too small — my concept of God, that is. This glimpse of God the Creator, has staggered my imagination and the suggestion that all this is the product of mere chance and not design (and a Designer) is utterly unthinkable.

GOD IN A TREE

Yet, regardless of how much and how often I find the Creator revealed in his creation, I am frequently reminded that nature speaks only of the majestic power and design of God. Commenting upon this passage, the late Halford E. Luccock quotes Randall Stewart's observation that "The romantic poet is forever running the risk of mistaking God for a tree," and then adds, "In Paul there was no risk of 'mistaking God for a tree.' God was in Christ." Nature may have spoken to Paul of God, but Christ spoke to him more deeply and more fully.

The great mystery, the sublime reality is not only that God makes a tree, but that in Jesus of Nazareth he was "reconciling the world to himself." Magnificent as is the sheer creation of the cosmos, without the love made manifest in Christ the universe would be nothing but an inhospitable, impersonal, even hostile penitentiary for the human race. So, even more important than the God who creates this unimaginable universe is the God who loves his creatures so much that he becomes incarnate in the man Jesus to effect our reconciliation with him.

Somewhere I read that philosopher Henry Thoreau was once asked by his mother whether he had made his peace with God and he replied, "Made my peace? I didn't know we were at war!" It is an amusing answer but it glibly glosses over a persistent fact: all of us at times, maybe all the time, in some way or ways, whether we are aware or not, are "at war" with God. No matter how close we may feel in our relationship with God, we all violate or adulterate that relationship from time to time. Even the best of his children must disappoint the Father.

UNLESS, GOD. . .

So reconciliation with God is our greatest need, but it's too big a job for us to be able to achieve it — unless God takes the initiative. And that is what Paul is saying: "God was in Christ reconciling the world to himself." There is no better nor briefer statement of the gospel in a nutshell than that.

Neither is there a more concise and yet comprehensive statement of the gospel's meaning for each of us personally: "So we are ambassadors for Christ, God making his appeal through us" (5:20). If we are to be reconciled with God we must in turn take up his ministry of reconciliation. We don't have to preach sermons, teach lessons or stand on street corners to make public witness. Actually, we don't have to say much of anything so long as we let God be in us reconciling others to himself and to each other.

Wherever we are or go in the world we can be ambassadors for Christ, working for reconciliation in a broken, divided world. We do not have to bring nations together or personally reconcile the races and ethnic groups. But we can help people to be reconciled through the love of God in Christ that shines through us.

Producer Uses More Bt Corn On Littlestown Farm

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

LITTLESTOWN (Adams Co) — Tim Brown spent a hot, dry afternoon one day last summer holding back the leaves of corn while Larry Swartz, crops agent, scouted for corn borer damage

One large stalk was turning the color purple at the top There was definite sign of pest feeding

With a quick motion, Swartz opened his pocketknife and sliced into the stalk, cutting the center open to the sun, revealing a borer, happily feeding away on the farmer's profits

"There that little sucker is," said Tim, helping Swartz break the stalk apart to glimpse the thumbnail-sized, slimy, ribbed worm "Chop his head off "

Corn growers are fully aware of how much damage to the crop a pest such as the European corn borer can be Only in the last few years have producers begun to adopt biotechnology to the arsenal of weapons to rid fields of the damaging pest

Tim Brown, a registered Holstein dairy farmer near Littlestown, cares for about 200 acres in corn. The past year about 45 acres were devoted to a transgenic type of corn, called Bt (short for bacillus thuringiensis). The Bt corn kills the corn borer without the use of insecticides. Photo by Andy Andrews

Corn Program Offers A-Maize-ing Facts, Eye- Opening Reality

Lori Lauver, youth programs coordinator for Juniata and Mifflin counties, show students grocery items that are made from corn. Lauver is holding the book "Corn is Maize" written and illustrated by Aliki. The Cooperative extension agents donate a copy to each school they visit through this corn program.

SURVIVAL SKILLS IN ANOTHER LOW PRICE YEAR

The other day I managed to find myself in the unusual position of being awake at 5 30 in the morning, so I tuned in to the Ag Day program on TV for something to do One of the first things featured was a commodity analyst describing how he thought the outlook for corn prices continued to be bleak throughout 1999 Initially, I thought about going back to bed Then I thought back to the recent Top Gun Conference we conducted in Mercer in December and some of the strategies that came up at that meeting for coping with low prices

On strategy was marketing skills There was considerable discussion among producers and speakers at the conference about positioning yourself in the market as best as possible This included developing a reputation as a quality suppli-

"SERVING FARMERS THROUGH FARM EQUIPMENT DEALERS SINCE 1961"

Apply dairy bedding with 75% less time and labor

"It used to take two of us two days to install fresh bedding. Now, with the Millcreek Bedding Spreader, it only takes one man one day."

Scott Coblentz,
Deer Spring Farm, Middletown, MD

Introducing The Remarkable Millcreek Bedding Spreader

Now you can save about 75% of the time and labor for applying wood shavings, sawdust, or sand for free stall bedding. One operator can put in new bedding by himself with no hand-spreading necessary. The Millcreek Bedding Spreader is adjustable, and puts material exactly where you want it in the thickness you want. There's nothing like it for fast, efficient, and cost-effective application of bedding material in free stall dairy barns.

One man can put bedding material exactly where you want it without hand work

Millcreek Bedding Spreaders come in 7 different sizes from 3.8 to 22 cu. yd. capacity, and start under $5000. Call today for your free information.

No Substitute For Carcass Quality Consistency

VERNON ACHENBACH JR.
Lancaster Farming Staff

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — Those who raise feeder calves and feeder cattle need to pay more attention to genetics and health care if they intend to remain in the business of raising beef for retail cuts.

That seemed to be the overall message presented by a number of speakers at a recent Lancaster County Extension Cattle Feeder's Day event held at the Lancaster Farm and Home Center.

The cattle feeder's day event is sponsored by Penn State Extension with support from some agribusinesses and is held annually to provide an educational forum for producers and those interested in learning more about industry and market trends, feeder cattle raising techniques and issues, and completed and ongoing research.

Morning speakers including H. Louis Moore, Penn State University agricultural economics professor, who discussed the outlook for the feeder cattle market; Jeff Stoltzfus, an adult farmer instructor in the Eastern Lancaster County School District, who discussed nutrient management concerns for cattle feeders; Dr. John Thompson, Iowa State University professor of production animal medicine, who discussed establishing valid working relationships between cattle feeders, veterinarians and the cattle being fed; and Dr. John Comerford, Penn State Extension beef specialist who discussed a Penn State survey of cattle feeders.

Afternoon speakers included Dr. Glenn Rogers, North Carolina State University assistant professor of ruminant production medicine, who talked about animal health programs for feedlots; Dr. Comerford again, this time discussing the basics of "expected progeny differences" (EPD); Dr. Erskine Cash, Penn State University professor of animal science, who discussed the practical uses of EPDs in the feeder cattle industry; and Bob Livingston, cattle manager at South Branch Farms, who discussed his use of EPDs and carcass evaluations in a producer-retailer relationship he is in that helps his operation achieve a return on investment by ensuring that investment and effort is used to gain value, not just cattle weight.

Also speaking was Tammy Weaver, director of industry relations for the Pennsylvania Beef Council (PBC), a cattle producer-funded beef promotion, marketing and research program.

Weaver discussed some of the new products developed through the help of the PBC, such as the Rotiss-A-Roast pre-cooked roast beef modern family meal product, which was offered on site as part of a $5 lunch, served by a caterer.

Beef Council Develops Products

According to Weaver, while the beef industry has lost some of its domestic market share to the poultry industry, as is widely known and reported, the work being done through the producer-supported marketing and research effort is giving the industry its best leghold against slipping further, as well as strengthening the industry's position to move forward.

She explained that the poultry industry's growth in capturing more of the domestic consumer market is not only due to past health scares spread among the general public about cholesterol and beef, but more so because the poultry industry has created and is a leader in providing convenience meals.

Rotissarie chicken is common in most of the major supermarket store chains, and Weaver said that it offers consumers an easy and quick decision about what to have for an evening meal, especially since most consumers are short on time for cooking.

It is expected that, in order to remain competitive, it is necessary to provide consumers with a quick and easy meal solution with beef as the meat, she said.

The new roast beef product is designed for that and she said that Giant Food Stores Inc. has agreed to be the first major chain to offer the product. It should be available in March, she said.

Weaver said other developments are in the works, in an attempt to better position beef for consumer selection.

According to Weaver, there are 28 new products involving beef and veal, in addition to deli-counter rotissarie beef. She said work is being done to improve the use and demand for certain portions of the carcass as well, such as for cuts from the chuck and round.

Weaver also showed two video tape versions of a new beef commercial following the slogan, "Beef. It's What's For Dinner," featuring movie star and celebrity Sam Elliott. The commercial was produced as a 30-second commercial, also edited into 10- and 20-second versions to fit different formats and budgets.

Weaver also explained how the Pa. Beef Council has also been targeting youth to provide educational information on proper sanitary hygiene, especially in the kitchen and with food handling.

"We feel we can affect food safety by going to the youth," Weaver said, adding that it has been discovered that many elementary age youth have not received proper instruction in proper hygiene and safe food handling practices.

She showed a video that has been produced to instruct youth on those two issues, "The 4Cs Rap."

The four "Cs" stand for: Cool it, for cooling the meat in the freezer or refrigerator quickly after purchasing it; Clean it, for washing hands and handling surfaces and tools; Cook it, for cooking beef to the appropriate doneness, according to temperature; and, don't Cross it, which is for avoiding putting cooked meats onto a tray or surface or using any unwashed utensiles that had come into contact with the uncooked meat.

She said the Beef Council educational program has been requested in about 500 schools, and the visits are to be conducted through the year, every Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday. Information packets are to be sent to schools that can't be accommodated through the promotion program.

Feeder Cattle Cycling Back

In other news, H. Louis Moore, a regular industry and Extension event economic speaker, annually provides an early year outlook for the meat and livestock industry.

He has predicted that, based on industry inventories and inexpensive feed, as well as cyclical trends in the beef industry, that cattle feeders ought to be able to make a small margin in 1999 — about $50 per head — coming back from big losses for 1998.

Most of the nation's agricultural production industry has suffered low commodity prices for at least the past year. Especially hurt have been independent producers.

For those unfamiliar with the current commodity pricing situation, common knowledge is that low producer prices have resulted undercut in competition by a flow of milk from other states where milk is produced at a lesser cost.

Ag, Rural Affairs Committee Sets Hearing

Because of the originally intended short lifespan of the Compact, farm organizations and legislators were reluctant until recently to attempt to support joining in the Compact.

Many had expressed that by the time Compact-enabling legislation could be authorized by the states, and expansion granted by the U.S. Congress, if ever, there would be little time remaining for producers to enjoy any price benefits.

The Compact is tied to a termination date of Oct. 1, 1999, having been extended from the original termination date of April 1, 1999.

New York's Legislature and governor recently approved legislation enabling it to join the Compact.

New York's action fulfilled a necessary precursor for Pennsylvania to consider similar action.

The New Jersey Legislature had previously approved such enabling legislation, when it appeared that New York and Pennsylvania would not because of the time restraints.

Pennsylvania has its own internal dairy pricing structure to protect and ensure the instate production, processing and sale of Class I drinking milk.

The Compact also deals with Class I milk, though the Compact is a multi-state agreement authorized under federal law.

Compact legislation was introduced in the Pennsylvania Legislature during the previous Legislative session, but was not acted upon by the time session ended last fall. When a state Legislative session ends, all proposed legislation not signed into law is voided.

Earlier this year, in the current session of the state Legislature, state Sen. Roger Madigan reintroduced proposed legislation that would enable Pennsylvania to join, should the national Congress approve expansion of the Compact to the adjoining states.

More recently, state Rep. Sandra Major (R-Sullivan, Susquehanna and Wyoming counties) has introduced a similar legislative proposal in the state House of Representatives.

Another piece of proposed legislation was introduced into the House by Rep. Thomas Scrimenti.

While United States senators, such as Pennsylvania's Sen. Rick Santorum, have repeatedly stated that any proposal to expand the Compact would be denied, Sen. Arlen Specter of Philadelphia this week announced that he would work to support its expansion and reauthorization.

The Compact is governed by an internal commission. Late last year, because of abuses and the possibility of more, the governing body of the Compact changed some of the Compact rules to tighten restrictions on some of the milk being shipped into the Compact region.

Producers in upstate New York and some producers in northeastern Pennsylvania have been benefitting from shipping milk into the Compact area.

Milk production in the New England states has also increased, officials reported last year, although no authority directly blamed the impact of the Compact for increasing dairy production there.

The formation of the Compact was an anomaly, and thus controversial.

It went against the general thrust of the U.S. Congress in its effort to reform the way the nation supports agriculture. The thrust of the U.S. Congress and state legislatures in recent years has been to create totally free markets where values of commodities are based upon supply and demand.

Eliminating government control over price-setting has been pursued not only because it has been an obstacle in global trade negotiations, but because price support and price-setting programs can artificially stimulate production of uneeded commodities.

In the dairy industry, dairy farmers produce and deliver the product first, and are given a price later.

It has been demonstrated repeatedly in the dairy industry and among the various commodities influenced by independent producers that, when the commodity price received has been at profitable levels, production has

Spring Dairy Expo '99

COLUMBUS, Ohio – Spring Dairy Expo '99 opens Thursday, April 1 at the Ohio Expo Center, Columbus, Ohio, with an expanded trade show, judging contests and some of the best cattle on exhibit from across the United States and Canada.

Thursday afternoon is highlighted by a seminar conducted by Dr. J. K. Shearer, DVM, MS, and Extension Veterinarian of the College of Veterinary medicine at the University of Florida. The seminar will focus on lameness in dairy cattle.

The American Dairy Association & Dairy Council Mid East Bar-B-Que and annual meeting is always an enjoyable experience. That evening, the Ohio Ayrshire Spring Sale and the Midwest Revue Sale will offer some of the best Ayrshire and Brown Swiss cattle available for public auction.

Friday morning, nationally renowned judges, Brian Garrison of Ohio and Bob Fitzsimmons of Vermont will kick off the Mideast National Spring Holstein Show and Spring Dairy Expo Jersey Show at 8 a.m.

During Friday afternoon, over 60 high quality registered Holsteins will be offered for sale through the Spring National Expo Holstein Sale, followed by the annual Buckeye Dairy club Holstein and Jersey Sales.

"Watch at ringside or join in during the early evening as the youth compete in the Youth Showmanship Contest. Later that evening, the judges again take to the ring to line-up the Guernsey and Brown Swiss and Ayrshire breeds.

Cattle show entries are due March 1, 1999. Breed association ownership rules will apply for all shows. For entries contact Julie Lemmermen at COBA/ Select Sires. 614.878.5333.

Co-chairs for this year's Spring Dairy Expo '99 are Julie DeLavergne, 614.486.7590 and Carl Lund, 419.668.1784.

Milk Pricing Meeting Set

FREDERICK, Md. — David Walker, Federal order 4 market administrator will be the featured speaker for a milk pricing meeting to be held Feb. 22 at the Frederick County Extension Office.

He will explain how the basic formula price (BFP) is set and how that influences our prices here in Maryland. In addition, Dr. Kevin McNew, agricultural marketing specialist with Maryland Cooperative Extension, will be on hand to explain how producers can use forward contracts to reduce price risks.

If your dairy cooperative is not yet offering forward contracts, they will be soon, so you will want to know how they can be used to minimize your price risk in these uncertain times.

Informal discussions of the Northeast Compact and establishing a marketing club will be held after lunch.

The program begins promptly at 10:00 a.m. No registration fee will be charged, but lunch reservations were to have been made by Feb. 19. Call 301-694-1594 extension 1595, for more information.

Pennsylvania Holstein Convention Early Report

WILKES-BARRE (Luzern Co.) – The Pennsylvania Holstein Convention opened Thursday with a tour to Hillside Farms, seminars on employee relations and time management, and a convention sale with number one in the catalogue selling for $10,800

Hillside Farms located 10 minutes out of town has the creek flowing right by the barn that many years ago was used to cool the milk cans. The original barn still stands from 1881 when great grandfather William Conyngham imported the first registered Holstein. Hillside is one of only two farms in the nation that can trace a continuous registered Holstein business back that far In 1977 the present Conyngham owners, William L. and Frank E P., started to bottle milk and they now service the area with milk in glass and have an on-farm store and ice cream shop. A greenhouse business is also part of the enterprise.

Hillside got into the high index Holstein business when they made a purchase six years ago when the state Holstein convention was also in Wilkes-Barre. Since that time, the herd has become high profile with many contracts and high-selling bulls, heifers, and embryos.

The convention sale Thursday night under the slogan "Holsteins shine in '99" was quite successful with an offering highly regarded as having "something for every kind of breeding program"

Darlawn Bellwood Hazel consigned by Mark and Paul Darling, Nicholson, sold to Vision Genetics, Richmond, VA. For $10,800. The Bellwood daughter with a bottom pedigree showing longevity, type to (EX, 4E-92, GMD DOM) and production to 47,750m 1,836f 1,426p. Hazel herself was VG 85 at 2y 8m, and had a PTA +2,716m +105f +100p PTPI +1,789 with an estimated 305d record of 28,834m 1,087f 994p.

Another $10,000 sale was the 1st choice from 2 ultrasound females due 6/7/99 consigned by James Yunker, Fleetwood. This embryo, a Manfred daughter out of a Bellwood from Rich-Ru Thor Mellow-ET, the foundation cow, had indexes running off the chart The buyer was H.E. Hendel and Sons, Brogue.

At $6,100 the June calf from Dale and Fred Rice, Chambersburg, sold to Steven Rudolph, Greencastle. A Mascot from a Luke daughter traced back to Ricecrest's Noreen cow.

The sale continued past press time and other high sales and the averages would be reported next with the continued convention coverage.

In the employee relations' seminar, Mike Weimer, Ed Drexler, Abe Harpster, Ken Kehr, and Dean Johnson served on a panel. Some of the thoughts expressed were:

-In employee management it helps to keep low-key and flexible.

-Payment is sometimes made in goods from the farm such as hay for the employee's horses.

-Try to build up employees, not always look for complaints

-Keep good relations with past employees as they may want to come back to work for you sometime, or they may recommend others who can make good employees

-Go to farm auctions and talk to the farmers who are leaving the farm.

-Exhibit booths at farm shows make a good place to contact future employees

-Give all the information about your job opening up front in the advertisement so you don't have people calling you who are not qualified

-Develop your farm as THE place to work. You will know this has happened when employees send referrals

-Develop incentive programs

Study Shows Network Of Firms Dominate Food System

WASHINGTON, D.C. – A small number of dominate "clusters" of firms control the decision-making throughout all levels of the U.S. food chain, threatening American's system of independent family farms and ranches, according to a new report unveiled by the National Farmers Union (NFU).

The study, prepared by Dr. William Heffernan, a rural sociologist at the University of Missouri, documents how linkages in the food system, through alliances, joint ventures, partnerships, mergers and other relationships, have formed a complex network of "clusters" of firms. Each cluster is a vertically integrated "food chain," controlling the system from the gene to the supermarket shelf.

"The study reveals the complex web of relationships among a handful of firms in the food chain," said NFU President Leland Swenson. "The trend toward a privately centralized food system puts our food security in great jeopardy Food is different than other goods and services, and it would be dangerous to permit a few major firms to control decision making throughout the entire food chain This study should compel Congress to take action to ensure the industry remains competitive

The study details the relationships forming the three major clusters–Cargill/Monsanto, ConAgra, and Novartis/ADM– which now dominate the food system. Some of the studies findings include·

• The complexity of the linkages in the system undermines market competition and makes it difficult to measure. The network of relationships is creating a seamless system with little market transparency along the various stages of the food system. Because of the complexity, a firm that does not hold a majority share of a specific market may still have a great decision making power within the food chain.

•Technological advances are accelerating the process of vertical integration. Biotechnology and the terminator gene have put the farmer at the mercy of the food cluster for seed to plant the crop. Also, precision farming's global positioning system separates management from the production of agriculture. With this technology, it is possible for "managers" in distant offices to make decisions about farm production, while producers simply become labors.

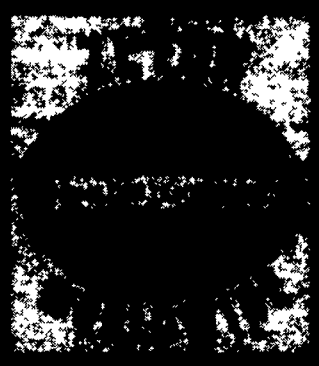
•The new structure threatens independent producers. The clusters influence opportunities all along the food chain–from production inputs to global trade–which severely hampers producers' ability to earn a fair return on their product. It also erodes the independence of producers by shifting major decision-making to a handful of firms.

•The new structure is harming rural communities because corporate returns are reinvested in the firm, rather than in local economics where the goods are produced.

The study was unveiled at a Capitol Hill news conference. The full text of the study can be found on NFU's website at www.nfu.org

ZETOR

1- Million Celebration



Special Edition Tractors

Recently, Zetor completed production of the first 1 Million of the firm's Range Units.

To celebrate this accomplishment, Zetor has produced a limited number of SPECIAL EDITION, 2- and 4-wheel drive tractors in the 3320 and 3340 models.

Zetor dealers will carry a number of these SPECIAL EDITION tractors, while supply lasts, which will include special optional features such as shuttle-shift transmission or 4WD at no extra cost (up to $1,000 in added value)

The appearance of the tractors will be enhanced with distinctive features such as chrome muffler, red seat, and special markings

It's Zetor's way of celebrating a business milestone with their customers.

largely because of the failure of industry intended exports (because of economic failures of intended trading nations), and the consequent dumping of the surplus on the domestic market.

In other business, Stoltzfus discussed some of the more common environmental and nutrient management concerns among feeder cattle operations.

He reminded the audience of the state Nutrient Management Act and the threshold of livestock density for being required to file with the state for approval a nitrogen-balanced nutrient management plan.

Stoltzfus also reminded the audience of some of the other laws that can apply with regard to the uncontrolled flow or direct flow of nutrient-laden runoff into a waterway.

In brief, he said that those with earthen or concreted, uncovered feed lots, especially those adjacent to a stream, or with a direct discharge into a stream, grass waterway or ditch, that are affected by stormwater mixing and washing away manure, are at risk of being discovered and penalized.

Those practices are illegal, regardless of whether the specific farm stocking rate mandates the creation and maintenance of a state-approved nutrient management plan.

Cattle Feeder Survey Results

Dr. Comerford took time during the morning to discuss the early results of a survey of cattle feeders in southeast Pennsylvania with regard to the use of veterinarians and formal feeder cattle health programs.

The survey was done to better understand the existing relationships between cattle feeders and veterinarians.

He said the survey was done with a two-fold objective: to be able to describe the cattle feeding industry in southeastern Pennsylvania; and determine the attitudes of those who feed cattle for market.

According to Comerford, the survey resulted in at least one surprise — the number of people feeding calves. Comerford said it was much more than expected. The rest of the survey results seemed to better quantify some of the assumed practices.

Comerford reviewed the results of the survey, question by question, noting some statistical outliers, such as one survey result that indicated an operation has been feeding 23,000 cattle per year, when the average is about 2,500 per operation.

One question asked what percent of the feeder cattle being fattened receive vaccinations and/or treatment for parasites.

According to the information. only 8.6 percent of those surveyed indicated a full program. "About 20 percent of the cattle fed in Pennsylvania have no health management," Comerford said.

The mortality (death losses) rate is reportedly low, according to the survey results, with an average of 1.17 percent per year. Survey results also indicated an average expense of $1,132.66 per year for medications.

The survey results also showed that most cattle feeders choose to treat their animals without oversight of a veterinarian. According to Comerford, respondents indicated that 90.7 percent of the health treatments were performed by themselves, while 9.3 percent of the time a veterinarian was used.

Comerford said the 9.3 percent use of a veterinarian is assumed to mostly reflect the practice of calling for a veterinarian when it becomes obvious the animal is going to die otherwise.

Respondents indicated that most are very pleased with the quality of veterinary service available to them.

On a scale of 1 to 10, from worst to best, respondent scores averaged 7.76.

Further, 87.8 percent indicated they felt their veterinarian had sufficient interest in beef cattle, and 85.5 percent indicated they felt their veterinarian had the expertise needed for feeder cattle.

Feeder Cattle Health Programs

With regard to developing a working relationship between a feeder cattle manager and a veterinarian to develop and maintain a health program, Dr. Thomson discussed some of the practices being adopted in Iowa.

An informal survey of the audience, however, revealed that few follow a regular health program in consultation with a veterinarian as part of their regular business.

While Thomson discussed the types of programs and alliances that are becoming industry standards in Iowa, which he said has about five cows per person, they didn't necessarily seem to apply to local practices.

However, Thomson reported that a form of integration has been occuring in the Iowa feeder cattle industry, with proper identification emphasized; the use of a team approach to help produce a profitable product that meets consumer and industry needs; and the use of "strategic alliances" and retained ownership of the animals becoming more normal.

He said that he has watched some farmers walk away from using veterinarians, but public health issues and other evolving issues mandate that producers involve more consultants or work more directly with market forces in order to produce what the market demands.

According to Thomson, all that integration and team work will not only require working more with veterinarians, but will also require a lot of information, information sharing, and information management.

The feeder cattle industry is an "adversarial industry," according to Thomson. "We rob Peter to pay Paul. Some of the conflicts are my breed versus your breed; producer versus retailer; industry needs versus consumer wants."

He said the beef industry, while not totally vertically integrated, is going to have to consolidate information.

Therapeutic Horsemanship Focus Of Conference

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) – Up to 300 people will saddle up with a few of the equine partners for the 1999 Therapeutic Horsemanship Conference,Feb. 26-28 at Penn State's University Park campus The event is sponsored by the North American Riding for the Handicapped Association (NARHA) Region 2, in cooperation with the Pennsylvania Council on Therapeutic Horsemanship, Penn State and Cornell University.

Riding and handling horses has been shown to have therapeutic benefits for children and adults with physical, mental, emotional or learning disabilities. There are about 70 accredited — and many more nonaffiliated — therapeutic riding programs in NARHA Region 2, which encompasses Pennsylvania, New York, New Jersey, Maryland, Delaware and the District of Columbia.

"This is a great opportunity to learn more about therapeutic riding and how to start and run a program," says conference organizer Marianne Fivek, Penn State assistant professor of agricultural and extension education and a NARHA registered instructor.

"It takes knowledge to choose a horse of the right temperament, fit the horse to the rider and fit or adapt the equipment to both," Fivek says. "In addition, program leaders must have business, fundraising and other administrative skills."

The conference opens on Friday, Feb. 26 with registration from 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. at The Nittany Lion Inn. Friday workshops include "Business Planning for the Therapeutic Horsemanship Program: and "Special Equestrians: Driving for the Equestrian with Disabilities." Tours of Penn State campus facilities will be offered, including the University Creamery and the horse barns housing the university's quarter horse herd.

Following a welcoming reception, Frank Bell, well known horse trainer and clinician, will present the keynote address at 8 p m. in The Nittany Lion Inn ballroom

The conference continues Saturday, Feb. 27 with concurrent sessions on "Sensory Integration and Horseback Riding," "Understanding and Planning for Riders with Learning Disabilities," "Destressing the Therapy Horse" and "Feldenkreis Method/ Alexander Technique." State presentations, a silent auction, a reception and a banquet round out Saturday's schedule.

Activates on Sunday, Feb. 28 include a morning keynote on "New Ideas for Fundraising" by NARHA Region 2 Chair Virginia Mazza, research presentations and a panel discussion on "Client Assessment and Matching Horse/Rider/Equip-ment." The conference concludes with "A Whisperer Like No Other," a special presentation by Frank Bell.

Conference sessions will be held at several locations around the University Park campus, including the Ag Arena, Agricultural Sciences and Industries Building, Kern Building and The Nittany Lion Inn. Commercial vendors specializing in equine nutrition, tack, apparel, adaptive equipment, and health and wellness will display their goods and services in the Ag Arena.

For registration information, contact Marianne Fivek by phone at (814) 865-7521 or by e-mail at mafivek@psu.edu.

1999 Md. Holstein Association Convention

FULTON, Md. — The Maryland Holstein Association has announced that its 1999 convention has been scheduled for March 12 at the Turf Valley Resort and Conference Center in Ellicott City.

The theme is, "All good things must come to an end," reflecting the coming end of the century.

A convention sale is scheduled for March 13 at the Howard County Fairgrounds in West Friendship.

Convention host is the Howard County Holstein Breeders, and according to a news release, committee people have organized a full agenda.

The deadline for ordering convention tickets is March 1 and payment must accompany the order forms. Checks should be made payable to: Howard County Holstein Association.

Completed forms and payment should be mailed to: 1999 MD Holstein Convention, c/o Sharon & Phil Jones, Bowling Green Farm, 1465 Underwood Road, Sykesville, MD 21784.

There are four meal catagories for which tickets need to prepurchased: a seated business lunch; a seated ladies program lunch; a junior program lunch; and the evening seated banquet meal.

The ticket order form includes meal options and prices.

Convention registration begins at 9 a.m., March 12, and is followed at 10 a.m. with the choice of attending the annual bsuiness meeting, a ladies program, or a youth program.

Prior to 10 a.m., attendees can visit with commercial exhibitors.

The Maryland State Holstein Association annual business meeting is to include business reports, an election of officers, and the presentation of breed improvement awards, progressive breeder awards, and genetic improvement awards.

The ladies program is to include a presentation on skin care products for the family, accessorizing with scarves, and easy cake decorating ideas.

Greg Claassen
Ventriloquist

The Maryland Junior Holstein Association members' program runs from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m., and includes the junior annual business meeting, lunch and guided tours that have an environmental theme.

The juniors are to board a charter bus for the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Beltsville Research Station where they are to see the research dairy herd (including a voluntary hands-in-rumen experience); go on tours highlighting the management of animals, manure, crops and soils; visit a manure digester, and see the station's new composting facility.

For those attending the seated luncheon at 12:30 p.m., the featured speaker, at 1:45 p.m., is to be Dr. Tom Bailey, a veterinary reproduction specialist with the Virginia-Maryland Regional College of Veterinary Medicine.

Dr. Bailey is to discuss improving reproductive efficiency in the dairy herd, heifer development, and what appears to be the likely future of applied technology.

According to a news release, Dr. Bailey is a veterinary consultant for Holstein Association USA, is president of the Society for Theriogenology, and is actively involved with research on a computerized heat detection system, as well as research on transvaginal follicular aspiration.

From 3 p.m. to 6 p.m., there is to be free time for visiting booths and exhibits, previewing the sale consignments, or attending a demonstration of a new Windows version of DHI PLUS available through DHI, Provo, Utah.

A social hour is scheduled to start at 6 p.m. followed by the banquet at 7 p.m.

The presentation of junior member awards and scholarships, and an introduction of the organization's judging and dairy bowl teams, are to be made at 8 p.m.

At 8:45 p.m., entertainment is to be provided by Greg Claassen, of Whitewater, Kansas. Claassen is a ventriloquist who performs about 120 times per year at theme parks and dinners, and who is involved with his father and two brothers in growing 2,500 acres of grain crops, running a farrow-to-finish hog operation, and raising feeder calves.

A dance with music provided by a disc jockey is set to start at 9:45 p.m.

January F.O. 4 Weighted Average $17.23

ALEXANDRIA, Va. – Feb. Middle Atlantic Order Acting Market Administrator David Z. Walker announced a January 1999 weighted average milk price of $17.23 per hundredweight.

The weighted average differential price was 91 cents per hundredweight and producer nonfat milk solids (NFMS) price was $1.26 per pound.

The weighted average price was down 12 cents from December but was $2.96 higher than a year earlier. The producer NFMS price was up 24 cents from lst January.

The nonfat milk solids price, applicable to handler payments, was $1.2680 per pound for the month, up 23.97 cents from last year. The gross value of January producer milk, adjusted to 3.5 percent butterfat ws $94.3 million, compared to $75.5 million a year ago.

Mr. Walker said that producer receipts totaled 551 million pounds during January, an increase of 19.4 million pounds from last January and the average daily delivery of 3,572 pounds per producer decreased 221 pounds or 5.8 percent from a year earlier.

A total of 4,976 producers supplied Order 4 handlers during the month, an increase of 455 form a year ago.

Class I producer milk totaled 219 million pounds and was down 12.1 million pounds,or 5.2 percent from last January. Class I milk accounted for 39.75 percent of total producer milk receipts during the month, compared with 43.47 percent in January 1998.

The average NFMS test of producer milk was 8.77 percent, up from 8.74 percent the previous year. The average butterfat test of producer milk was 3.84 percent, up from 3.77 percent in January 1998.

Middle Atlantic Order pool handlers reported Class I in-area milk sales of 191.6 million pounds during January, an increase of 1.2 percent from a year earlier, after adjustment to eliminate variation due to calendar composition.

Berks Holstein Club Offers Production Tour

FLEETWOOD (Berks Co.) — On Saturday, March 6, the Berks County Holstein Club has scheduled a bus tour that is to visit some of the top production herds in the state along with the dairy research facilities at Penn State University.

The trip will begin with a morning stop at Scott and Karen Nolt's "Country Path Holsteins." This young Lebanon County couple milks 100 cows three times a day, and average 106 pounds/cow/day. The current herd average is 32,918M 1047F 1023P.

Recently featured in the Holstein World, the Nolts are working in a new tie barn complete with gravity flow gutters, funnel ventilation, mattresses and a milking system equipped with automatic takeoffs.

Their classification BAA is 108.4, and they are currently flushing a high index Luke daughter.

Our next stop will be the Jay Houser Family farm in Centre County. Jay is the immediate past president of the Pa. Holstein Association. His "Penn Dell" herd has long been known for its high production, deep cow families and outstanding type. Jay's son, Jim, is the key member of the family working with the herd.

The cattle are housed in a stall barn and fed a TMR. Recently, the herd was averaging over 88 pounds of milk per cow with many nice heifers in the barn helping to yield a herd average of 27,502M 1059F 864P. Current BAA is 107.9.

Also in Centre County, the next stop is to be at "Ideals Holsteins" operated by Jake and Sally Tanis and family. Jake's philosophy is to breed for type and feed for production; he has achieved both. His herd average is currently 30,908M 1188F 973P, and the herd has topped the PA DHIA for milk in recent years.

With numerous Canadian sires represented in the herd, the BAA is 109.5. Jake uses FullTime. Forage corn silage, probiotics and tender loving care to achieve his goals.

The tour is to also visit the Penn State Dairy Research facility, that has been instrumental in keeping Penn State at the forefront of new developments in the dairy industry.

Cattle are housed in freestalls and tie-stalls and milked in a double-10 herringbone parlor. A new state-of-the-art feed mill prepares feed for the 180+ cows in the milking herd.

Currently, several research trials are taking place. In spite of the on-going research and control groups of cattle, the herd is obtaining 88 pounds of milk/cowday on average. Manure is all handled on a stack-pad. Heifers are raised primarily in freestalls.

From Penn State, on the trip home, a stop is scheduled at the Family House Restaurant to enjoy their "all-you-can-eat buffet" for the evening meal, sponsored by Star Silo Equipment and Service along with Mark Wicks, a representative for Semex. Bus transportation is being subsidized by Cargill Hybrid Seeds, John Gulya, district sales manager.

The bus is to depart the Fleetwood Grange Hall at 7 a.m. on March 6 and will stop for another pick-up at the Bethel Library (just north of I-78 at the Bethel Exit) at 7:45 a.m. Return time will be approximately 8:30 p.m. at Fleetwood.

For reservations, call Dennis Sattazahn at 610-589-2310 or David Bitler at 610-944-0541 before February 28. Bring your own lunch, drinks will be provided by the club. Cost of the trip is $25. Make checks payable to: "Berks County Holstein Club" on tour day.

U.S. Sen. Specter Meets Dairymen At Jersey Farm

MIDDLETOWN (Dauphin Co.) – Farmers, farm organization leaders, and politicians, met at the Tom Williams' Bryncoed Jersey farm, Tuesday afternoon to discuss the Northeast Interstate Dairy Compact with U.S. Senator Arlen Specter, (R-PA). The discussion centered on Specter's belief that the Compact will stabilize the price of milk to dairy farmers with only a few passing remarks about Specter's roll in the impeachment trial in Washington that concluded last week.

The Dairy Compact is a formal agreement between three or more states enacted through state and federal legislation which allows for the establishment of a pricing mechanism for fluid milk sold in the region. Since New York State passed Compact legislation last year, Pennsylvania becomes the keystone state that needs to pass such legislation to meet the requirements that states in the Compact be contiguous. Not everyone in the farm community agrees the Compact is the answer to the pricing problems, but there was no dissenting voice at this discussion.

John Bell, Pennsylvania Farm Bureau; Robert Junk, Pennsylvania Farmers Union, Brenda Stanbaugh, Pennsylvania State Grange, and Arden Tewksbury, Progressive Ag Organization, all said they believe the Compact will give price stability and predictability to milk prices to farmers and help to maintain an adequate supply of milk to consumers.

Tom Williams owner of the farm, said with the large number of consumers in the Northeast, the Dairy Compact would be a "win, win" situation for everybody, both farmers and consumers.

Pennsylvania will hold hearings on the subject as early as Tuesday.

Sen. Arlen Specter, center, meets with dairy farmers, Tom, Sam, and Carol Williams at a news conference on their Bryncoed Jersey Farm to discuss the Northeast Interstate Dairy Compact.

Eastern New York Farmer's Market Information Day March 4

SYRACUSE, N.Y. – Many farmers are finding themselves in tough financial times.

Costs of production keep rising, but the prices received for products, whether it's milk, meat, produce, or grains, just don't rise at the same rate. And many times they don't rise at all!

So where can a farmer turn to increase his income?

Retailing your farm products at a farmers' market may be the answer! You can eliminate the middle man and receive the full retail value for your product.

Farmers' markets are affordable avenues for direct marketing your farm products. Cost of participation is low and there is an already existing customer base But, where are these markets and how can you get involved?

The Farmers' Market Federation of New York along with the Eastern NY Regional Chapter and the Regional Farm and Food Project of CEC and Cornell Cooperative Extension are sponsoring a "Market Information Day" on Thursday, March 4 from noon - 5 p.m. at the Albany County Cornell Cooperative Extension office in Voorheesville.

Farmers' market managers from counties in the eastern section of New York State will be on hand to give you all the information you need to get you started at their markets.

At this event, market managers will offer a short presentation to the audience describing their market, the community it serves, and the types of products in demand.

You'll have the opportunity to ask questions about their markets or about direct marketing in general. You can also take the opportunity to meet with the managers one-on-one at their booth and pick up market applications to participate in the markets that interest you.

We'll also hear an update on the 1999 Farmers Market Nutrition Program from the NYS Department of Agriculture & Markets. This is an invaluable program to farmers' markets, increasing their customer traffic and providing additional revenue for participating farmers.

Spend an afternoon networking with other farmers as you learn about exciting direct marketing opportunities.

Cost of attendance is $10 and includes a deli lunch. Seating is limited. For reservations or more information, contact Diane Eggert ar the Farmers' Market Federation office at 315-475-1101

300 Attend Young Dairy Leaders Institute

BRATTLEBORO, Vt. — Young dairy leaders from across the country arrived in Tampa, Florida, on Feb. 3, for the Holstein Foundation's Young Dairy Leaders Institute.

Participants engaged in four all-day training sessions focused on leadership and communications skills training.

At the end of the Institute, approximately 300 young dairy leaders, working with all breeds of dairy cattle, and from throughout the country, will have participated in the Institute since 1994.

Following their initial training sessions, participants will undertake year-long "field work" and return to Florida in February 2000 for final training workshops. When asked what prompted Institute participant Karla Spencer from Houston, Missouri, to attend she replied, "I came to YDLI to learn how to help bridge the gap between businesses and agriculture in my community."

Maria Nye from Delta, Utah, expressed her views about the training program when she said, "What has really impressed me is that people are interested in what John and I think about various things rather than only focusing on what we know. I like that a lot and it is different from other seminars I have attended."

During the February 1999 training, participants set personal goals, developed speaking skills, explored people types and personality styles, learned about balancing professional and personal demands, heard about ways to manage change and stress, learned about farm business succession and estate planning, participated in technology skills training for Internet applications to help increase profitability of dairy operations, and were introduced to an economics workshop on managing risk, change and opportunity for dairy business.

Presenters included Emory Austin, noted national keynote speaker on leadership and communication; Jim Henion, director of training and staff development, Cooperative Resources International; Don Rogers, senior farm business consultant with First Pioneer Farm Credit; Dr. Mark Varner, professor of animal and avian sciences, University of Maryland; Alan Zolin, director, Dairy Procurement, Kraft Foods, Inc.; David Okerlund, consultant and keynote speaker, leadership/communications.

Support for the 1999-2000 Institute comes from a major individual gift from William T. Graham, founder of World Dairy Center, in Madison, Wisconsin and the following generous corporations.

ABS Global; Agway Foundation; Alfa Laval Agri, Inc.; Allflex USA, Inc; Alta Genetics USA, Inc.; American Jersey Cattle Association; Blue Seal Feeds, Inc.; Church & Dwight Co., Inc.; Cooperative Resources International; Dairy Farmers of America; Dairy Herd Management Magazine; Hoard's Dairyman; Holstein World; H.W. The Holstein Foundation is a non-profit organization dedicated to developing and sustaining leaders to meet the challenges of a changing agriculture. Pennsylvania Part Of National Soil Survey Centennial Celebration

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — To celebrate the Centennial of the Soil Survey in the United States, the Pennsylvania Association of Professional Soil Scientists (PAPSS) and the USDA Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS) have selected Hazleton as the state soil of Pennsylvania to increase the awareness of soil as our most important resource.

Soil surveys map out the location of specific types of soils and provide information on their unique properties, characteristics and potentials.

Soils information is used by farmers and engineers, land developers and teachers, community officials and conservationists, and students and home buyers to maximize crop production; determine sites for wells, bridges, highways and building developments; and to help us all better understand and protect the environment.

"Soils are critical to the health of Pennsylvania's people and her resources," said Janet Oertly, NRCS state conservationist. "They filter and store our water, support roads and buildings, and provide us with food and fiber. We have a saying, 'Soil, we can't live without it'," Oertly added.

PAPSS and NRCS endorsed Hazleton as the state soil for Pennsylvania because it occurs in more counties than any other soil.

Of the more than 3,000 types of soil in Pennsylvania, Hazleton is found in 33 counties. Additionally, Pennsylvania's state flower - Mountain Laurel, state tree - Eastern Hemlock, state bird - Roughed Grouse and state mammal - White-tailed Deer all thrive on Hazleton soil.

Hazleton soils are deep, well-drained soils formed from sedimentary sandstone and are used mostly for forests and hayland. Efforts are under way to have Hazleton recognized as the state soil by the commonwealth. Pennsylvania is involving everyone in celebrating this centennial.

Pennsylvania Farm Show visitors were given an opportunity to create their own soil monolith showing the various layers or horizons that make up Hazleton. Almost 3,000 miniature soil tubes were created. In many cases, children made their monoliths while parents looked in the soil survey books to determine what the soil type was where they live.

In addition, a display of the history of Pennsylvania's soil survey with tools, photographs and original publications dating back to 1899 has been created and will be displayed at various events throughout the commonwealth.

The display has already been on exhibit at Ag Progress Days.

A book of memoirs from many who played a part in the soil survey history of Pennsylvania is being compiled and will be published this year as Pennsylvania Soil Survey History — part of Penn

Additional activities are being planned as part of Ag Progress Days 1999.

Soil surveys originally began in 1899 with an appropriation of $16,000 to the Division of Soils which was originaly part of the Weather Bureau. Those responsibilities were eventually assigned to the then Soil Conservation Service as part of the United States

Pennsylvania was one of the first states to complete the surveying process. The first soil survey published in Pennsylvania was "The Lancaster Area," published in 1900. The most recent published survey is the 1997 Bedford Soil Survey. Surveys are now published on a county basis with copies available through your local conservation district office or USDA Service Center.

To obtain more information on the Soil Survey Centennial, soil surveys and conserving soil where you live, contact your local Natural Resources Conservation Service office.

Bovine Virus Diarrhea (BVD) - Article 36

Bovine virus diarrhea (BVD) is a costly disease that is prevalent in many dairy herds. It is a disease that producers need to be very concerned about for a number of reasons

1 BVD is a complex disease that can cause serious outbreaks, death and great economic losses The virus can live in almost every tissue of an infected animal's body, and produce a wide range of symptoms, some of which are:
- abortions and mummified fetuses.
- early embryonic deaths and repeat breeders.
- birth defects.
- calf mortality at an early age.
- diarrhea.
- fever.
- respiratory problems.
- poor doing calves and cows.
- immune suppression and increased susceptibility to other diseases and problems.

2. The disease is very contagious, and the virus is shed in almost all of an infected animal's excretio and secretions, and can be spread in a variety of ways:
- exposure to clinically infected and non-clinically infected cows within the herd.
- exposure to infected cows at auctions, fairs, etc.
- purchase of infected cattle.
- infected colostrum, semen, etc.
- contaminated equipment (needles, hoof trimming tools, dehorners, etc.).
- biting insects.

3. Persistently infected (PI) animals can be the major source of infection in the herd!! These animals are non-clinical, they appear normal, and they can be shedding large doses of the virus They need to be identified and culled from the herd immediately

The goal should be to work with your veterinarian to establish a BVD control and prevention program for your herd, and then implement that program with great diligence Some ideas for considerations are

1 Vaccinate
- Vaccinate calves at 6 months of age and again at 12 months with a MLV BVD vaccine After that, revaccinate every 12 months NOTE do not use MLV BVD vaccine on pregnant cattle
- Killed vaccines can be used, but they are not as effective as a modified live vaccines (MLV) However, they can be administered to pregnant cattle At 6 months of age, calves will need two doses of the killed vaccine, given 2 to 4 weeks apart, and another two-dose shot about six months later. After that, heifers and cows should receive booster shots about twice a year

2 Protect newly purchased cattle, other incoming cattle, and your resident herd from each other
- Protect the resident herd from incoming cattle (purchased cattle, contracted heifers, show cattle, etc) with a good vaccination program (see item 1, above) Allow enough time for cattle to mount an effective immune response For a MLV program, allow 2 weeks from the last shot to the time that incoming cattle arrive, allow 4 weeks for killed vaccine programs
- Also protect incoming cattle from the herd they will be moving into with a similar vaccination program -- preferably before they arrive, if possible Don't take a chance and trust someone else's word or a signed statement that they have been "properly protected". That's not to say they are dishonest; their idea of protection may differ from that of yours, or their recollection of facts may be less than accurate

3. Test purchased cattle for persistent BVD infection, and then test the calves they were carrying to see if any of them are persistently infected If possible, test the animal and get the results before these animals arrive at your farm Keep the purchased cattle isolated until test results are known

4. If you have a lot of reproductive problems and other unexplained or unsolveable problems, consult your veterinarian about the possibility of screen testing the herd for persistently infected BVD animals, and depending upon these results, the need for testing every animal in the herd

5. Sell all persistently infected cattle for slaughter

QUESTION: We started to test for MUN two months ago and are wondering what should MUN values be for our herd?

ANSWER: You may have heard or read that average MUN values should fall between 10 and 14. This is the range where we see the highest and most consistent production on all cows that make up the test database recorded by Pa.DHIA.

It is in this range where "individual" cows use dietary protein most efficiently. However, when we look at the "herd" overall, we should consider some additional factors.

Recently, I visited a herd that gives us a good example of a factor that can tell us where to set the goal for MUN within the acceptable range. We will start by observing that this is a single ration TMR.

This single factor presents a challenge as we try to determine protein-feeding efficiency through MUN testing.

We see the following numbers in this herd:

Lactation 1

0-40 days	ave. MUN = 7.4
41-99 days	ave. MUN = 8.9
100-199 days	ave. MUN = 11.3
200-299 days	ave. MUN = 12.7
300+ days	ave. MUN = 13.5
Ave./total	11.8

These numbers represent a common trend in herds that use a single-fed TMR. This type of feeding strategy calls for a different evaluation of the MUN numbers.

The low numbers in the early lactation cows indicate that there is a lack of dietary (especially rumen available) protein. This is easy to fix, but you need to realize that once the trend is established for this herd, fixing the protein for early lactation will also cause the tail-enders to become somewhat inefficient in protein utilization.

My recommendation is to look at the profile of the herd first.

In this herd, we used the first lactation group to set parameters because 52 percent of cows in the herd are first lactation. Furthermore, the distribution of milking 2-year-olds was even, through days-in-milk.

The feeding strategy used in this herd is becoming more common. When we give all the cows the same opportunity for feed consumption, we must address where we generate the most profit potential and that is during the early part of lactation.

We contacted this herd's nutritionist and fixed the diet to optimize production potential while still maintaining rumen health. We did so by using less of bypass protein and more of soluable protein.

We now anticipate that the MUN numbers should rise throughout the lactation and the average here needs to be 13 to 14.

This change will address the animals with the highest potential profit along with some slight protein waste in late lactation. Here we even got the bonus points — reduced cost to the dairyman.

EAYF Announces Computer Classes

EPHRATA (Lancaster C) — The Ephrata Area Young Farmers have recently announced its schedule for three meetings dealing with computers.

The EAYF is an organization devoted to continuing education for area adult farmers.

All three computer meetings are to be held from 7-9 p.m. in Room 204 of the Ephrata High School.

On Feb. 24, Part I Computers is set to be a meeting to offer participants the basics of computers; how to use and purchase them.

On March 9, Part II Computers s designged to provide participants an introduction in computer applications, such as word processing, making spreadsheets, etc.

On April 13, Part III Computers, a specific topic has not been decided. Participants of Part II Computers are to help decide the content of the third class.

Reservations are needed for each of the meetings. to reserve a seat call (717) 859-3276.

Mid-Atlantic Dairy Conference Set For Feb. 24-25

CHAMBERSBURG (Franklin Co.) — Successful dairy producers need a plan to meet the challenges they'll face in the next millennium. How can they develop a workable business plan and adopt the latest technology? Can it be done without compromising the family's values and goals?

The 1999 Mid-Atlantic Dairy Management Conference, "Systematic Approach to Dairying in the Next Millennium," promises to be a valuable conference with practical presentations on Business Viability, Specialization, Biosecurity, and Information and Nutrient Management. Each topic and speaker was chosen to help dairy producers think through their future business and family needs. The conference, planned by industry and university representatives from the Mid-Atlantic region will be held at the Radisson Penn Harris Hotel and Convention Center in Camp Hill, Pennsylvania on February 24th and 25th, 1999.

The Decision Case "The Final Permit: Will Environmental Policy Crack the Retirement Nest Egg?" will be an integral part of the conference with the audience and speakers interacting to find the most practical solution. This is a case of a farm expanding from a 65-cow dairy/grain farm in the early 1990s to possible 525-cow specialized farm by 2007. The case will be presented at the opening of the conference and then speakers will contribute their expertise to different aspects of the case. After breakout discussion groups and presentations of possible solutions, a producer panel will respond to what is practical from their point of view and attempt to integrate the bits of knowledge into a unified solution of the case. Speakers include dairy producers, industry experts and university faculty from across the United States.

Make your plans now to attend so that you can hear the latest about nutrient loading, information management, comingling, water quality and contracting heifers and forages.

The program has been approved for American Registry of Professional Animal Scientists (ARPAS) credits and for Pennsylvania Continuing Education Credits for Veterinarians.

The registration fee for the two-day conference and tradeshow is $150 with a $25 reduction for the second person from the same farm. The fee includes a copy of the conference proceedings, three meals and access to all conference activities. The registration deadline is February 10th, 1999. For more information or a registration brochure contact Beth Moore, Conference Coordinator by e-mail at beth@innernet.net or call her at 717-375-2639.

1999 MID-ATLANTIC DAIRY MANAGEMENT CONFERENCE

Dairy Farmers Strive For Balance

CHAMBERSBURG (Franklin Co.) — More and more dairy farmers today are seeking a balance between time spent managing their dairy operations and time devoted to family and leisure activities, according to Joe Conlin of the University of Minnesota.

"Dairy farmers want more time off and more quality time with their family," Conlin says "There is a lot of value living in the country and being your own boss, but the constant work can take its toll"

Conlin, scheduled to speak at the Mid-Atlantic Dairy Management Conference Feb 24-25 in Camp Hill, says growth in profitability is the key to striking a balance between farm and family goals "There are a lot of opportunities for farmers to make changes and to improve profitability," he says

Among these "opportunities" are controlling the costs of production, increasing milk production and improving labor efficiency. A "huge cost," for example, is feed "Look at ways to improve rations and improve consumption," Conlin says "Also consider alternative feed sources that can be worked into rations with excellent nutrient resources"

Farmers also can consider increasing their milk production. This can come in one of two ways more production per cow or more cows. "Many herds tend to be too small to meet lifestyle goals," Conlin says "How much milk does a family need to market to support these goals?"

Conlin also suggests improving labor efficiency For some dairy farmers that may mean moving from a tie-stall to a free-stall barn "A lot of farmers are producing milk in stall barns that are physically wearing and tearing them down," he says

Conlin will address these issues and others during the "Business Viability Session" of the Mid-Atlantic Dairy Management Conference For more information or a registration brochure, contact Beth Moore, conference coordinator, at (717) 375-2639 or email beth@innernet net

Environmental Issues On Tap

CHAMBERSBURG (Franklin Co.) — A major environmental concern for dairy farmers is nutrient pollution of surface water, but many farmers are unaware of cost-effective techniques available to reduce losses of these nutrients from farms, according to Katharine Knowlton, research scientist at Virginia Tech Department of Dairy Science.

"Environmentalists, scientists, farmers and the public are increasingly concerned about the amount of phosphorus in surface water such as lakes, rivers and streams," says Knowlton, who is researching the impact of phosphorus in dairy feeding programs on the resulting excretion – manure – and on the environment.

Knowlton, scheduled to speak at the Mid-Atlantic Dairy Management Conference Feb. 24-25 in Camp Hill, says dairy farmers have a real opportunity to reduce surface water pollution by changing their feeding programs.

"Most farmers feed phosphorus in excess of current requirements," Knowlton says. "It is commonly believed that overfeeding phosphorus reduces reproduction problems in the dairy herd. However, there is no research to support such a benefit."

In recent years, excess phosphorus in water has been pinpointed as a cause of algae blooms and fish kills. "We thought if we controlled soil erosion we could control the amount of phosphorus leaving the farm," Knowlton says. "But we've discovered that phosphorus runoff can occur even without erosion in intensive animal production areas."

Decreasing the amount of phosphorus in feed rations by 20 percent to 30 percent will decrease the amount of phosphorus excretion per animal by the same proportion. this directly reduces the amount of phosphorus that needs to be land applied, reducing the risk of phosphorus runoff.

The obvious beneficiary of such action is the environment, but farmers benefit, too. "Farmers will benefit by reduced feed costs," Knowlton says, adding that phosphorus is the most expensive feed ingredient. Savings on feed costs could total $2,500 per year for a 100-cow farm.

And for farmers facing environmental regulations in the next five to six years, there is an added benefit of reducing phosphorus in feed. "If we begin making changes now, it will be easier to meet the phosphorus-based regulations when they are imposed," Knowlton says.

Knowlton will talk in more detail about "Feeding Management to Reduce Nutrient Loading" at the Mid-Atlantic Dairy Management Conference. For more information or a registration brochure, contact Beth Moore, conference coordinator, at 717-375-2639 or beth@innernet.net.

Growth In Dairy Business Requires Changes On Farm

CHAMBERSBURG (Franklin Co) — Dairyman Tom Frey of Frey Dairy Farms Inc. in Conestoga, Lancaster County, is no stranger to change. In fact, he currently is building a new freestall barn and milking parlor expected to be completed by late March 1999.

With the help of 20 full-time employees, Frey milks 1,000 cows and farms 900 acres. Soon after construction is completed in March, he will begin milking three times a day. He expects a 6 percent to 8 percent growth in cow numbers through home-raised replacements.

Frey readily admits that the approach he has taken to managing his farm operation usually has been in response to a change in circumstances or conditions. "I'm in it for the long term," he says of dairy farming. "If I'm not willing to change, then I would eventually go out of business."

That's the philosophy Frey will share with other dairy management farmers and industry leaders at the Mid-Atlantic Dairy Management Conference Feb. 24-25 in Camp Hill.

Frey began farming with his brother, Clifton, in 1987 following the death of their father. In 1992, while constructing a 600-cow freestall barn, Clifton left the operation and Tom began buying out his brother's share of the business. This change "forced the way I do things," Frey says

In response, Frey went from three-times-a-day milking to milking more cows twice a day. He also sold some peripheral real estate and slowed down aggressive debt payments at the bank.

Other changes, particularly in operations management, were to follow. These included custom cropping, custom manure handling and custom calf raising. The number one reason for these changes, Frey says, is labor.

Frey will talk about these changes and other plans for his dairy operation at the Mid-Atlantic Dairy Management Conference. For more information or a registration brochure, contact Beth Moore, conference coordinator, at 717-375-2639 or beth@innernet.net.

PA 4-H Horse Forum: Preparing Youth Leaders

Pat Comerford
Extension Horse Program Coordinator
The Pennsylvania State University

UNIVERSITY PARK, (Centre Co.) - Did you know that over 6,500 youth and hundreds of volunteer leaders are involved in 4-H horse projects in Pennsylvania each year? To help meet the needs of equine industry, the second Pennsylvania 4-H Horse Forum will be held at the Days Inn Penn State and The Pennsylvania State Universityís Ag Arena in State College on March 5 ñ 7, 1999.

The conference is designed for 4-H members, 14 years of age and older, parents, volunteer leaders and extension agents involved with 4-H horse projects in Pennsylvania. The forum is designed to strengthen communication and leadership skills as well as provide current information on horsemanship and equine management techniques. Seminars, educational displays and horse demonstrations by state and national specialists are part of the program.

The Forum will begin with registration from 5:00 to 7:00 p.m. on Friday, March 5, followed by a welcome from Dr. Terry Etherton, Head, Department of Dairy and Animal Science at Penn State. Pat Comerford, Penn State Extension Horse Program Coordinator, will present an update of 1999 4-H horse programs and events.

Dr. Kevin Elko, Consulting Psychologist for the Pittsburgh Steelers and Penguins, will follow with the keynote lecture at 8:30 p.m., entitled, "Let's Get Motivated!"

Saturday's sessions include lectures, horse demonstrations, roundtable discussions and social activities. Dr. Sarah Ralston, international authority on equine nutrition from Rutgers University, will present two seminars on equine feeding management. Dr. Ralston will provide information for feeding the older horse and horses used in competitive events.

Ms. Jeanie Griffiths, Extension Horse Specialist from Cornell University, will discuss development of positive attitudes and effective communication in 4-H horse programs. Mr. Fred Rudy, Extension Agent from Dauphin County, will introduce creative ideas for involving urban youth and youth that do not own horses in 4-H horse activities. Mrs. Lynda Kerins, 4-H leader from Mercer County, will offer tips on dressing for the show ring on a budget.

Ms. Kathy Brown, manager of Ka-My Stables in Bellefonte, will present techniques for training the trail horse. Mr. Ward Studebaker, Penn State University Horse Farm Manager, will demonstrate training of the horse under saddle.

Dr. Tammy Eichstadt, veterinarian from Greenville, will provide a horse health update. Mr. Brian Egan, Penn State Extension Assistant, will discuss horse behavior as related to training and handling. Saturday afternoon sessions will conclude with idea sharing and roundtable discussions for leaders, parents and 4-H members.

On Sunday, a panel of equine industry representatives will provide detailed information on career opportunities in the equine industry. Katie Passerotti of Erie County and Vanessa Polk and Megan Sly of Montgomery County will present opportunities for 4-H members in hippology and communication contests.

Extension Agents, Donna Zang of Butler County and Laura Watts of Cumberland County will provide information on computer resources in the horse world. The forum will conclude with Mr. Eganís demonstration of early training techniques for the young horse increased to the point of creating surpluses.

Some dairy producers, especially those who have expanded their individual operations and adopted increased management efficiencies, have supported the elimination of government price supports, expressing concern that federal support pricing of milk keeps marginal producers in business, provides an incentive for creating surplus production, and depresses the profit potential.

When profit potential for any industry is minimized, it makes it more difficult to recruit youth into the industry, and makes it more difficult to attract lenders. It also depresses the value of resources used by that industry.

With regard to the dairy industry, self-described consumer advocacy groups have rallied against price controls that support dairy farmers, claiming it unfairly burdens taxpayers, both federally and locally.

However, in the past, expressed counter-arguments to consumer-advocacy arguments have mainly been that failing to ensure local dairy production and processing could easily lead to dependence upon unreliable, out-of-area sources, and ultimately cause much higher prices for schools and consumers.

The initial creation of the Northeast Interstate Dairy Compact had caused national concern, especially from Midwestern producers. The fear was that because there has been little growth in the consumption of Class I milk products, any additional milk production within Compact areas could increase marketings for Class II and Class III uses.

Dairy prices received by farmers reflect all uses of milk. Increases in lower-paying uses depresses the overall price received by farmers.

The dairy industry has been divided over national and regional policy.

According to a news release, Rep. Bunt stated, "With passage of Compact legislation in New York, New Jersey and Maryland, it is critical that the House committee give this issue immediate consideration.

"Thoroughly exploring all aspects of this issue will help us to make a decision that is in the best long-term interests of all segments of our dynamic dairy industry and all citizens of the commonwealth," he said.

"I fully realize that there is tremendous pressure from dairy groups for Pennsylvania to immediately pass this enabling legislation; however, joining the Compact would significantly change our dairy policy and affect us all well into the future.

"We dare not take this step lightly. I encourage all interested parties to testify at the hearing."

Marketing, Entrepreneurial Skills Workshop

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Home-grown examples of Pennsylvania'a entrepreneurial and marketing talent will highlight the Fifth Annual New and Beginning Farmer Workshop on March 13, 1999 at the Holiday Inn, Hershey-Harrisburg.

Pennsylvania Agriculture Secretary Samuel E. Hayes Jr. is to welcome workshop participants to the day-long event scheduled from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

Master Farmers Samuel and Beverly Minor from Washington, Pennsylvania will keynote the workshop describing how they developed their dairy farm into a diverse agricultural enterprise that supports both their family and the local community.

Today, the couple manages The Springhouse, a farm market and a restaurant that is open 361 days a year.

Following the keynote address, smaller breakout sessions are to help beginners choose an enterprise, develop a business plan, determine how they can finance the start-up venture, and select a mentor.

Pennsylvania vegetable growers George and Melanie DeVault and dairy farmer, Jessie Singleton, Kim Seely, and Clair Hershey will tell of their strategies of working into the family farm or how they started from scratch.

Sessions on selling to supermarkets, pick your own, roadside markets, niche markets, farm vacations, value-added and grazing will guarantee beginning farmers ideas on how to get started and succeed in their own farm ventures.

Individuals who are considering farming, who are new to farming, or who want to change their enterprise are encouraged to attend.

For more information about the workshop, please call Pennsylvania Farm Link at 717-260-0400.

Registration is required for all persons attending the workshop. The cost is $45 per person or $70 per couple with a $5 discount for registration by February 26, 1999. Lunch is included in the fee.

Grand View Farm Continues Fastnacht Tradition

Kendra Delgato is eager to taste one of the 60 dozen fastnachts that she helped her grandmother and great aunts make.

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

WERNERSVILLE (Berks Co.) — Tuesday was Fastnacht Day. Some people spell it "fasnacht." Some call it Fat Tuesday or Shrove Tuesday.

It's a traditional annual day set aside by thrifty cooks to use up all their fat and sugar in preparation for the Lenten fast, the 40-day period between Ash Wednesday and Easter Sunday.

Regardless of what people call the day, most people know it as the day to indulge in eating doughy treats, which are similar to doughnuts.

Making fastnachts is an old family tradition for Helen Schaeffer of Wernersville, her sister Arlene Zimmerman of Fivepointville, and sister-in-law Patsy Kauffman of Reinholds.

Fastnachts vary in taste, but most claim that the original fastnacht was made from mashed potato dough, formed into a holess square, and fried in lard.

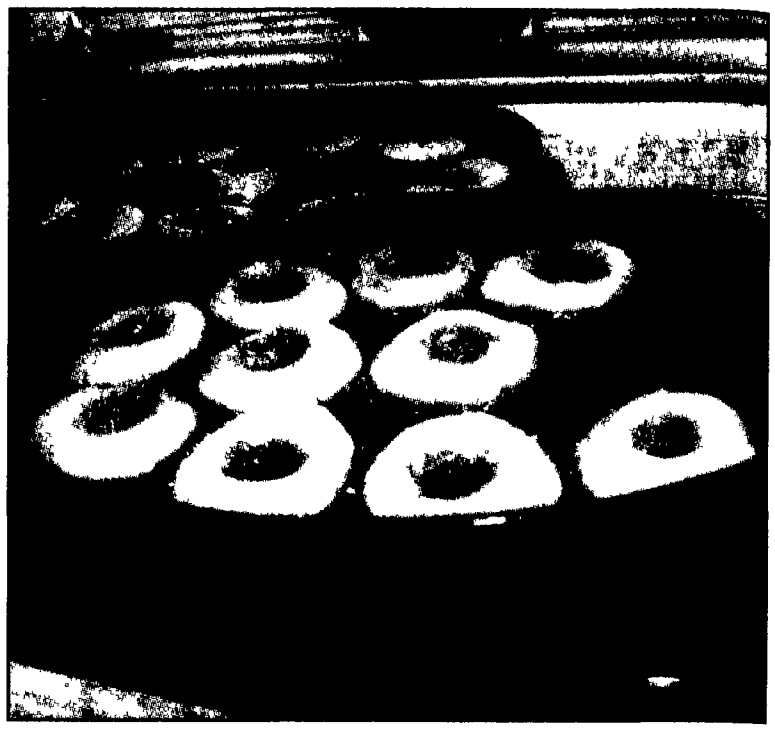
Because of the work involved, many families have stopped making fastnachts. But every one who has ever tasted a fastnacht wants to continue the tradition of eating them on the Tuesday before Ash Wednesday. For this reason, many commercial bakeries are filling the slot. Commercially-made fastnachts generally don't have the same taste and texture of the homemade varieties.

Although the trio do not share the secret family recipe passed down from an aunt, Helen did say that she thinks theirs taste the best because they are made with mashed potatoes unlike many reproductions. She also fries them in lard, just as generations of cooks before her have done. And dips them in glaze unless requested otherwise. The trio's fastnachts also have a hole to make it easier to fry, drain, and dip.

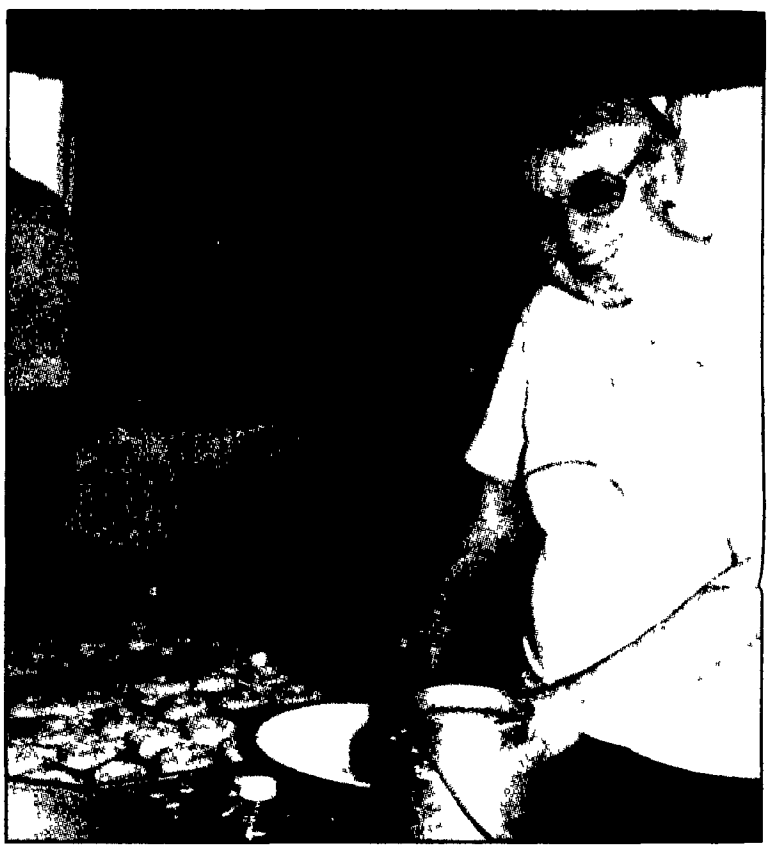
Mixing up a batch of yeast dough, letting it rise, rolling it out, cutting out the round forms, and letting the dough rise again before deep frying is no easy task.

Helen arose at 3:50 a.m. on Tuesday to milk cows and cook a hot breakfast for her family before she started working on the fastnacht project. The trio with the help of Arlene's 3-year-old granddaughter Kendra ended up with about 60 dozen fastnachts to provide friends, neighbors, family

(Turn to Page B3)



Fastnachts vary in taste and appearance, but these are made with mashed potatoes and fried in lard, which is believed to be typical of most old-time fastnacht recipes passed down through families.



Helen's day began at 3:50 a.m. After she milked the cows and made a hot breakfast for the family, she took time for the traditional fastnacht baking day held in her home.

Pasty Kauffman, Arlene Zimmerman, and Helen Schaeffer show off a tray of their scrumptious fastnachts. The trio made 60 dozen to share with friends, neighbors, and family members.

Dinner Fit For The Governor

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — It was a dinner fit for the governor. Although Gov. Thomas Ridge did not attend the meal given in his honor, he sent his appreciation.

About 125 guests also appreciated the dinner, held last Saturday.

The dinner, provided by the Lancaster County Poultry Association, was held at the Water Street Rescue Mission, Lancaster.

John Mattilio, president of the association, said that the dinner was given in lieu of presenting gifts to the governor during the State Farm Show. Traditionally all agricultural commodity groups present gifts to the governor. But, three years ago, the Poultry Association decided that sharing food with the needy would be more beneficial than giving poultry products to an office that is showered with gifts, which are nice but not needed.

Providing a meal for the homeless and needy through the mission, allows the Poultry Association to share its product with a segment of the population who really needs it.

This year the menu included baked chicken, tossed salad, cooked carrots, macaroni and potato salad, mashed potatoes, fruit salad, ice cream, and beverages.

Pennfield Farms donated the chicken, Turkey Hill Dairy donated the ice cream and beverages, with the remainder of the items financed by the Poultry Association.

Board members served the dinner. Mattilio said that he is pleased that so many board members come in on a Saturday to serve the meal. Serving the meal this year were Nelson Groff, Roni Clark, Jay Shannon, Carl Rohrer, Dan Heller, Rich Roenigh, and Dr. John Schwartz.

Serving a dinner to the needy doesn't produce the political clout attached to mingling with those surrounding the governor, but the gesture has its own rewards.

"We enjoy helping the community," Mattilio said.

members, and strangers who call requesting a dozen because they heard about them somewhere a long the line.

"I had others, but your's are the best," is a typical and oft-heard comment.

To make 60 dozen, they used 55 pounds of flour, 20 pounds of potatoes, and 20 pounds of powdered sugar for the glaze. Lard from butchering on the farm was used for frying.

"We teach them young," said Helen Schaeffer, who rolls out the dough while 3-year-old Kendra watches.

The Schaeffer's barn built in 1849 features stone gable ends, five cupolas, six dormers with vented shafts, and a built-in 30-foot high silo. The functional barn is on the National Register of Historical Places and has been pictured in numerous newspapers, magazines, and books pertaining to historical interests.

On Fastnacht Day, the Schaeffers' table is stretched the length of the kitchen. Each participant stirs up a batch of dough the night before so the dough can rise overnight. After rolling out the dough, it is cut with an antique doughnut cutter passed down through the family.

The cut-out fastnachts are placed in plastic flats, which Arlene had salvaged from a tomato shipment at a produce market where she works. The large stone fireplace offers the ideal hearth on where to stack the flats. The heat from the fireplace enhances dough rising.

Each sister has her own responsibilities. Arlene watches the two roasting pans filled with lard that bubbles on the stove. She places the fastnachts in the boiling lard until browned on one side, flips them, and when the second side is browned, the fastnachts are pulled from the hot oil, and drained momentarily.

Then it's Patsy's turn to dip the hot fastnachts into the glaze, which had been prepared by Helen. She places them on a dowel rod balanced across a large pan to enable the fastnachts to cool and the excess glaze to drip off. After a few moments, the fastnachts are placed on large commercial bakery trays passed down from Arlene's mother. The trays are placed on tables set up in the long enclosed porch until completely cooled and ready for Helen to package.

While the trio work, they occasionally glance out the kitchen windows which face the barn built in 1849. It is on the National Register of Historical Places and has been pictured in numerous newspapers, magazines, and books with historical interests.

Grand View Farm Dairy has a fascinating history. At one time, it was part the South Mountain Resort Grand View Santorium, which was touted as a vacation spot with health pure water, clean air, and "grand in every sense of the word." The dairy operation supplied fresh dairy products and produce to the health resort.

Its 611 acres were sold in five different parcels in 1929. At that time Helen's husband Adam's grandfather purchased the barn, the log house, and 100 acres.

The handsome barn has stone gable ends, five cupolas, six dormers with vented shafts, and a built-in 30-foot high silo.

The most amazing thing is that the barn has retained its historical beauty while updated for use as a functional barn. The Schaeffers have made numerous repairs to maintain the cupolas, replaced the roof twice, and installed new water lines and pipeline milking.

Adam was seven years old when his grandfather purchased the farm and his family moved on it. "There's a big difference between then and now. Grandfather started farming with three cows," Adam said.

After Adam's marriage to Helen they took over the historical farm until recently, when they passed the farm onto their four adult children, Albert, Mary Ann (Grube), David, and Brian. Helen and Adam continue to live in the original log farm house, which has been added on to and structurally changed several times since the Schaeffers purchased it. They have retained the underground arch cellar for food storage and still use the smokehouse for their annual butchering event.

Athough the couple's two sons are in charge of the operation, it doesn't mean the retired couple no longer farm. Adam likes to use his 1938 tractor and a 1912 wagon around the farm. Helen continues twice a day milking.

"My son said that he and I will retire together," Helen said with a hearty laugh.

He's only 32, so it sounds as if Helen has many more years of to milk the 57-head herd composed of mostly Holsteins, some Ayrshires, Guernseys, and Brown Swiss.

"Since the children took over, we can take a few vacation days so I don't mind being tied down with milking otherwise," Helen said.

She also daily prepares a hot breakfast and lunch for her sons so they don't need to waste time traveling back and forth between their homes and the farm.

One son has purchased the adjoining parcel of land that had the original saw mill on it. The sons also rent additional acreage to raise crops for the herd.

Extended family members gather together on the farm for the annual butchering event, but Helen, Arlene, and Patsy are depended upon to produce fastnachts for the family.

"Making fastnachts wouldn't be so bad if it was the only thing I had to do all day," Helen said. For her, it means sandwiching it between twice a day milking and preparing meals for the family.

Arlene and Patsy have it a bit easier. Arlene and her husband Martin recently moved off their farm to Fivepointville, but they continue to raise produce for marketing. Patsy and her husband sold their dairy herd in recent years but continue to truck farm in Reinholds.

After the fastnachts are packaged, there is clean-up to do. With so many pots and pans, trays, and utensils, cleaning up is a major undertaking.

"It's a lot of work and I wouldn't do it alone, but working together makes it fun," said Helen.

Patsy, Arlene, and 3-year-old Kendra agreed.

Patsy Kauffman dips the hot fastnachts into glaze and places them on a dowel rod to cool and drain off the excess glaze.

Dairy Promotional Materials Available

CARLISLE (Dauphin Co.) — A new promotional material order form is available from the American Dairy Association/ Dairy Council Middle Atlantic for dairy farmers and others interested in local dairy promotion in the Middle Atlantic region.

The order form features existing items, including cow erasers, key chains, and recipe brochures, along with some new promotion pieces, such as luggage tags, milk carton erasers, and a "Fun on the Farm" activity book.

With school tours and summer events quickly approaching, local promoters can use the order form as a resource for dairy promotion activities. The form includes dairy promotion tips and lists suggestions for ordering materials targeted at certain age groups. Also included is information on free promotional material policies for dairy farmers who fund ADA/DC programs.

To request a promotional material order form from ADA/DC Middle Atlantic, contact ADA/DC's headquarters office at 1-800-220-6586, extension 10.

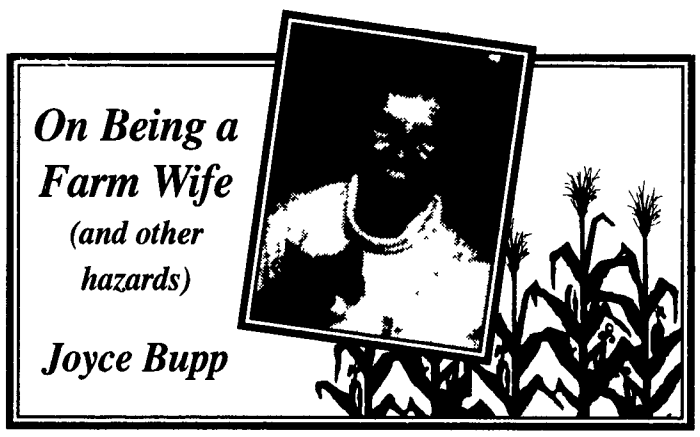
Up Time All the time



Ashes to ashes, dust to dust... An old friend is gone.

The end has been a long time in coming. Physical deterioration set in long ago, becoming more pronounced in recent years. Last time I took a good, long look at my friend, it was evident that time was running out.

Coming home from a several-day meeting last week, I was startled by coming face to face with the demise. Amputation was complete and all that remained was a ragged, raw stump.

The rest of the maple tree is headed for the firewood pile.

It was at least two or three years ago when we first noticed that a giant section of one of the several old maple trees around the house no longer sprouted leaves. This barren half of the old tree hung out over the northeast corner of the house, right over the chimney.

Since then, the ground at the foot of the sturdy trunk of the 70 or so feet high tree has been constantly littered with pieces of dead, fallen bark. Absent of its covering,the exposed, dead wood turned a weathered, silvery shade. and a closer inspection revealed that some small sections of the old tree were not much healthier.

While the trunk below the main branch split remained solid and firm, and a portion of the tree spread leaves and rendered us shade these last few summers, the graying, dead section loomed ominously over the house and chimney. With each passing season, I grew more concerned about the possibility of a blizzard, ice storm or gusty thunderstorm sending the giant section of tree crashing into the corner of the house where we slept.

We had even made some casual inquiries into having the section removed, but never got the arrangements completed.

Meanwhile, the squirrels scampered up the threatened trunk—as they have for several years—oblivious to the tree's sickness. From it, they could launch journeys through the other trees in both directions, or curl up for a nap in the tree's nooks and crannies where large limbs branched off.

Along with its neighbors, the ailing tree had played host to robins and blackbirds and sparrows which nested and perched among the sheltering branches. The dying, gray-shaded half of the tree attracted other birds. One regular visitor in the summer was a flicker, which came to poke and prod and pound at the dying section, seeking tasty tidbits of insects. Downy woodpeckers also came hammering on the dead limbs for whatever insect treats they might yield.

On at least one occasion, the flicker, apparently unsuccessful at gleaning snacks from the dead section, fluttered down from the tree to begin hammering on the side of the cattle trailer parked beneath its shade Come to think of it, we haven't seen that particular bird lately.

Now, all that remains of the once venerable maple is an empty space between its two former neighbor trees and a 30-inch diameter, ragged stump. Circling the stump, like beaches around a mountain island, is a collar of fresh, beige sawdust, calling card of the chain saw. Short pieces of small limbs remain scattered across the yard and the road where the tree came to rest when they felled it Like the larger portion of the downed tree, they will serve their final purpose in the woodstove or toasting up hot dogs with the grandkids next summer.

Not a bad ending to a life, if you think about it A sort of donor card for a living plant, to be used in a purposeful recycling. And left behind is a stump on which the squirrels will pause, flicking their tails, and some of the houseplants can summer outside while remaining in the shade. Might even be a handy "table" for the grandsons to park their toy farm equipment on.

Ashes to ashes...dust to dust.

Dinner In A Dish

Ideas for one dish meals abound.

One of the most popular is stir-frying. Searing meat, vegetables, and sauces over high heat seals in flavors and nutrients, caramelizes sugars, and evaporates excess juices. Serve stir-frying combinations over rice or noodles for a satisfying one-dish supper.

Stir-fry is easy to prepare once you have a basic understanding of timing, sequence, and heat levels. Here are some stir-frying tips from the Minnesota Canola Council:

• Prepare all ingredients before you start to cook (marinate meat, cut vegetables, measure ingredients, and make sauce).

• Blanch vegetables such as broccoli, cauliflower, and asparagus before stir-frying to ensure quick, even cooking.

• Grated carrot cooks much quicker than diced carrot.

• Read the recipe and assemble ingredients to prevent sticking.

• If done properly, stir-frying is a very nutritious cooking method. Most stir-fry recipes require only 1-2 tablespoons of oil.

• If your stir-fry requires more liquid, add a small amount of water or broth to complete cooking. Although not a strict stir-frying practice, this method will keep your stir-frying low in fat.

• One tablespoon cornstarch combined with a bit of water at the end of cooking thickens the sauce and gives vegetables a glossy appearance.

SMOKED PORK STEW

2¾ cups chicken broth
1½ cups water
4 medium carrots, cut in 1-inch pieces
3 medium onion, quartered
½ cup chopped parsley flakes
2 bay leaves
¼ teaspoon dried marjoram leaves
¼ teaspoon ground black pepper
6 large potatoes, cubed
2 cups green beans, chopped
12-ounces boneless smoked center-cut loin pork chop

In a large pot, combine broth, water, carrots, onions, celery, parsley, bay leaves, marjoram, and pepper. Bring to a boil over high heat. Cover, reduce heat and simmer for 20 minutes.

Add potatoes and beans with pork chops. Raise heat until contents start to cook and reduce heat to a simmer. Cook stirring until beans and potatoes are soft. Remove bay leaves before serving.

Yields: 4-5 servings.

BEAN AND PASTA SKILLET

4-ounces Canadian bacon slices, cut in strips
1 medium onion, chopped
1 large rib celery, thinly sliced
1 clove garlic pressed
2 teaspoons olive oil
15½ -16-ounce can stewed tomatoes
1 teaspoon dried thyme
1 teaspoon dried basil leaves
1 bay leaf
⅛ teaspoon black pepper
19-ounce can white cannellini or great northern beans, drained, rinsed
1½ cups fusilli pasta, cooked according to package directions
1 teaspoon corn starch
2 tablespoons cold water
Garnish with parsley sprigs

In a 12-inch nonstick skillet, combine bacon, onion, celery, garlic, and olive oil. Cook over medium heat, stirring frequently for 8 minutes or until onions are soft.

Add tomatoes, thyme, basil, bay leaf, and pepper. Stir to mix thoroughly. Stir in beans, and continue to beat.

Mix corn starch and water; stir into mixture. Stir until thickened. Stir in pasta and serve. Yields: 4 servings.

B. Light

SPANISH SALSA RICE

19-ounce can tomatoes, drain, reserving juice
Water
Hot pepper sauce
1 cup white rice
2 tablespoons canola oil
2 cloves garlic, crushed
2 tablespoons chili powder
½ each: red, orange, yellow, and green pepper, finely diced
½ cup fresh cilantro, chopped
1 medium tomato, diced
2 stalks celery, finely chopped
2 teaspoons lime juice

Rice: Add water to reserved juice to make 2 cups. In large saucepan, combine liquid, tomatoes, and 3 dashes pepper sauce; add rice. Reduce heat and cook rice, approximately 20 minutes. Remove from heat; let stand.

Salsa: Heat oil in non-stick wok or skillet. Add garlic, chili powder, 3 dashes pepper sauce, peppers, cilantro, tomato, and celery. Stir-fry 3-4 minutes; add lime juice. Heat throughly. Serve on a bed of rice. 6 servings.

4-ounces shredded mozzarella cheese
4 cups tomato juice
1 to 2 teaspoons Italian seasonings
¼ teaspoon garlic powder
1 teaspoon salt
¼ cup brown sugar

Brown ground beef and onions. Sprinkle with salt and pepper. Reduce heat and drain fat. Spread uncooked noodles over meat. Top with cottage cheese. Mix tomato juice and seasonings. Pour over cottage cheese. Do not stir. Put lid on skillet and simmer until noodles are done, about 30 minutes. Put mozzarella cheese on top and return lid, about 5 minutes until cheese melts. It's easy to make and delicious.

SALISBURG STEAK WITH ONION GRAVY

1 egg
1 can condensed French onion soup, undiluted, divided
½ cup dry bread crumbs
¼ teapsoon salt
Pinch pepper
1½ pounds ground beef
1 tablespoon all-purpose flour
¼ cup water
¼ cup ketchup
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
½ teaspoon prepared mustard
6 cups hot cooked egg noodles

In a large bowl, beat egg. Stir in one-third cup soup, bread crumbs, salt and pepper. Add beef, mix gently. Shape into six oval patties. Brown in a skillet over medium heat for 3-4 minutes on each side. Remove and set aside; discard drippings. In the skillet, combine flour and water until smooth; add ketchup, Worcestershire sauce, mustard, and remaining soup. Bring to a boil. Cook and stir 2 minutes. Return patties to skillet. Cover and simmer for 15 minutes or until meat is no longer pink. Serve patties and gravy over noodles. Garnish with parsley if desired.

Yields 6 servings.

SWEET PEPPER STIR-FRY

2 tablespoons canola oil
2 cloves garlic, crushed
2 teaspoons grated fresh ginger
½ each: yellow, red, and orange pepper, sliced
½ cup snow peas, wash and remove ends
14-ounce can baby corn
10-ounce can sliced water chestnuts
1 apple, diced (drizzle with lemon to preserve color
14-ounce can pineapple chunks, drain, reserving juice
½ cup dried cranberries, rinsed
½ head Chinese celery cabbage, chopped
6 cups cooked rice noodles

Sauce:
2 teaspoons honey
3 tablespoons soy sauce
⅓ cup packed brown sugar
3 tablespoons white vinegar
Reserved pineapple juice
¼ cup water
3 teaspoons cornstarch
Dash ground cloves and cinnamon

In small bowl, combine sauce ingredients; set aside. In a nonstick wok or skillet, heat oil. Add garlic and ginger; stir 30 seconds. Add peppers, snow peas, baby corn, water chestnuts, apple, pineapple, and cranberries. Stir fry until crisp but heated through, about 3-4 minutes. Add sauce, heat until it thickens. Reduce heat and add celery cabbage. Stir. Serve immediately on a bed of noodles. 6 servings.

Canola oil's high smoke-point makes it ideal for stir-frying. Research indicates oil drains more thoroughly than melted shortening, leaving foods 5- to 10-percent lower in calories than foods fried in shortening.

Canola oil also holds the distinction of being "nature's healthies oil," containing the lowest saturated fat content of any edible oil. Canola oil, which has a mild taste and velvety texture, has no sodium, no preservatives, and no cholesterol.

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

Some people tell me that they like to read of "time gone by" and by this time I guess I'm qualified to tell about those times: especially with the help of my father's 1919 and 1920 account book.

My parents were married in 1918 but they each lived with their parents for the first year until a farm was purchased. They started on a shoestring — so to speak. When my father helped his father he was paid three dollars a day. His county and road tax was $42. Today we pay thousands and thousands.

It appears that he made a record of every penny that he spent. Toll for driving on the road was 6¢, 7¢, or even 25¢. A haircut was 10¢, use of the telephone 5¢, movies 7¢, candy 10¢, piece of chalk 5¢, castor oil 15¢, and two bolts 6¢.

Some bigger expenses were tobacco paper $2.38, clover seed $33.50, doctor $15, track hangers $15.69 and radiator and pipe $13.

His income came from selling steers, tobacco, and wheat. Other smaller items sold were honey, potatoes, and tomatoes. A few pigs were bought and some were sold and others butchered.

He went to a local mill for feed and to have corn ground for mush. That mush and meat pudding were staples in our home as we had it for breakfast. In later years they bought shredded wheat or corn flakes. Now the array of cereals is endless. Oats and bran were purchased at the mill to feed the animals.

I remember walking the horses to the blacksmith shop. His account book records 25¢ for each shoe for Ben and Fred. Hired boys lived nearby. My parents eventually had seven girls, and they were paid one dollar a day. When we girls grew older, we were the help he needed in his 15 acres of tobacco.

It seems that the small farmer is still pinched for money. If he works hard, he can eat well, but his bank account is not fat.

Beef Club Elects Officers

The Berks County 4-H Beef Club held the first meeting of the new year on Jan. 26. Thirty-one returning members welcomed five new members and elected officers at their reorganizational meeting.

Kelly Dietrich, 16, of Hamburg was elected president. Josh Krill, a senior at Tulpehocken High School, captured the most votes for vice president. Kristy Dietrich, 14, of Hamburg was elected secretary, and Jonathan Bicksler, also 14, of Bethel was elected treasurer. News reporters for the club in 1999 will be Emilie Miller, Womelsdorf, and Cathy Levan, Hamburg. The social chairmen are Nathan Stump and Harrison Reichard, both of Mohrsville.

Some activities the 4-H Beef Club include are a combined livestock and dairy clubs sleepover. The club will also be selling pizzas for the 4-H fund-raiser in March. The club members will be participating in the Kutztown Fair on August 9 - 14 and the Reading Fair on September 20 - 25. The Reading Fair will be held in a new location adjacent to the 4-H Center grounds.

ANSWER — Eleanor Kisner, Muncy, wantedmmm a recipe for Italian Wedding Soup. Thanks to Betty Chaffee, Warren, for sending a recipe.

Italian Wedding Soup

2 whole chicken breasts
4 quarts water
3 cups chopped celery
1 medium onion, chopped
⅓ cup chopped fresh parsley
Pepper to taste
4 chicken bouillon cubes
1 small head escarole or spinach
1 pound lean ground beef
⅓ cup chopped fresh parsley
1 egg, beaten
⅓ grated romano cheese
¼ cup chopped onion
¾ teaspoon salt
¾ teaspoon crumbs
½ cup tiny pasta (alphabets or pastina)
Grated cheese for garnish, if desired.

Rinse chicken. Combine chicken, water, celery, onion, ⅓ cup parsley, pepper, and bouillon cubes in large stockpot. Mix and cook until chicken is tender. Remove chicken to platter, chop and discard skin and bones. Return to stockpot. Bring escarole and enough water to cover to a boil in a large saucepan. Cook 7 minutes and drain. Chop escarole and stir into chicken mixture.

Combine ground beef, pepper, ⅓ cup parsley, 1 egg, ⅓ cup Romano cheese, ¼ cup onion, salt, and bread crumbs in bowl. Shape into ½-inch meatballs.

Bring chicken mixture to a boil, drop in meatballs. Stir in tiny pasta. Simmer about 20 minutes or until meatballs and pasta are finished. Stir occasionally.

Serve in bowls and garnish with grated cheese, if desired.

ANSWER — Linda Garber, New Ringgold, sent in a recipe for a refreshing beverage that had been requested by a reader.

Thirst Quencher

1 small can orange juice concentrate
1 small can lemonade concentrate
¾ to 1 cup sugar

Combine ingredients and add enough ice water to make one gallon.

ANSWER — M. Martin, Ephrata, wanted to know how to make condensed milk. Here are two recipes from Fran Westfall, New Oxford, and from Martha Hurst, Leola. She writes that this recipe has saved her money over the years and her family can't detect the difference.

Condensed Milk

1 cup instant non-fat dry milk
⅔ cup sugar
3 tablespoons butter
⅓ cup boiling water

In a blender, combine all ingredients and blend until smooth. Store in refrigerator until ready to use.

Sweetened Condensed Milk

In the blender, combine:
½ cup butter-flavored shortening
2 cups granulated sugar
2 cups powdered milk
1 cup boiling water

Blend until smooth. Pour in a quart jar and store in the refrigerator. It will thicken as it sets. Makes 3 cups. 1⅓ cups equals a 15-ounce can.

Condensed Milk

½ cup warm water
1 cup plus 2 tablespoons non-fat dry milk
¾ cup granulated sugar

Place warm water in bowl. Add dry milk. Mix. Add sugar until dissolved.

ANSWER — Thanks to Tracy Marchini, Narvon, for sending this answer for Nancy Kring. Tracy said that this recipe handed down from her grandmother, who spend her early married years in Cairnbrook, has been a family favorite as long as she can remember.

Chess Pies

1 cup brown sugar
½ cup butter
2 eggs, beaten
¼ cup milk
1 teaspoon vanilla
¾ cup chopped walnuts
1 cup raisins

Put raisins in a small saucepan, add enough water to cover raisins. Cook, covered, until raisins are soft and plump. Drain extra water. Mix raisins with remaining ingredients.

For pastry use your favorite recipe for a two-crust pie.

Cut circles from the pastry dough to fit either regular or mini muffin tins. Fill muffin cups about three-fourths full with the raisin mixture. Bake in a 400 degree oven until the filling looks set and the crust is lightly browned.

Conservancy Exceeds Annual Appeal

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) – The Lancaster County Conservancy's 1998 annual appeal: Preserving the Balance in Lancaster County exceeded its $55,000 goal to protect an additional 230 acres of natural open space in Lancaster County.

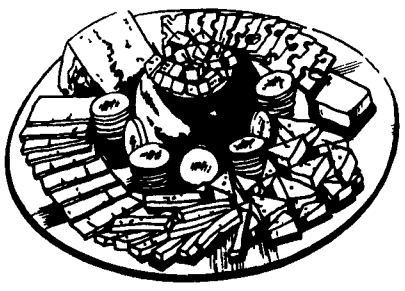
This is the second year in a row that The Conservancy has been able to meet and exceed its goal. The Conservancy raised 144 percent of its goal or $79,000. Using the same amount of $240 by which the Conservancy can protect open space land, that would translate into slightly more than 329 acres that may now be protected.

Barry L. Spangler, director of advancement for The Conservancy, stated that, "it all began with an extraordinarily diverse team who was willing to roll up their sleeves and contribute in whatever way they could to help The conservancy: whether it was the chairman and president of a major area bank, the officers and members of The Conservancy's board of directors, financial supporters, members of the organization, retired senior citizens, or college students -they were responsible for the organization's success!"

The Honorary Chair of this year's appeal was John E. Stefan, chairman and president of Bank of Lancaster County, N.A.

The Appeal raised $10,000 in its phonathon. Spangler stated that, "we have a very proactive board of directors who led by their example. With 100% participation, they exceed their own self-imposed goal of $8,000 by more than $1,000."

He commented that, "comprehensive survey recently released by the Hourglass Foundation (as a great service to Lancaster County) indicated that more than 80 percent of Lancastrians want to prevent the continuation of urban sprawl and conserve natural lands. The majority of individuals wanted to save open space but they were unsure of what should be the proper vehicle for accomplishing this daunting task. Well, The Lancaster County Conservancy was established 30 years ago as a non-profit, non-governmental, membership-supported organization dedicated to protecting the dwindling amount of natural open space resources of Lancaster County. It has done so in such an efficient and cost-effective manner that it recently received a citation from the Pennsylvania Senate recognizing the invaluable role The Conservancy has played and is playing."



Land O' Lakes Gears Up For Race Car Sponsorship

ARDEN HILLS, Minn. — For years, Land O' Lakes has held the lead position in the butter market, outpacing its competitors across the country. Now the dairy foods manufacturer is steering its marketing expertise into a race of another kind.

The Land O' Lakes consumer products group in New York/Philadelphia has signed on sprint car driver Steve Wilbur, Mechanicsburg, as part of its "Pennsylvania Proud" marketing campaign. Land O' Lakes is the sole sponsor of Wilbur's racing team, which competes in "super sportsman" races in central Pennsylvania and Maryland.

"We are very excited about this sponsorship," said Dan Tabeling, Land O' Lakes product sales manager. "Sprint car racing is a popular family sport and is a perfect venue for us to promote our products."

The car, painted bright yellow and red, features the Land O' Lakes brand products — LAND O' LAKES® Butter, Alpine Lace® Deli products, and New Yorker® Deli products. It will debut this weekend, Feb. 19-21, at the 21st Annual Motorama Indoor Races and Speed Show at the Farm Show Complex in Harrisburg.

Then it's off to the races as Wilbur begins the 1999 season with opening night on March 20 at Silver Spring Speedway in Mechanicsburg. Wilbur will compete in weekly Saturday night races at Silver Spring and other speedways through October.

A printer by trade, Wilbur, 36, began racing three-wheelers and four-wheelers when he was 16 years old. He then moved on to micro-sprints and street stock cars. Four years ago, he began competing in super sportsman contests, racing his sprint car around quarter-mile and half-mile dirt tracks at speeds of up to 120 miles per hour.

"I like the competition," Wilbur says of racing. "I've been doing it so long I can't imagine not doing it."

Wilbur won his first race at Lincoln Speedway, Hanover, in 1996 and has captured four additional titles since then. He looks forward to his first win in his Land O' Lakes-sponsored car.

"The team would like to thank everyone, from top to bottom, for giving us this chance," Wilbur said. "We're gonna win. We'll make them (Land O' Lakes) proud."

As part of the sponsorship, Wilbur and his car will make appearances at food shows and other promotional events In addition, Land O' Lakes is planning "night at the races" events and other opportunities for the cooperative's customers and dairy farmer members to participate in the sponsorship.

Sprint car driver Steve Wilbur, Mechanicsburg, looks forward to racing his Land O' Lakes sponsored car in local competitions this year.

Land O' Lakes is a national food and agricultural cooperative serving more than 12,000 family farmers in 30 states, including 3,000 dairy producers in the Mid-Atlantic region Land O' Lakes is a leading marketer of dairy products across the U S and serves international customers with a variety of food and animal feed ingredients

Baking And Contests Is Winning Combination

GAY BROWNLEE
Somerset Co. Correspondent

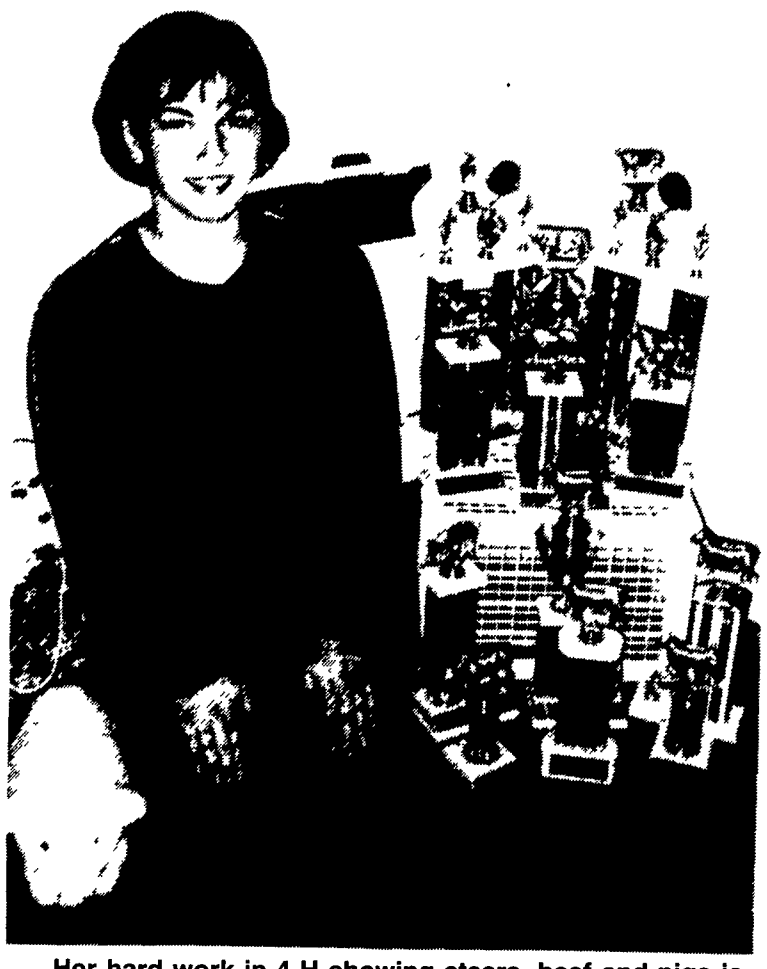
BOSWELL (Somerset Co) — If the saying that a child's play is his work is true, then it's small wonder that Amanda Darr loves to bake cookies and enter them in contests.

At a young age when she barely could reach the door of the refrigerator, if her mother, Metta Darr, was baking, Darr was permitted to mix together in a separate non-breakable bowl, anything she could find.

Catsup, mustard, peanut butter, eggs and so forth, and her dad Shelly Darr, unlike his wife, was always brave enough to eat the ill-tasting results of his little girl's culinary efforts, and praise them to the sky.

At the state farm show in January, Darr's Fudge Caramel Delights placed second in the Hershey's Greatest Cookie Contest.

They not only looked luscious, but the variation of brownies was most appealing to any devotee of chocolate.



Her hard work in 4-H showing steers, beef and pigs is evident in Amanda Darr's trophy collection.

The Blue Heeler with Amanda Darr is from the same people who sold her a steer that captured honors at the Somerset County Beef Jackpot Show several years ago.

"Presentation is primary," she says of visual appeal.

"I do it for fun and for prize money," readily admits Darr, who has entered farm show competition since age 11.

Actually, the prize money, she says is what initially induced her to get involved. Now, however, first place is her goal because so far it has eluded the 16-year-old.

She is looking around for a new inspiration guaranteed next August, to make a tremendous impact in the competitions offered at the Somerset Country Fair.

If winning is her goal, then eligibility must begin at the fair in her own county where a Hershey Bake-off is held.

She recently made a cake fit for the angels with her homemade angel food cake awarded Best of Show. Somewhere nearby, the chocolate chip cookies, fudge and cornbread that she made were also being judged.

The Steaks and Chops 4-H'er who is raising a steer to show has no brothers or sisters, but manages a full career of related activities.

Secretary of her club, news reporter, and photographer for 4-H County Council; participant and winner in Leadline competition; Fashion Revue, Food Revue, Poster contestant and more.

"I raise my own sheep, reports the burgeoning entrepreneur. "I have a ram and two ewes."

The four acres her parents own, however, accommodate Grandfather Mostoller's Haflingers and registered miniature horses, three dogs, several cats, geese and a bird feeding station that's near the house.

That means with dance lessons in tap, ballet and jazz that she has taken for 12 years, since age four, tending the animals and prioritizing her time and commitments is a must.

"Some nights it's tough to rush around and feed animals after school," she admits.

Nevertheless, with a dance group from Laurel Arts, she visits nursing homes. She also attends State Achievement Days, Teen Retreat, Capital Days and the Beef Expo.

She was named grand champion showman at the Somerset County Fair and has had the reserve champion steer.

At the beef jackpot show her steer that garnered honors also led to the unexpected ownership of an irresistible puppy

The people that sold the animal to her just happened to have a Blue Heeler with them and when Darr was overheard adoring the cute little guy, they simply knocked off the price so she could afford to by him.

Three years have added greatly to his size, and the name Bruno seems to fit him well.

The Fudge Caramel Delights that Amanda Darr holds won second place at the Pennsylvania Farm Show in January. They not only look fit for a king they taste it, as well.

"I get him toys at Christmas," reports Darr.

Last year she had a memorable experience when the 4-H student exchange trip took her to Texas.

There were 16 kids and four adults who rented three vans to do some sight-seeing en route to their destination (Crockett County.)

Temperatures in San Antonio soared to 120 degrees, but the Laurel Highlands native of Pennsylvania said she grew accustomed to the heat and was able to walk two miles to see the Little Grand Canyon, her favorite place.

Later, adapting back wasn't as easy as she felt chilly and added more layers of clothes to feel warm again.

Some of the 4-H members also visited the nearby country of Mexico, this time traveling in a taxicab.

Darr said those who went piled ignonimously, like canned sardines, into one vehicle for the journey, but the border-crossing experience was worth the discomfort.

If she has her way, like her mother, Darr will teach elementary children after completing college. It may seem a long way off, but in taking the college preparatory course at the North Star High School, she is facing the future with ambition.

Meanwhile, she will search for ways to seduce the palates of low-resistance chocoholics with new and better versions of brownies and cookies.

"Practice makes perfect," says the determined baker.

CARAMEL CREAM TARTS

DOUGH:

6 ounce pkg. cream cheese, softened.

1 Cup soft butter-flavored Crisco

2 Cups flour

Stir cream cheese and Crisco together. Stir in flour. Form into balls then press down in tart pan to make cups. Bake at 350 degrees for 15 minutes. Remove from pan and let cool. Yield is approximately 48 cups.

FILLING:

14 ounce bag of caramel candies

1/2 Cup evaporated milk

Place in bowl and microwave together just until candies are melted. Remove from microwave oven and stir mixture Using a spoon, fill tart shells.

ICING:

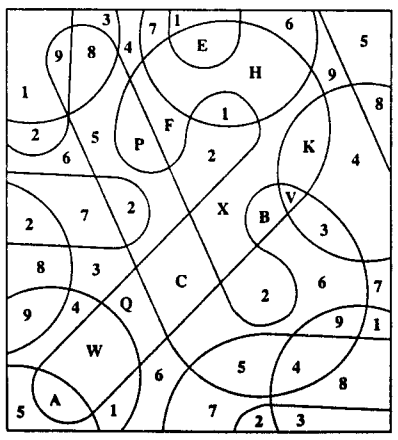
1/2 Cup sugar

1/3 Cup evaporated milk

1 Cup regular Crisco

1 teaspoon vanilla

In bowl, beat ingredients together. When shells and caramel filling are cool, add icing (a homemade tube using rolled wax paper works well) Sprinkle with ground nuts.



Color in each space that contains a letter.

Winter Can Bring Squirrely Visitors To Houses

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — If you hear strange noises coming from the ceiling and walls, or other parts of your house, it may not be the clatter of burglars, but rather some bushy-tailed visitors seeking a winter home.

"Squirrels can find their way into your house through holes, loose sidings or damaged ventilation screens," said Margaret Brittingham, associate professor of wildlife resources in the Penn State School of Forest Resources. "Winter also is the prime time for squirrels to wage war with birds over your bird feeders."

There are four species of tree squirrels frequently seen in Pennsylvania:

• Eastern gray squirrels. Their color varies from black to silver gray, and they generally weigh between 15 and 24 ounces. They are 16 to 24 inches long when full-grown. Their habitat is any area that supplies enough food to sustain a population. Urban backyards are prime habitat for gray squirrels.

• Red squirrels. Their reddish upper body and white underparts make this species easily recognizable. They are small, weighing 4 to 8 ounces and reaching 9 to 13 inches in length. They prefer coniferous forests.

• Flying squirrels. The northern flying squirrel is found in the northern and central counties of Pennsylvania. The southern flying is found throughout the state. They are the smallest squirrels, weighing between 1.5 and 4 ounces and reaching 8 to 10 inches long. Both species have distinctive webs of skin attached to the fore and hind legs. These webs act as a parachute when the animals are gliding from tree to tree. Flying squirrels are the only species active at night.

Damage

Squirrels can cause damage to homes because they gnaw on wood to make openings for nests. Because they are small, flying squirrels often make nests in attics or between walls. They also chew on building insulation and wire insulation. Bare wires can cause a fire or short circuit.

Squirrels also will eat at feeders intended for birds. "Squirrels can climb nearly everywhere and they learn easily. To keep them out of bird feeders, use a feeder that closes the feed dispenser if too much weight is placed on the feeding platform.

Food

Gray squirrels eat wild tree fruit and nuts in the fall and winter and switch to tree buds in early spring. In warm months, they eat fruit, berries and succulent plant materials. If food is scarce, squirrels will eat bark and insects. Red squirrels have similar diets. Flying squirrels are more carnivorous, eating bird eggs, nestlings, insects and other animal matter. Flying squirrels also often occupy birdhouses, particularly bluebird houses.

Damage Control

If squirrels inhabit a home, the homeowner must find where they are getting in, and close or place heavy wire mesh over the opening. If squirrels remain inside the home, they will have to be removed by trapping.

Brittingham recommends trimming trees and limbs 6 to 8 feet away from buildings to prevent the animals from leaping onto roofs. At bird feeder poles and on utility poles, place a 2-foot-wide metal collar about 6 feet off the ground.

Fox and gray squirrels are classified as game animals by the Pennsylvania Game Commission, but property owners do not need a hunting license to control home damage. Brittingham suggests using wire-cage or box traps to capture the squirrels alive. Some preferred baits are apple or orange slices, shelled walnuts or pecans, and peanut butter. Corn and sunflower seeds may also work.

The traps should be checked twice daily. Animals should be released at least five miles away from where they were trapped. To make sure you have a squirrel infestation, check the feces near the trap. Mice feces are small, about the size of an ice-cream sprinkle. Squirrel feces are much bigger.

"For the first few days, tie the doors of the trap open to get squirrels accustomed to feeding in the traps," she says. "Squirrels are very aggressive and have sharp teeth, so always wear heavy gloves when releasing animals and never touch them with your bare hands."

Spanish International Meal Offers Culinary Delight

NEW HOLLAND (Lancaster Co.) — It's time to eat and the table is full—with empanadas, rice and beans, tacos, guiso de pollo (stewed chicken in sauce). Does it sound unusual, or intriguing?

It's what's on the menu for the fifth annual Spanish International Meal at the New Holland Spanish Mennonite Church on Saturday, March 13.

For the fifth time the women's group at this New Holland church is serving a wide variety of foods for the community to enjoy and for the benefit of the church's spiritual outreach programs.

The menu is representative of many Spanish countries included in this church and includes non-spicy foods such as arroz con gandules (yellow rice with peas) from Puerto Rico, quiso do pollo from Honduras, black beans from Cuba, fried ripe platanos from most Caribbean countries, flan from El Salvador, spicy "mole" (chicken baked in a dark sauce that includes peanuts) from Mexico, and peanut soup from Bolivia, along with many other delicious foods.

The meal will be served from 4 p.m. to 7 p.m. and is buffet style. Adult tickets are $7 and children ages 3-10 can eat for $4. Children under 3 are free. Reservations only.

For tickets or information call Grace Miller at (717) 354-9588; Ruth Carrasco (717) 355-9346 evenings; or Soledad Lopez (717) 354-8867 evenings.

Deb Donado, a New Holland advertising production specialist, displays her collection of Corn Classic and Commodity Classic trade show posters. She has a mint copy of every poster in the series.

Whimsical Posters Spark One-Of-A-Kind Collection

NEW HOLLAND (Lancaster Co.) — The walls of New Holland's external communications department are dotted with the bold, colorful posters the department designs and produces to promote New Holland's line of agricultural and construction equipment. But in the office of Deb Donado, an advertising production specialist in the department, there is a collection of posters of a totally different nature. In these posters, cartoon corn and soybean characters fly down ski slopes, sunbathe on the beach, and ride in a sports car.

The series of whimsical posters, produced for the National Corn Growers' Association and the American Soybean Association to advertise the groups' annual Commodity Classic convention and trade show, has been printed courtesy of New Holland for the past decade. Donado has been the printing coordinator for each one. Only 500 of these posters are printed annually, and she has a mint edition of each one hanging in her office. Only Donado, the National Corn Growers' Association, and one or two of their state associations has the complete set.

"I started displaying them in my office because they are really different from the product posters we print," said Donado. "When I hung up the first one, little did I know that I would be starting a collection! I didn't plan it. It just kind of grew."

Donade has been a collector since age 8. She says she still has her childhood stamp collection as well as a group of antique and unusual postcards, and an extensive collection of boxer mugs, figurines and T-shirts, reflecting her love of her three boxer dogs.

The poster series that Donado has collected was originally designed by an advertising agency to promote the National Corn Growers' Association's Corn Classic trade show. The show is held in a different city each year, and the theme of the poster mirrors the unique characteristics of the site.

The first poster in the series, produced in 1990 to advertise the event in Phoenix, Arizona, is one of Donado's favorites. It shows a field of happy corn characters with huge, white cowboy hats and sunglasses. Later posters show the corn characters "jazzing it up" in Kansas City, Missouri, sunbathing in Orlando, Florida, dressed as caballeros in San Antonio, Texas, skiing in Denver, Colorado, and belting out a tune in Nashville, Tennessee, at the "Grand Old Corn Classic."

In 1996, a soybean figure was added when the National Corn Growers' Association and American Soybean Association combined their individual trade shows to create the Commodity Classic show. In 1998, more than 3,700 people attended the show.

"We are trying to make this the premiere event for corn and soybean growers," said Peggy Findley, of the National Corn Growers' Association. "We use the show to provide the growers with the latest information, knowledge and tools to increase the profit of their operation."

The poster for the first Commodity Classic show, held in Phoenix that year, heralded the organizations' united effort with the headline: "How the West was One."

This year, New Holland handled not only the printing, but also the actual graphic design of the poster. The poster, which advertised the 1999 Commodity Classic show in Albuquerque, New Mexico, shows the corn and soybean characters merrily zipping along the region's famous Route 66 in a convertible. Other notable Albuquerque landmarks, including mountains, a hot air balloon, and cable car, appear in the background. the design of the poster is the graphic theme for the entire show, and is also featured on postcards, magazine ads, T-shirts and other items used to promote the event.

"New Holland plays a very active role, not just as an exhibitor in the trade show, -- but also in promoting the convention," says Laura Deters, of the American Soybean Association. "Every year, they've worked on the promotion and sponsored the show's media reception and media room. Other companies help sponsor the Commodity Classic, too, but what New Holland has done on a year-to-year basis is really unique."

The 1999 Commodity Classic Show began February 18 to 20 at the Albuquerque Convention Center in Albuquerque, New Mexico.

2-for-1: A tedder and a rake

The Model 255 rake tedder is a flexible machine – it's the tedder that also rakes.

- Rake a swath into a windrow.
- Rake two windrows into one
- Turn windrows for faster drying
- Move crop away from fences or borders
- Ted a 10 1/2-foot area to fluff up wet, matted-down crop for quick drying

And you can change the "255" from one function to another without tools! Stop by for a demonstration.

Put quality silage under wraps

New Holland round bale wrappers are the low-cost alternative to traditional silage storage—they seal your silage bales in "mini silos". You can harvest silage during peak feed quality, store it with greater flexibility, and feed it more efficiently with less waste.

Choose from two models:

- Model B27P is an economic utility wrapper for medium-volume silage producers
- Model B37P is ideal for custom harvesters or operations wrapping large volumes of bales

Both offer a side-mounted lifting arm, three-belt turntable, two large side-support rollers, and cable controls. The B37P is available with computer controls

Hen-Apple: A Place For Those Who Like 'Old'

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

PALMYRA (Lebanon Co.) — Savor the atmosphere that permeates the Hen-Apple Bed and Breakfast. Admire the 1825 Georgian-style farmhouse with its wide wooden door frames, its hardwood floors, and the unique decorating touches added by Harold and Flo Eckert to the place they call home.

The home is furnished with a combination of antiques, reproductions, and "just plain old stuff," accumulated during the eight years the Eckerts have operated the home as a bed and breakfast.

"It took us three years to restore the home," Flo said of the major renovations undertaken. The home, built by farmer John Ebersole in 1825, had at that time 80½ -acres. Today only two acres have been retained to surround the farm house. But those two acres offer the tranquility of a country setting while being convenient to Hershey, Harrisburg, and Lebanon attractions.

Although the Eckerts prefer the "old" look, they also like the modern conveniences of today's era. They were able to achieve both by retaining the old home and adding a kitchen with up-to-date appliances, a family room, and private quarters fashioned with log walls and wide wooden plank floors.

In the past, Flo sometimes allowed first-time guests to select the room of their choice. "But they always had such a hard time making up their minds, that I now simply assign a room," Flo said.

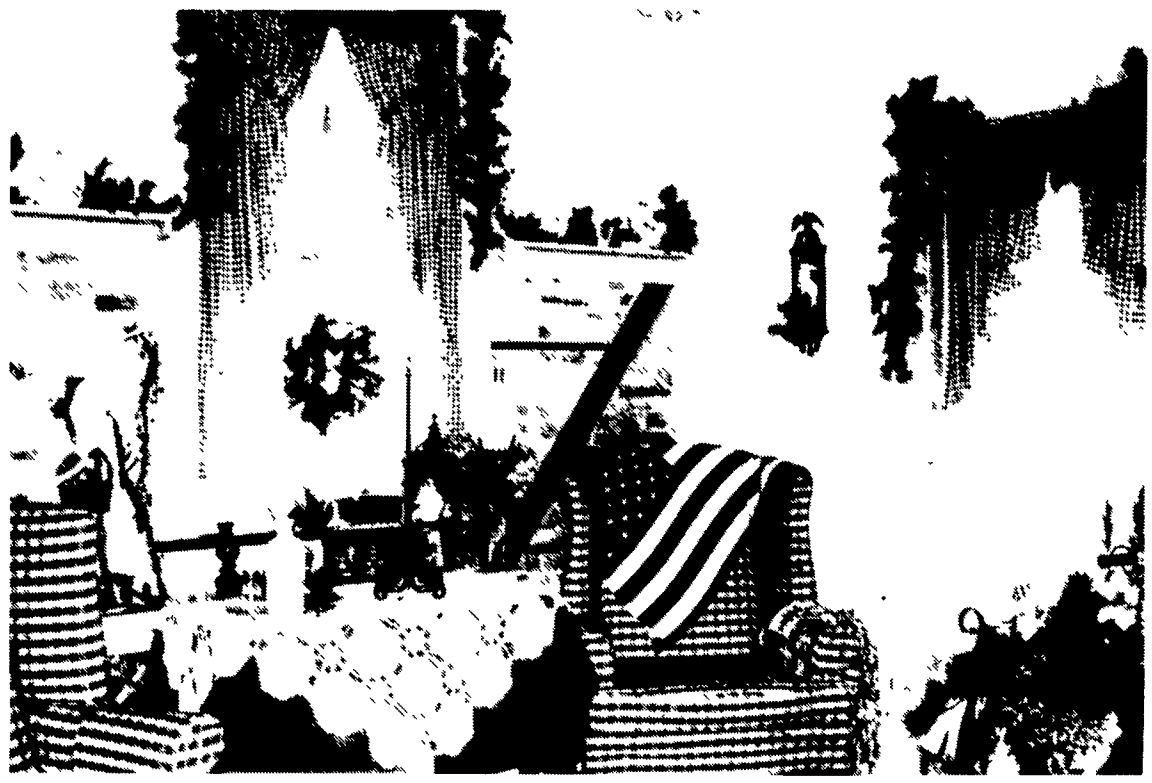
It's easy to see why guests would have a difficult time selecting a favorite room from the six available. Each of the six bedrooms are furnished uniquely, from a lace-topped canopy bed and profuse romantic decor to "Granny's room", furnished in country-quaint.

In one room, garlands of dried flowers garnish yards of flowing sheer organza draped around the windows and the canopy framed-bed. In others, wall stenciling, Pennsylvania Dutch quilts on the bed, hung on the walls, and covering table tops combined with wing back chairs, comfy rockers, and braided rugs or wall to wall carpeting offer a different aura. Each bedroom has its own private bathroom and air conditioning.

Both a parlor and a wicker room are reserved for guests to mingle.

"I liked 'old' since I was young," Flo said. After staying in a bed and breakfast, she was intrigued with the concept of operating a bed and breakfast. She and her husband purchased the property with that in mind. The home was dubbed the Hen-Apple, which in accordance with local forklore means "egg.

Although the Hen-Apple, built in 1825, is a bed and breakfast, it is foremost considered home for Harold and Flo Eckert.



Guests can spend leisure time in this parlour or in the Wicker Room, both reserved for guests only.

"The best thing about having a bed and breakfast is living in an old house and preserving a bit of history to share with guests," said Flo Eckert, innkeeper.

"This is a bed and breakfast, but it's a home first," Flo said. "We close over Christmas and some other times to allow for family time."

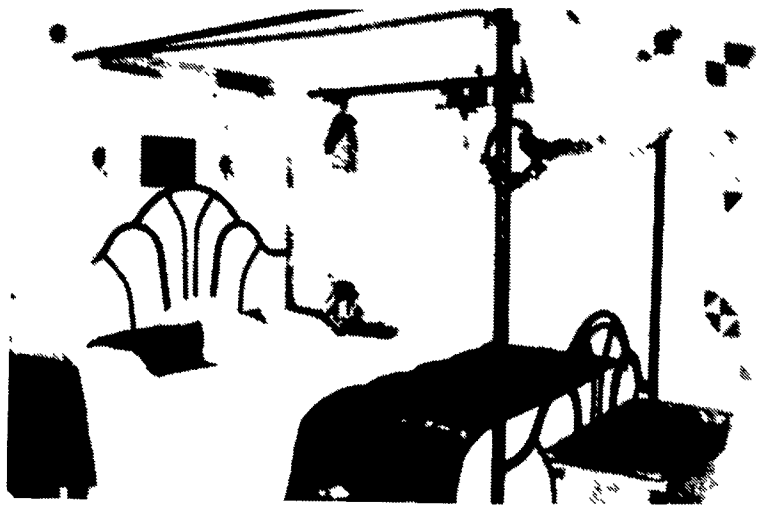
The Eckerts have one adult son. Although he no longer lives at home, his artistic ability is evident in some of the artwork displayed.

Originally, Flo always served a full breakfast to guests, but she found that many preferred more of a continental-style breakfast, so that is the type she serves except for Sunday, when she serves a full breakfast at 9 a.m.

Because Flo serves a large variety of heavenly-tasting homemade breads, muffins, cereals, assorted fruits, and beverages, the continental-style breakfast seems like a full breakfast.

She said, "Everything we do, we try to make special for guests. I

(Turn to Page B15)



Each of the six bedrooms are furnished uniquely. Flo uses her creativity in combining the old with the new.

Notice the log walls. This isn't the original part of the house, but a recent addition made to look old.

Honeymooners often prefer this romantic bedroom with its lace-covered canopy draped with dried flowers.

use a tremendous amount of dishes so that even continental breakfasts looks and feels like a full breakfast."

Flo said that she has an extensive collection of china patterns and likes to use a different set each time she serves guests.

Flo also offers holiday teas, tours, and dinners to local guests who like the intimate atmosphere of a home instead of the business-as-usual distractions prominent in large restaurants. The teas are so popular with the local community that from mid-December through the end of January, Flo has been serving teas and sweets twice a day Monday through Thursday.

Flo handles most of the day to day chores required in operating a bed and breakfast. To handle the hefty laundry load, some part-time help is used.

Harold has a full-time job but helps out with the bed and breakfast.

"He helps with breakfast and is known to fix a bed or two and clean bathrooms. We all do what we have to do," Flo said of the scramble to clean up after departed guests in order to welcome new guests.

If leisure time permits, the Eckerts will linger with guests. "Some guests are just like kindred souls. The most enjoyable guests are usually those who love old houses.

Flo recounts the delightful event of hosting an elderly couple on their wedding night. The storybook romance between the pair began when they were childhood sweethearts. But, as adults, each went their separate ways. She married and had a family. Years later, she was widowed, and when she heard that her former sweetheart had never married, she called him. The groom told the Eckerts, "You know I loved her all these years."

As with any business, the unexpected sometimes happens. One Sunday morning, Flo had just begun to make breakfast when the electrical transformer blew out. With no electricity and a house full of guests, the Eckerts scrambled to serve a satisfying breakfast. Harold picked up hot coffee at a nearby convenience store. Breads from the freezer, mounds of fresh fruit, cold cereal, and juice saved the day.

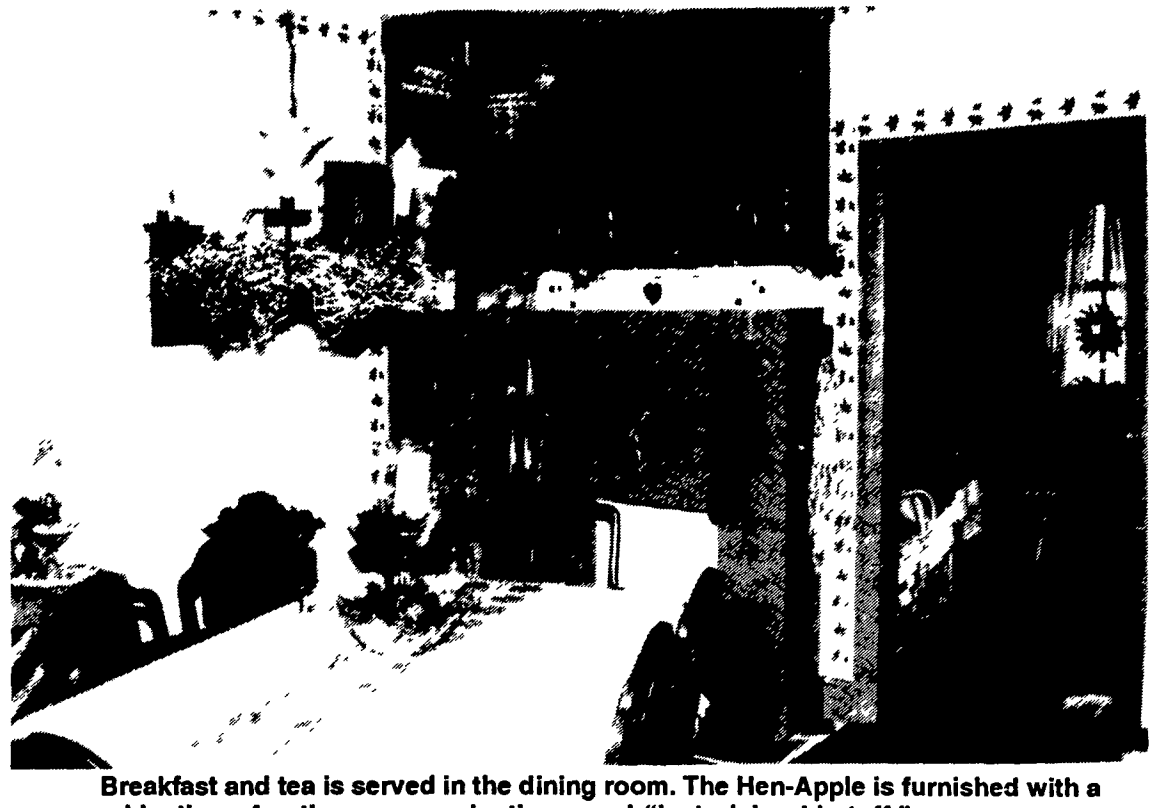
The Eckerts request that no food be eaten in the bedrooms. The Eckerts said that rule was established after some guests spilled coffee on a quilt. Neither is smoking or pets allowed.

Although the bed and breakfast is located near to the Hershey Amusement Park, few of the guests book for that reason because the Eckerts tell prospective guests that the house is not suitable for young children.

Many of the guests are repeat or referrals, but the Eckerts advertize extensively. "It's definitely worth it," Flo said of advertising in bed and breakfast books, travel, and vacationing guides.

She said, "The best thing about owning a bed and breakfast is getting to live in this old house and the opportunity to enjoy preserving a bit of history."

Reservations at the Hen-Apple can be made by writing to B&B, 409 S. Lingle Ave., Palmyra, PA 17078, or calling (717) 838-8282.



Breakfast and tea is served in the dining room. The Hen-Apple is furnished with a combination of antiques, reproductions, and "just plain old stuff."

You ask You answer

This column is for readers who have questions but don't know who to ask for answers.

"You Ask—You Answer" is for non-cooking questions. When a reader sends in a question, it will be printed in the paper. Readers who know the answer are asked to respond by mailing the answer, which will then be printed in the paper.

Questions and Answers to this column should be addressed to You Ask—You Answer, Lancaster Farming, P.O. Box 609, Ephrata, PA 17522. Attention: Lou Ann Good.

Do not send a self-addressed, stamped envelope for a reply. If we receive the answer, we will publish it as soon as possible. Please include your phone number because we sometimes need to contact the person to clarify details. We will not publish your phone number unless you request it.

QUESTION — Kathryn Martin would like to locate a child's book, "What's in the Bakery Truck," which was published in the mid 1970s.

QUESTION — Mrs. David Wadel, Washington Boro, would like to know where to find a copy of one of Edgar Guest's books of poetry.

QUESTION — A reader wants to know where Quincyville, Pa., is located. She also has lyrics to a song, which includes the words "Well spend the day in our model A" and the refrain: "She'll go 15 miles per hour." She wants to know the title of the song and the composer's name, but does not need the lyrics.

QUESTION — Janet Spangler, York Springs, wants to know the names and addresses of seed catalogs that sell a new variety of cantaloupe seed called Athena and the Sangria Watermelon seed. (She isn't certain of the spelling for the varieties).

QUESTION — Wayne Bishop, Doylestown, writes that some areas in Bucks County are being overrun with Canadian geese. They are quite a nuisance at public and private lakes, ponds, and parks. The geese no longer migrate. Any one know of a way to keep them off small ponds?

QUESTION — Marion Capp, Mechanicsburg, would like to know how to keep squirrels and chipmunks away from bird feeders. She has tried all kinds of feeders with different size openings, plus squirrel-resistant feeders, baffles, and a reddish powder that the squirrels aren't supposed to tolerate the odor. She has tried giving squirrels their own food hoping they'd let the birds at the feeders, but nothing helps. She put a feeder in the middle of the clothes line, but the squirrels climb up from the bottom and run along the line. She loves her birds and is at her wit's end on what to do about the squirrels.

QUESTION — Meredith Blum, Chestnut Ridge, N.Y., writes that she has heard that soap can be made by using wood ashes instead of lye. She would like a book or an explanation of the process. She is a soap maker and would prefer to use wood ashes instead of chemicals.

QUESTION — J. Heagy, 4010 Oak St., Lebanon, PA 17042, would like ideas and instructions on how to make handmade wedding favors.

QUESTION — Betty Gruver, R. 1, Box 53D, Millerton, PA 16936, would like a pattern to make the wooden male and female deer displayed in some lawns during the holidays.

QUESTION — Thomas Yarnall, Gilbertsville, writes that cabbage, cauliflower, and grass hay is showing purple color in them. He heard that it is blamed on an environmental problem. Also if you walk in wet ground and manure, your feet will swell. If others have this problem, Yarnall would like to know what area they are from and what they attribute to the cause. He and other farmers in his area are having health problems and with their livestock.

QUESTION — Richard O'Rourke, 2846 Highland Rd., Warrington, PA 18976, needs at least six regency blue ceramic V-cap tiles and two corner caps manufactured by Monarch Tile Co. The company went out of business about a year ago. The tiles are needed to finish a bathroom sink top edge, which is a project O'Rourke is doing for his parents.

QUESTION — Jane Troutman, Millerstown, would like to know where to send baby shoes to be bronzed.

QUESTION — Estella M. Snyder, Red Lion, would like to know where to purchase mantels for kerosene Aladin lamps purchased after the 1930s.

QUESTION — Ruth Becker, Dover, would like to know where to find the deluxe version of the game "Aggravation," number 8321 and made before 1989.

QUESTION — Martha A. Martin, Lititz, wants the words to a song ab out a dog: "...He'll never be a hound, send him to the butcher shop for 90 cents a pound. Bow wow wow wow wow, hot dog!"

QUESTION — A reader would like to know where to purchase a weather house that has a sunshine lady and a raincoat man, which automatically comes out whenever it is going to rain or the sun shines. Dairy Of Distinction Program Again Seeks Nice Looking Farms

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.) - Do you take pride in maintaining your dairy farm? Does your dairy farm project an attractive, wholesome image to consumers? If so, the Dairy of Distinction Program of Pennsylvania, New York, and New Jersey, will consider your farm for the program's annual recognition awards.

The Northeast Dairy Farm Beautification Program that oversees the Distinction program was first started in 1983 in Pennsylvania to recognize the hard work and dedication of the farmers who maintain attractive farms. The purpose of the program is to instill a greater sense of confidence in the wholesomeness of dairy products, and increase their sales.

Farms that apply are judged on the roadside appearance of buildings, grounds, and surroundings, since this is what our dairy product consumers observe as they drive by the farm.

The cleanliness of the barnyard, feed areas, and manure management are all areas taken into consideration when a team of judges takes a look at your farm from a roadside point of view. Judging is conducted during the month of May. Award winners are announced during your local June Dairy Month activities.

To qualify for consideration, you must be actively dairy farming and shipping milk.

Applications are available for Pennsylvania dairy farms from Michael O'Conner, 324 Henning Building, Dept. of Dairy and Animal Science, Penn State University, University Park, PA 16802. Phone: (814) 863-3913.

For New York State applications are available from Carol Keene, RD 1, Box 31, Gilbertsville, NY 13776. Phone: (607) 783-2169.

For New Jersey applications, send to: August Knispel, 641 Sidney Road, Pittstown, NJ 08867. Phone: (908) 735-4989.

For Vermont applications, send to: Elisa Clancy, Vermont Department of Agriculture, 16 State St., Drawer 20, Montpelier, VT 05620-2901. Phone: (802) 828-3835.

All applications must be completed and returned to your respective state secretary by April 15, 1999.

The Dairy of Distinction program is financed in Pennsylvania by Dairy Farmers through the American Dairy Association Dairy Council and Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program in cooperation with many local agribusiness organizations. The program is conducted with advice and help from Penn State Cooperative Extensi.on.

Dairy of Distinction 1999 Pennsylvania Application

PURPOSE OF PROGRAM

Attractive dairy farms give the consumer greater confidence in the wholesomeness of milk and stimulate milk sales which encourages public support for the dairy industry. The award gives recognition to the dairy farmer for maintaining a well-kept farmstead.

ELIGIBILITY

All Northeast dairy farms producing milk for sale are invited to submit an application for the award. Dairies receiving the 10 highest scores in each of the 21 districts will receive an 18" x 24" Dairy of Distinction sign to be displayed in front of their farm.

APPLICATION

Dairy of Distinction

HOW IS YOUR FARM SCORED?

Northeast Dairy Farm Beautification Program, Inc

Awards will be based upon neatness, good maintenance and other factors which can be controlled by the farmer. Attractive background scenery should not be weighed heavily in judging. All judging observations should be made from a vehicle at one or more points on an adjacent public highway (or if farm is off the road, the nearest lane). Judging should give equal consideration to old wood construction and new construction of metal or concrete block.

The award program may be used for subsequent advertising or promotion activities for dairy products or dairy farming. Farmers who apply for awards agree that; if selected they will cooperate with these activities and make all reasonable efforts to maintain both the exterior and interior of their properties in an acceptable condition.

HOW THE APPLICATION WORKS

The owner or operator of the dairy farm should sign the application and send it to NEDFBP secretary by April 15.

HOW THE JUDGING WORKS

Judging teams will visit farms during the month of May. Farms will be judged each year as the award is presented on an annual basis. Any dairy failing to maintain appearance standards will be asked to remove their sign. The Dairy of Distinction signs remain the property of the committee, not the property of the dairy farmer. All farms must achieve a compliance score of 90 percent on their Dairy of Distinction score card. Your cooperative or milk handler will be contacted to approve your milk quality.

RULES FOR THE DAIRY OF DISTINCTION AWARD

1). The Dairy of Distinction sign remains the property of the Northeast Dairy Farm Beautification Committee.
2). The post and bracket shall be supplied by and maintained by the dairy farmer. It is suggested that a wood post 4' x 4' x 12' or iron pipe 2' x 12' be used. Posts or pipe should be installed and maintained in true vertical position with 8' above ground. Top of the bracket shou'd be lower than six inches from the top of the post.
3). Sign shall be displayed in front of the dairy at roadside. An attractive post and bracket, or other frame, shall be used to display the sign. No more than three signs should be displayed from the sign frame or post, and all shall be of a style, general size and quality comparable to the Dairy of Distinction sign. Sign should be secured on all sides to avoid wind damage.
4). Signs shall not be moved to other premises. New owners of a Dairy of Distinction farm must apply to retain the sign.
5) Replacement of damaged signs shall be the discretion of the committee.
6). No producer shall be charged with scoring or sign expense.
7). Judges' decisions will be final.
8). Judging will take place between May 1st and May 31st.
9) Farms awarded a Dairy of Distinction sign in previous years will be judged between April 1st and April 30th. If they do not qualify, they will be rejudged between May 1st and May 31st so they have the opportunity to keep the sign.
10). Farms that do not requalify will return the sign to their regional Dairy of Distinction Committee.

Manor FFA Reporters

This school year Manor FFA has been busy with fundraisers, preparing for the Farm Show which was held earlier this month, and the annual FFA banquet.

In December, we finished the fruit sale and met our goal of selling 2,000 cases of fruit for Thanksgiving and Christmas. Thanks to all who bought and sold fruit. The money we raised by selling fruit will be used for various agriculture events such as the trip to the Farm Show and the annual FFA Banquet.

On Jan 11, the FFA members went to the Pennsylvania Farm Show in Harrisburg. Many FFA members won awards this year. They exhibited projects from tobacco and hogs to flower arrangements and displays.

The Mid-Winter FFA Convention was held in conjunction with the Farm Show. Eleven seniors — Beth Frey, Tyler Swanson, Jeremy Railing, Dan Hess, Sara McMullen, Justin Gehr, Andy Burkholder, Glenn Fellenbaum, Wendy Witmer, Jessica Hess and Brandi Long — received their Keystone Degree, which is the highest degree awarded in the state To be eligible to receive this degree, they had to complete record-books on their various FFA projects over a four-year time period, as well as fill out an application. During the convention, Beth Frey and Tyler Swanson were recognized for the Eastern Region Star Keystone Award and competed for the State Star Keystone Award. Tyler won the State Star Keystone Award for agribusiness, sales, service and mechanics. He will compete at the national level during the Eastern States Exposition in Springfield, Mass. in September.

During the convention, Manor FFA Chapter received the Chapter Safety Award for our involvement in community safety activities. The award was sponsored by the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture. The chapter was also recognized with a Gold Superior Chapter Award for activities, achievements, and community service of the members throughout the year. This award is sponsored by Cargill and The National FFA Foundation General Fund.

The Manor FFA Safety Quiz bowl team competed during the Farm Show with three other Pennsylvania chapters. During three rounds of challenging competition, they answered questions related to agricultural safety. The team of Garrett Neff, Duane Stoner, Adams Nissley, and Jason Martin placed second. Their awards were presented by Pennsylvania Secretary of Agriculture Samuel Hayes.

Some of our upcoming events that we are working on are the annual FFA Banquet, and the Horse Show in May.

Kansas City

This November, five of our FFA members will be competing at The National . FFA Convention, which is being held Nov. 7 to 15 in Kansas City, Mo. At the National FFA Convention, Tyler Swanson will be competing in the National FFA Extemporaneous Public Speaking Event, and the Meats Team, consisting of Adam Nissley, Allan Herr, Bob Karr, and Dan McMichael, will compete in the Meats Evaluation Event. These students were selected for these competitions by placing first as a team or individual at Penn State during FFA Week.

At Kansas City, Tyler will be required to deliver a speech on agriculture topics such as agriscience and technology, agrimarketing, and international agricultural relations prepared within a 30-minute time period. The speech must be 4-6 minutes and at the conclusion of the speech, the judges may question Tyler for 5 minutes. Winners are selected on speech delivery, content, and responses to the questions.

The Meats Team will be taking a written exam that will test their knowledge of meat selection, storage, cooking, and safety. They will identify 40 cuts of meat by retail trade name and prime cut identification. Also included is the judging and answering of questions on 10 carcasses of beef, pork or lamb.

At Kansas City, our FFA chapter will also be recognized as one of the top FFA chapters in the country based on chapter activities throughout the year We wish everyone good luck and safe traveling!

dairy foods, dairy cattle evaluation, poultry evaluation and technology, meats judging, floriculture design and identification, and land use and evaluation. All of these teams competed during their stay at Penn State University, as well as participated in other activities.

The individuals competing in public speaking contests were Tyler Swanson, Beth Frey, and Cheri Lake. Tyler and Beth competed in the extemporaneous contest and Cheri will be presented the FFA creed.

The Meats Evaluation team placed 1st and will compete at the National FFA Convention in Kansas City, Mo., in November. Those members are Bob Karr, who placed first, Allan Herr, Jr., Adam Nissley, and Dan McMichael.

The Poultry Evaluation and Technology team placed second and will compete at the Eastern States Exposition in Massachusetts in September. The team consisted of Garrett Neff, first place, Cheri Lake, Josh Murry, and Julia Greider.

Tyler Swanson placed first in extemporaneous public speaking and Beth Frey placed third. Tyler will represent Pennsylvania at the National FFA Extemporaneous Public Speaking event in Kansas City, Mo.

Dave Warihay received first place in the agriculture sales, service, and mechanics state proficiency. Randy Charles was selected as the top agriculture student in specialty crop production. These awards are based on the student's projects and FFA activities.

Beth Frey and Sara McMullen prepared the FFA scrapbook, which earned a gold award.

The Manor FFA Chapter has also been recognized as one of the top chapters in the state based on FFA chapter activities and member involvement.

Manor Team

On Sept. 17-20, Penn Manor's Poultry Evaluation and Technology Team and Tyler Swanson went to the Big E Eastern States Exposition in Springfield Mass. The Poultry Evaluation and Technology Team consisted of Juli Greider, Garrett Neff, Cheri Lake, and Josh Murry and placed first as a team. Garrett Neff placed first as an individual. Tyler Swanson went to Eastern States for extemporaneous public speaking. He placed in the top 10.

The Poultry Evaluation and Technology Career Development Event consisted of identifying chicken parts and grading chicken carcasses. Eggs were graded for interior and exterior quality. Live birds were placed according to the quality of the birds. They also gave oral reasons for the placing of broiler/breeders and carcasses. There was also a written test on the knowledge of the poultry industry. A team activity consisted of having 20 minutes to research a topic relating to the poultry industry and then 10-15 minutes to present it to a panel of judges. The presentation was followed by a few questions asked by the judges.

The extemporaneous public speaking contest consisted of picking a subject out of a hat and having 30 minutes to prepare a 4-6 minute speech about your topic. After the speech, the judges have five minutes to ask questions about your knowledge of the topic and ag industry.

During their spare time, they had time to explore the largest state agriculture fair in New England. There were rides, games, exhibits and lots of fun.

Award winners, Lehigh County 4-H Sheep Club, front row, Terri Heintzelman, Schnecksville; Amy Wehr, Orefield; and Samantha Gressley, Fogelsville. Ag Department Expands Nutrition Program For Needy

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co) – On behalf of Gov. Tom Ridge, Agriculture Secretary Samuel E. Hayes, Jr. announced that beginning Feb. 1, the department will be involving more farmers' market vendors in the Farmers' Market Nutrition Program.

The program provides fresh fruits and vegetables to families enrolled in Pennsylvania's Women, Infants and Children (WIC) program

"The Farmers' Market Nutrition Program is a win-win situation for needy families, market vendors and farmers in Pennsylvania," Hayes said. "It promotes better health for children and families while promoting our use of fresh Pennsylvania fruits and vegetables "

In 1998, according to Hayes, more than 437,000 Farmers' Market Nutrition Checks valued at $5 each were issued to eligible women and children under the program. Almost 475 vendors participated in the program at 330 market sites across Pennsylvania. It is estimated that the program generated an additional $1.26 million in sales for Pennsylvania's farmers.

Eligibility for the nutrition program is limited to pregnant and nursing women, who receive $25 per year; and 3-year-olds and 4-year-olds, who receive $15 per year. Checks may be used by eligible participants or their parents or guardians between July 1 and Oct. 31.

A survey of 245 program participants conducted last year by the U.S. Department of Agriculture found that 63 percent visited a farmers' market for the first time with their program checks, and that 36 percent learned a new way to prepare fresh fruits and vegetables

From Poverty To President

From a very poor beginning, Andrew Johnson went on to become the 17th president of the United States

When Johnson was only three years old, his dad died trying to save some men from drowning His mother tried to support Johnson and his two brothers, but many nights they went to bed hungry

At 14, Johnson went to live with the local tailor, where he learned to make coats and suits When he was 18, his family moved to Tennessee, and Johnson opened his own shop That same year he married Eliza McCardle, who taught him to write

Johnson's shop soon became the place young men visited to discuss politics Then Johnson got involved in politics, first serving on the town board, then as mayor He also served as a U S senator and the governor of Tennessee

In 1864, Johnson ran as Abraham Lincoln's vice president When Lincoln was killed in April 1865, Johnson became president Five years after leaving the White House, Johnson was elected again to serve as a U.S Senator

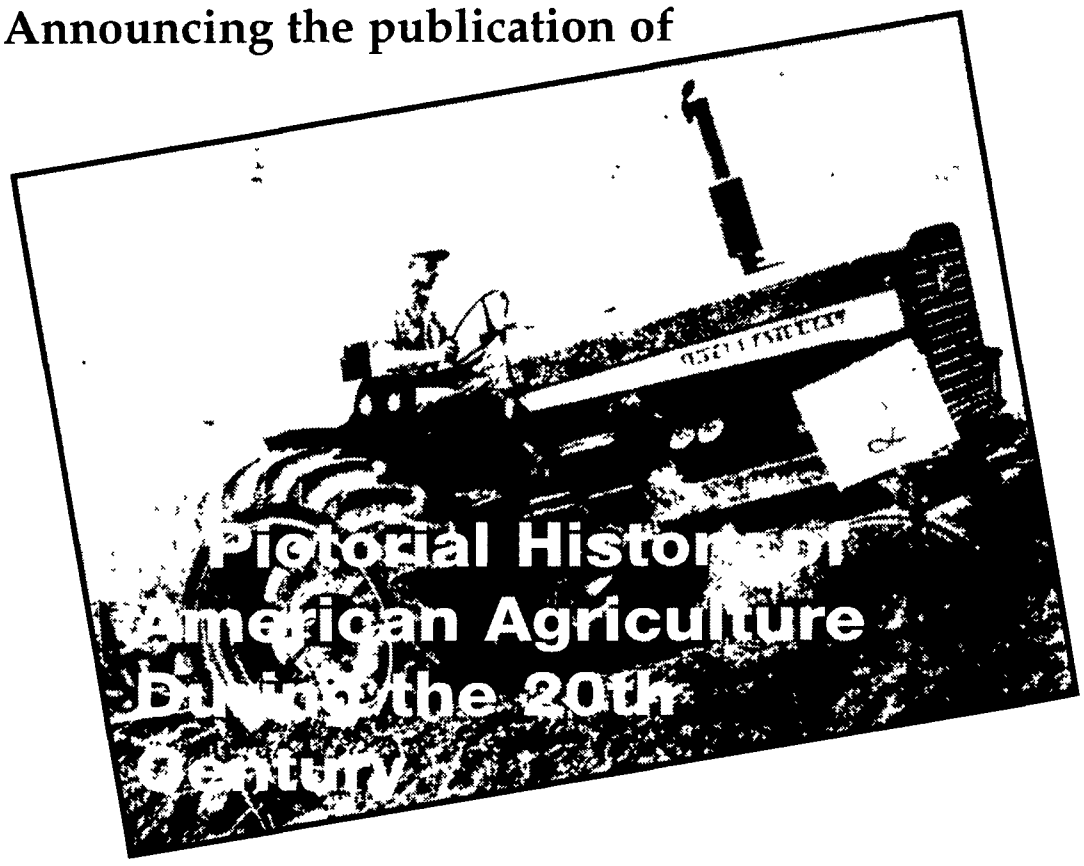
Announcing the publication of



Recalling our agricultural heritage, a new book entitle A Century of Farming (a pictorial review),will be published by Lancaster Farming in time for Christmas giving and the millennium. This work will feature several hundred photographs that show life on the farm from 1901 through the 1990's Lancaster Farming is commencing work on this pictorial history right now, but we need your help.

WE NEED YOUR HELP...
If you have photographs of bygone days that show old agriculture enterprises and events during this century, would you please share them with us and our readers? Prospective entries would include photos from family albums that show activities such as hay making, milking, range shelters for poultry, harvesting, planting, types of livestock, fair or farm show activities, and farm organizations and extension, 4-H, FFA, ect

In summary, Lancaster Farming is looking for photographs of people, places and things that depict the history of agriculture during this century.

-The photographs should be identifiable, including the names of at least some of the individuals in the photo, and the time, place and background of the photo. To help insure a speedy return of your photographs, please include a self-addressed envelope large enough to accept your photographs. They are sent at your own risk.

-Lancaster Farming will print a credit line with each photo to identify the person or organization who shared it with us.
-You may bring your photos to our Lancaster Farming office, 1 East Main St., Ephrata, PA or send them to:

Box 609, 1 E. Main St.

4-H HAPPENINGS

Mountville 4-H To Hold Sign-Up Night

The Mountville Community 4-H Club will hold its sign-up night on Monday, March 1, at 7 p.m. at the Mountville Church of the Brethren.

Projects offered this year are adventures with your camera, archery, creative photo, albums, touring, Lancaster County, doll-making, drawing faces, horsemanship I, II and III, model airplanes, model rocketry, sewing, and woodworking.

Dues for the club year will be $5 per person, not to exceed $10 per family, and are payable March 1. Parents will be responsible for the cost of materials for the projects. A parent or guardian for each prospective club member must attend the organizational meeting on March 1.

In case of inclement weather, the meeting will be rescheduled for March 8.

North Mountain 4-H Club

The most recent meeting of the North Mountain 4-H Club was held Jan. 25. Members, officers, and parents worked together to learn the 4-H pledge and put together a giant, 85-piece wooden 4-H puzzle.

A member of the club, Teresa LaPinto, passed away in August after a long battle with leukemia.

Members decided to make a fund to help members go to county and state activities. The 4-H Club is also helping the Ronald McDonald House by collecting soda can tabs. The money for recycling these helps to pay for the housing of the families who stay here because their child is in the hospital.

The families used to have to pay $10 a night, but now the tabs, which account for 12 percent of the budget, pay for that. We are continuing to collect teddy bears because it was so well received last year. If you or your organization has been collecting tabs, and would like to contribute, please put the tabs at the Water Works Fire Hall anytime.

On Feb. 9, some homeschoolers are going to the Lebanon Valley Brethren Home to share projects they have finished. At the next meeting, the photography project is going to start to take pictures of members and leaders to put together for a club directory. Also, the computer project is going to put a page on the Internet for the club.

For old business, there was a report given on the petting zoo at the Living Gift Fair, where the heifer project is buying shares of animals to be sent overseas to help needy families. The club also discussed the Farm City Banquet coat check, where the proceeds, $155, went into the Teresa LaPinto Memorial Fund. Also, stuffing buckets for Hurricane Mitch flood victims and some items that were included were clothing, food, etc.

The club then discussed one of the main farm attractions in the state: the Farm Show. There were horses, rodeos, and square dances, among others.

On March 9, the North Mountain 4-H Club will be sponsoring a roller-skating party for all 35 clubs in Lebanon County. All the proceeds will go to the Hurrican Mitch victims.

There was a report about the U.C.C. Petting Zoo. New projects for this month will be Mondays - computers; Tuesdays - cooking I; Thursdays - German/Spanish; Fridays - sign language; and Saturdays - cooking II.

DMI Offers Scholarships In Dairy Scienc

ROSEMONT, Il, — In a continuing effort to foster future dairy development and industry leadership, Dairy Management Inc ™ (DMI) is offering up to $34,000 in 1999 college scholarship awards in dairy science, technology, and marketing.

DMI sponsors two scholarship programs annually. the "Nationally Dairy Promotion and Research Board Undergraduate Scholarship Program: and the "National Dairy Shrine/Dairy Management Inc Milk Marketing Scholarship Program."

"These scholarship programs indicate DMI's ongoing commitment to helping to work toward a successful future for the dairy industry by recognizing and aiding our best future industry scientists, technologists and marketers," said Linda Racicot, DMI group executive, domestic marketing programs.

Dairy Science and Technology Awards

Through DMI, the National Dairy Board awards up to 20 scholarships (one for $2,500, 19 others for $1,500 each) to junior and senior undergraduate students enrolled in college programs that emphasize dairy food science, technology or marketing. The awards are made by an independent scholarship committee based on: outstanding academic achievement; a commitment to a career in a dairy food-related discipline; involvement in extracurricular activities, especially those related to dairy or food science; and demonstrated leadership, initiative and integrity.

Applications are available through the food science department chair or financial aid office of colleges and universities throughout the country. They also can be accessed through the DMI website (www.dairyinfo.com) or by calling Marykate Ginter of DMI at 847-803-2000, ext. 255 Applications must be accompanied by an official transcript of all completed college or university credits, along with a letter of recommendation from a faculty member familiar with the applicant's performance

National Dairy Shrine/DMI Milk Marketing Awards

scholarship program is to encourage qualified undergraduate students to pursue careers in marketing dairy products. In 1998, scholarships were awarded to seven students.

Applications may be requested from Maurice Core, executive director, National Dairy Shrine, 1224 Alton Darby Creek Rd., Columbus OH 43228-9792, tel. 614-878-5333. Completed applications are due to National Dairy Shrine by March 15.

Dairy Management Inc.™ is the nonprofit domestic and international planning and management organization responsible for increasing demand for U.S. - produced dairy products on behalf of America's dairy farmers. DMI manages the American Dairy Association®, National Dairy Council® and U.S. Dairy Export Council®.

Frontier is tougher than Dual.
And we can prove it.
Frontier®
Here are the facts. Over the past six years, Frontier® herbicide has outperformed Dual® brand herbicides, no matter what the weather. Through wet years, dry years and in-between years.
Here's why. The unique chemistry of Frontier helps it stay in the weed zone when it's wet. And it activates with less moisture when it's dry.
What's in it for you? Consistent grass control in corn or beans. In any weather. When you need real muscle to control grasses you can do better than Dual.
With Frontier.

SQUEEZING OUT SMALL-SEEDED BROADLEAVES WHEREVER THEY'RE FOUND.

If you have broadleaves, like velvetleaf, lambsquarters and pigweed, you need new Python® WDG herbicide.

Soil-applied Python WDG controls small-seeded broadleaves – including triazine-resistant varieties. And Python WDG gives you residual activity in soybeans and corn for $7-$11/acre, depending on the appropriate rate for your area. That makes Python WDG an essential ingredient in just about any weed control program.

This year, wrap up your weed control program with Python WDG. And feed on broadleaves, before they feed on your yield.

Ohio 4-H Prepares For Next 100 Years

COLUMBUS, Ohio — 4-H has changed tremendously since its inception 97 years ago. 4-H'ers still experience fairs, projects and camps, but school enrichment and entrepreneurship programs, youth-at-risk activities, and urban gardening also need to be included in today's 4-H collage.

This year, Feb. 21 through Feb. 27 marks Ohio 4-H Week. During this week, 4-H specialists, members and volunteers make a special effort to communicate the diversity of projects and learning experiences available to 4-H members and volunteers.

And although the 4-H program doesn't celebrate its 100th anniversary until 2002, Ohio 4-H leaders already have been preparing to meet the needs of the youth development program for the next century, said Jeff King, acting assistant director and state leader of the 4-H Youth Development program.

Youth development specialists, volunteers and other key individuals identified five areas important to the future of 4-H, King said. The focus areas are developing marketable skills in youth, encouraging community service and citizenship, building and appreciating diversity, building sustained relationships with adults, and building volunteer skills and abilities.

Marketable skills reach beyond skills for the workplace. "We're looking at life skills that could apply to family life, community involvement, personal choices and decision making," King said.

Community service and citizenship have long been in integral part of 4-H programs. However, more emphasis will be put on the process of community service rather than the product. Today, clubs often focus on the end product — going to nursing homes, collecting trash or planting flowers.

"By shifting the emphasis to the process of citizenship, we hope to help youth see ways they can incorporate their interests, such as pets or sewing, into an ethic of service," King said.

Ohio 4-H Youth Expo, a yearly statewide leadership camp for teens in June, is putting that shift into action. On the first full day of Youth Expo, teens learn about subjects such as clowning, environmental stewardship and pet therapy. The next day, they participate in a community service project that ties directly to that subject matter, such as clowning for hospital patients, labeling storm drains and visiting nursing homes with pets.

"It's a process of developing and doing," King said.

Diversity includes ethnicity, income and religion. School enrichment programs have exposed a variety of youth to 4-H. But, youth receive more long-term benefits through community-based clubs.

"Our goal is to find ways to build and sustain relationships with more youth through local clubs," King said.

The remaining objectives focus on adult volunteers. Many 4-H'ers develop unique, long-term relationships with their 4-H adviser and depend on that person for support. And clubs tend to be subject-matter based.

"Volunteers are great when it comes to subject matter," King said. "We are developing ways for volunteers to take the subject matter and create hands-on, interactive learning opportunities."

More than 200 curriculums provide a variety of options for learning, from the traditional areas of agriculture, sewing and cooking to the arenas of computer science, photography and leadership on the job. There are 230,000 4-H members and 35,000 volunteers who participate in Ohio 4-H. For more information on the 4-H programs available in your area, contact your local office of Ohio State University Extension.

Tri-County Agronomy School March 2

DAUPHIN (Dauphin Co.) — The 1999 Tri-County Agronomy School is scheduled March 2, 9:30 a.m. to 3 p.m. at the Gratz Community Center, Gratz. The school is sponsored by Penn State Cooperative Extension in Dauphin and Schuylkill counties in cooperation with several agribusinesses.

The day will be filled with interesting and educational seminars to provide participants with up-to-date information on crop and farm management practices as well as an opportunity to visit several agribusiness exhibits.

This year's school will have a special emphasis on forage management. Other topics to be covered include phosphorus management, weed control, grain marketing and corn production.

Program speakers include Marvin Hall, Penn State extension agronomy specialist; Jerry Martin, Dauphin County extension agriculture agent; and J. Allan Shoener, Schuylkill County extension agriculture agent.

In addition, John Rutherford, multicounty extension farm management agent, will discuss opportunities in marketing grain.

Attending seminars at this clinic will qualify for update training credits for Pennsylvania certified pesticide applicators. Participants are reminded to bring their pesticide license or permit along to the seminars.

Reservations are required. The registration fee is $6 per person and includes a delicious noon meal. Registration deadline is Feb. 22. To obtain a registration packet or for more information, contact the Penn State Cooperative Extension office in Dauphin County at (717) 921-8803 during regular business hours from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Capron Becomes Agronomist

HALL, N.Y. – Seedway has announced that James Capron has taken the position of Seedway agronomist.

Capron is responsible for making corp, tillage, and product recommendations to Seedway dealers and customers.

Other areas of concentration include variety demonstration plots, replicated trials, and working with Seedway sales representatives on customer service issues. In his new capacity, Capron will conduct production seminars and represent the company at trade shows and industry programs.

Capron was area field crop specialist for Cornell University's Cooperative Extension program, covering an area from Seneca Falls, N.Y. to Niagara Falls,N.Y. While with Cornell, he managed education programs including grain marketing, equipment clinics, IPM principles, and crop/nutrient management seminars as well as plot research on zone-tillage, N-serve with corn, tillage comparisons, and variety trials on corn, soybeans, wheat, and alfalfa.

A certified crop advisor, Capron earned bachelor's and master's degrees from Cornell University. He recently received a master's degree in soil physics.

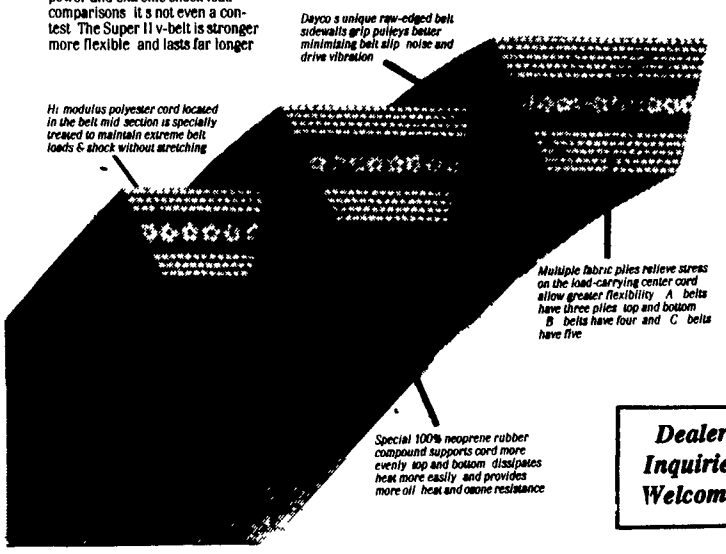
DAYCO SUPER II V-BELTS
Now there's a belt that beats the toughest drive problems.
Many heavy-duty industrial machines demand more than conventional wrapped v-belts can stand Their punishing drives make ordinary belts crack under pressure The result unnecessary and expensive downtime
Now there s a solution to the consistent costly problem of replacing or retensioning belts It's the revolutionary new Super II™ v-belt from Dayco The Super II belt was designed specifically for the most brutal applications And its performance blows the cover off conventional wrapped belts
In heavy torque high horsepower and extreme shock load comparisons it s not even a contest The Super II v-belt is stronger more flexible and lasts far longer
Innovative design & construction provide extra strength and stamina
The secret to the Super II v-belt s durability is its unique construction The central position of the polyester cords in the neoprene rubber core provides greater strength balance and longer life Multiple fabric plies top and bottom, enhance flexibility And Dayco's unique raw-edged construction gives it a better grip for controlled slippage
These attributes combined make the Super II belt superior to conventional wrapped belts in every way
Test the Super II v-belt on your toughest drive
The Super II v-belt was field-tested for two years on the most severe applications rock quarry shaker screens lumber mill tree debarkers and pipe descalers In every case it outperformed conventional wrapped belts by a wide margin But the only test that really counts is the one you do on your own equipment
Try the Super II belt on your toughest drive problem You ll be so amazed by its incredible endurance that you'll want to put it on all your drives In fact we re so sure you ll be pleased with the performance of the Super II v-belt that in the unlikely event you re not satisfied, we'll refund the original purchase price or replace it with a conventional wrapped v-belt
The Super II v-belt from Dayco The super problem solver


Dayco s unique raw-edged belt sidewalls grip pulleys better minimizing belt slip noise and drive vibration
Hi modulus polyester cord located in the belt mid section is specially treated to maintain extreme belt loads & shock without stretching
Multiple fabric plies relieve stress on the load-carrying center cord allow greater flexibility A belts have three plies top and bottom B belts have four and C belts have five
Special 100% neoprene rubber compound supports cord more evenly top and bottom dissipates heat more easily and provides more oil heat and ozone resistance

ROLAND M. LEACH JR.
Professor of Avian Orthopaedics

Twenty years ago eggshell breakage was a significant economic problem for the poultry industry. We at Penn State spent considerable effort in trying to understand how the eggshell is formed, so that we might be able to manipulate the shell-forming process.

There are really two important components of the eggshell: 1) the membranes are composed of protein fibers that resemble a cocoon formed by a silk worm. 2) At the later stages of membrance deposition, small calcite crystals start to form at specific points on the membrane surface.

As shell formation progresses, these crystals grow in width and length to form the calcified eggshell which is composed of four percent protein and 96 percent calcite (crystallized calcium carbonate).

Times have changed! We now are breaking more than 55 percent of the eggs laid to produce a wide variety of liquid egg products for home and institutional use. This has also created a problem — what to do with the eggshells? Can we recover useful materials?

Certainly, the potential is there. The calcite portion of the shell can and has been used as a calcium supplement by women concerned about osteoporosis.

The membranes have the potential to become a source of important biomedical materials. I have often speculated that the membranes would make an excellent Band-Aid. They are flexible, with the fibers being close enough to prevent bacterial penetration, but loose enough to permit the diffusion of air. Scientists in Bulgaria have recently used eggshell membranes to aid healing in patients with severe skin burns.

Eggshells are also important to the paleontologists who are using them to date the extinction of animals. Today we hear a lot about losing diversity of plant and animal life, since there are many forms of life on the endangered species list. Many people do not recognize that relative to 11,000-15,000 years, we live in a "zoologically impoverished" world. In other words, there were many more animal species that became extinct in that time period. Paleontologists are trying to find out why. Australia is the focus of much of this research, since it suffered the greatest loss of species when compared to other continents.

Whereas North America lost 73 percent of animal species weighing more than 100 pounds, Australia lost more than 60 species of very unique animals. For example, there were giant sloths, carnivorous kangaroos, lizards 20 feet long, horned tortoises the size of VW Beetles, and a giant bird, Genyornis, weighing 160-200 pounds. This bird, which had short legs, inhabited large areas of Australia, then became extinct about 50,000 years ago. Analyzing the amino acids in the eggshells of Genyornis has made it possible to show that this bird inhabited wide regions of Australia 100,000 years ago. However, they suddenly disappeared 50,000 years ago. Why?

The reason for the extinction of species in this time period has been the subject of much debate. For many years it has been felt that abrupt changes in climate may have been responsible. The data obtained with Genyornis tends to rule out this hypothesis. Based upon the results of the eggshell analysis, these scientists speculate that the disappearance of this bird coincided with the first appearance of human habitation on the Australian continent.

Eggshells of these large flightless birds have a distinct advantage over the use of bones for dating purposes. They are well preserved and their dense calcite matrix is resistant to restructuring, with a small fragment supplying sufficient materials for analysis. By collecting samples from deposits

BUSINESS ❖ NEWS

Adamstown Equipment Celebrates 40th Anniversary

ADAMSTOWN (Lancaster Co.) — Adamstown Equipment is celebrating 40 years as a John Deere dealer at this location.

The dealership was started by Edwin Hurst in 1959. Hurst and Frank Mohler Jr. were the first two employees the dealership had.

Mohler has been at Adamstown Equipment since 1960. Ervin Weaver has taken over where his father left off. His father Ammon Weaver passed away last September after 35 years with the business.

Adamstown Equipment sells a full line of John Deere farm equipment and lawn and garden products. They employ 27 employees.

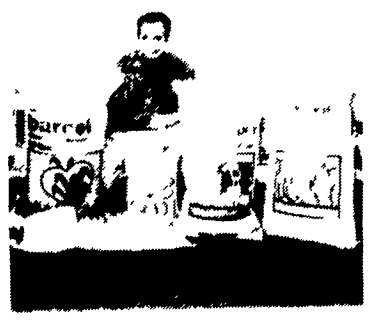
Sprayer Has Multiple Features

NEW HOLLAND (Lancaster Co.) — Earth & Turf introduces a tow-behind sprayer with multiple features to meet a variety of landscaping and ground maintenance needs. The 25-gallon spray system features a heavy-duty 12-volt, 7-amp Shurr Flo pump with tractor-mounted on-off controls. Its stainless steel tips and strainers with two pounds of ball check valves offer positive on-off performance, which eliminates dripping. The Boom, with its 90-inch spray width, introduces unique breakaway joints that protect it when colliding with obstacles. The non-corrosive handgun features a 12-foot hose.

Dutch Reinforcement For Barenbrug North America

OGDENSBURG, N.J. — This spring John H. Thyssen, age 28, started to work for Barenbrug USA in Tangent as a marketing director of forage. Thyssen has been working for Barenbrug Holland for the last three years and has been very successful in implementing new products in the existing grass business. After he got his degrees in both animal science and forage, he has been working in the dairy industry for eight years.



"Barenbrug USA has been very successful in developing a proprietary turf market," said Thyssen. "It is my challenge to achieve the same in the forage business. Besides that I would like to convince U.S. farmers that they can make more money out of their own land if they use the best forages they can get. I found it hard to believe that so many U.S. farmers still use varieties that have been released over 30 years ago, and doing this while they spend a fortune on the best dairy genetics. Barenbrug can offer all kind of forages for all kind of applications purposes.

He will lead the forage team of regional forage managers from all of Barenbrug's subsidiary companies. Besides that he will be the account-manager of some nationwide distributors.

Farmers Learn About Calf, Heifer, Fresh Cow Management At Seminars

RONKS (Lancaster Co.) — Dairy farmers gathered at this location Jan. 20 and in Georgetown Jan. 19 to attend the two 1999 Hoober Feeds Dairy Seminars.

More than 100 farmers from Lancaster and Chester counties turned out to learn more about proper feeding and management of calves, heifers, and fresh cows.

Featured speaker was Dr. Judd Heinrichs of Penn State University. Heinrichs addressed the topic of calf raising and heifer growing.

Heinrichs began his first lecture by talking about colostrum feeding and management. He stressed how important it is to harvest the first milk from a fresh cow to use as colostrum for the calf. He explained how the level of antibodies in the first milk is very high and how it drops very quickly in the subsequent milkings. He also explained how the calf is born with no antibodies in its system and needs the high level of antibodies that the colostrum provides.

He cited studies that showed that the antibodies in milk will be found in the blood of the calf very soon after the calf drinks the colostrum. He pointed out, however, that because of the structure of the lining of the intestine in the newborn calf, it is critical to not allow anything but colostrum to get into the animal's digestive system.

Heinrich cited studies that showed bacteria, such as E. coli, can also pass into the blood system of the calf if the E. coli is what enters the calf's digestive system first. He recommended that every newborn calf get four quarts of colostrum within the first 12 hours of life with two quarts or more being given as soon after birth as is possible. He concluded his discussion on colostrum feeding by demonstrating the use of a colostrometer and by discussing potential problems with esophageal feeders.

Heinrichs showed a series of slides highlighting how the rumen of a young calf begins to develop. He explained that at birth the rumen is sterile and nonfunctional. He showed how this organ, which is as thin as several sheets of tissue paper at birth, begins to develop when grains are introduced into the diet. He discussed how the fermentation of grains produces butyric acid and how this butyric acid functions in providing energy to the developing rumen wall. His slides demonstrated the vast differences between rumens that developed properly by feeding the calf grain and rumens that developed slowly by feeding the calf milk for long periods of time or by feeding lots of long hay. He showed rumen papillae that were healthy and growing versus those that had not yet begun to develop or were growing slowly. He concluded by stressing the importance of some coarse rolled grains, such as barley or oats, in a calf feed. He explained that the abrasiveness they provide helps to keep rumen papillae from clumping together, a benefit that is not realized by calves that are fed completely pelleted calf feeds.

The next speaker was Tom Nauman, nutritionist for Hoober Feeds. His topic was entitled "Fresh Cow Feeding Strategies" and addressed management techniques that can be used to get cows to hit a high peak. He reminded the audience that every increase of peak milk by 5 pounds usually results in 1,000 pounds more milk for the lactation. He then addressed the problem of DMI lag that the cow experiences.

After lunch, Dr. Heinrichs returned to talk about managing heifers to calve at 22-24 months at 1,350 pounds or more body weight precalving.

Case Introduces Round Balers

RACINE, Wis. — Case Corporation has announced expansion of its hay and forage line with the new Case IH RS "One" Series variable chamber round balers.

The "Round Simplified" balers represent three of the 15 new hay and forage products that update and expand the line this fall — the largest hay and forage line introduction in Case history.

"Like the numerous new Case IH agricultural products introduced recently, the 15 new hay and forage products are designed with the input of our customers worldwide," said Ed Sechrest, director of ag systems marketing. "Our goal is to help growers worldwide reduce their input costs while maximizing yields for improved profitability."

The Case IH RS451 (4 foot by 5 foot), RS551 (5 foot by 5 foot) and RS561 (5 foot by 6 foot) variable chamber "Round Simplified" balers comprise the RS "One" Series, the first models in a new productivity-enhancing generation. The RS451 and RS551 are new size offerings for Case, a significant expansion of the Case IH line.

"RS 'One' Series balers offer customers highly productive machines that are simple to operate, service and maintain, yet durable enough to handle the toughest baling conditions," said Marsha Dabich, Case IH livestock production systems marketing manager. "An innovative design places all drives and tension arms on the left side of the baler and storage of up to eight twine balls on the right, allowing simpler maintenance."

The new design also helps to increase processing capacity with the industry's widest standard pickups. The RS451 baler pickup is 77 inches end-to-end, while the RS551 and RS561 pickups are 92 inches wide with a heavy duty dual camtrack design for high performance. A wide pickup creates superior packing on the sides of the bale chamber for solid, square-shouldered round bales. In addition, these pickups come with standard gauge wheels and spring flotation for rough terrain.

Good bale formation also is dependent on forming a solid dense core. Case IH round balers use an aggressive starter roll with patented flaps, designed to immediately start turning the hay fed by the stuffer to form the bale. A new hydraulic tension system provides for a very dense, tight bale. To compensate for varying crops and conditions, both bale density and belt tension can be monitored and adjusted using standard equipment gauges and valves. If an operator fails to recognize that a full bale has been formed after the bale is completed, an oversized bale mechanism will automatically disengage the pickup and stuffer to prevent baler damage.

"Equal feeding on both sides is just as important as a solid core for high-quality bales," said Dabich. "To remove the guesswork, RS551 and RS561 balers offer standard bale shape sensors (optional on RS451). The shape sensors ride directly on the belts that contact the top front of the bale as it is formed, providing the most accurate bale shaping system in the industry."

The baler monitor is also easy to use. The monitor display uses arrows to indicate when to drive to the other side of the window ensuring a nicely shaped bale.

Fund Contributes $10,500 To Protection Act Campaign

GLENMONT, N.Y. — New York Farm Bureau President John Lincoln has announced that the statewide farm advocacy organization's Legal Defense Fund will contribute $10,500 toward the legal aspects of American Farm Bureau Federation's national Food Quality Protection Act (FQPA) Campaign.

"I am pleased to announce that the New York Farm Bureau board of directors recently approved this contribution to demonstrate New York's support of this significant campaign," said Lincoln. "New York Farm Bureau recognizes the important need to insure the proper implementation of the Food Quality Protection Act."

According to Lincoln, "Farmers need the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) to implement FQPA in a sensible and workable manner, and consistent with Congressional intent, because we need safe and affordable crop protection chemicals." Without these products, Lincoln said, farmers will not be able to produce the high-quality fruits, vegetables, and grains that American consumers demand.

FQPA is a new law concerning the measurement of pesticide residue on fresh and processed foods. If properly implemented, it would establish food pesticide residue standards, generally prohibiting individual states from setting stricter standards. It includes consideration of the benefits of pesticides in the registration process.

However, EPA's proposed implementation if FQPA would pursue a regulatory direction aimed at eliminating broad classes of pesticides, including revocation of all organophosphates, which would severely impact the agricultural community.

"To date, EPA has not used sound science and has done little if anything to gather real use data to determine the extent and amount of chemicals farmers use to protect their crops In evaluating specific crop protection products, the agency is supposed to conduct risk assessments that will determine allowed uses," Lincoln said. "However, those assessments have been based on default assumptions that assume that producers use chemicals at 100 percent of the allowable rate and apply chemicals at every allowable interval on all of the crops on the label. That way of thinking makes it clear that EPA will overstate the risk of any given pesticide product."

"The money that is contributed by the Legal Defense Fund will assist AFBF in their fight to make sure that the FQPA is implemented the way Congress intended," said Lincoln

State House Committee To Hold Dairy Compact Hearing

HARRISBURG, (Dauphin Co.) – Rep. Raymond Bunt – Jr. (F-147), chairman of the House Agriculture and Rural Affairs Committee, announced that the committee will hold a public hearing on Feb. 23 to receive testimony on legislation enabling Pennsylvania to join the Northeast Dairy Compact.

"With passage of compact legislation in New York, New Jersey and Maryland, it is critical that the House committee give this issue immediate consideration," said Bunt. "House Bill 170, sponsored by Rep. Sandra Major (R-111), is a necessary step for Pennsylvania to join. Final approval would still be needed from Congress."

The Northeast Dairy Compact is U.S. Congress-sanctioned agreement among states to set a fixed price for milk sold by farmers for Class I use, meaning milk used as fluid consumption. It has existed in the six New England states since the summer of 1997 and has been effective in increasing and stabilizing the price received for milk by dairy farmers. After an initial increase, the retail price paid by consumers has remained stable at only a moderately higher level.

"Thoroughly exploring all aspects of this issue will help us to make a decision that is in the best long-term interests of all segments of our dynamic dairy industry and all citizens of the commonwealth," said Bunt.

"I fully realize that there is tremendous pressure from dairy groups for Pennsylvania to immediately pass this enabling legislation; however, joining the compact would significantly change our dairy policy and affect us all well into the future. We dare not take this step lightly I encourage all interested parties to testify at the hearing formed during wetter and drier intervals, these paleontologists were able to estimate dates of environmental change with a high degree of confidence.

The hearing will be held in Room 60 in the East Wing of the Capitol beginning at 10 a.m Persons wishing to testify should contact Rep. Bunt's office at (717) 787-5937.

Since extinction was not correlated with environmental change, it was concluded that human habitation was the more likely explanation for the disappearance of Genyornis. This was made possible by the unique properties of the eggshell.

New Process Turns Egg Shells Into Valuable Commodity

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — When the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency asked an industry group, the Food Manufacturing Coalition, to assemble a list of the worst environmental problems facing the food processing and manufacturing industries, high on the list was waste egg shells.

Every year, food processors and other manufacturers in the United States use more than 50 million cases of eggs, generating 120,000 tons of waste egg shells. Companies are paying up to $100,000 per year to dispose of this expensive waste in landfills that are quickly reaching capacity.

But thanks to a researcher in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences, those previously unwanted egg shells will be transformed into valuable products, giving manufacturers a new profit stream while saving disposal costs and helping the environment.

Joseph H. MacNeil, professor emeritus of food science, has patented a way to separate egg membrane (the paper-thin protein sheath between the shell and egg white) from the shell, creating two marketable products from one waste product.

"Eggs are in lots of products: mayonnaise, noodles, shampoos, cake mixes and fast foods," MacNeil said. "So there are a lot of egg shell producers who are generating more waste shells every year. But unless the shells are made microbiologically safe, many state laws require that they are disposed of as organic waste in appropriate landfills. There are many uses for separated shell and membrane, but not many with membrane and shell stuck together. As landfill regulations have become more restrictive, egg processors have asked for help with this problem."

With funding from the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture (PDA), MacNeil tried idea after idea to separate fragile shell from tenacious membrance. He tried crushing, acids, strong base solutions, boiling, and even sandpaper and tumbling in a stone-filled chamber.

"Every time I tried something, I'd look at the shells under the microscope and still see membrance stuck to them," MacNeil said. "It became very obvious that I needed a process that was abrasive."

Finally, he tried the unorthodox — running the egg shells through a unique meat-processing machine that he'd used on other projects — and magic happened.

"It's not just a grinder. It peels and strips, scraping rather than crushing," MacNeil said. The system proved near-perfect, separating shell from membrance with great speed.

A new process was born — and licensed to Cutler Eggs of Philadelphia by Penn State's Intellectual Property Office. While the patent is pending, MacNeil must limit discussing details of the process. But he reports that Cutler Eggs has already assembled a fully functioning prototype and a production model should be up and running in four to six months.

The benefits from the new process are many. The processed egg shells will be turned into an excellent source of calcium, enriching everything from animal feeds and toothpaste to orange juice. Instead of paying thousands in hauling and disposal fees annually, egg processors can now sell clean shells to other manufacturers for more than $100 per ton.

But much greater income-generating potential lies with the egg membrane, which has been identified as an excellent source of raw collagen, a biomedical product now in increasing demand in the production of skin graft and tissue replacement products, dental implants, angioplasty sleeves, and cornea repair. Purified collagen is now selling for up to $1,000 per gram.

Ronald Philips, executive director of the Food Manufacturing Coalition, says that MacNeil's unique research talents anchored a team that stretched across many miles and several organizations.

"This was an outstanding example of bridging university research and industry need, particularly in the environmental area," he said. "And it wasn't an attempt to push a technology into the marketplace; instead, we created the 'pull' from the industry side."

As head of Cutler Eggs of Philadelphia, Joel Cutler knows about the "pull" from industry. He says that he was interested in MacNeil's research from the earliest discussions. Within days of seeing the experimental design in MacNeil's laboratory, Cutler's company assembled a working prototype in his Philadelphia plant. They now hold the sole license from Penn State for the process.

"I've worked with Joe for years," Cutler said, "and I was confident that he'd come up with something that wasn't just a test-tube solution."

Donald B. Thompson, head of Penn State's Department of Food Science, points to the successful project as a concrete example of garnering returns on very strategic investments.

"Without the state's support of university research, there would be no platform for people like Joe MacNeil," he said, "and without the further investments of corporate sponsors and partners, our department couldn't do cooperative and relevant research."

Dairy Management Conference Blends Technology, Family Values

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) – Successful dairy producers need a plan to meet the challenges they'll face in the next century. How can they develop a workable business plan and adopt the latest technology? Can it be done without compromising their family's values and goals?

The 1999 Mid-Atlantic Dairy Management Conference, "Systematic Approach to Dairying in the Next Millennium," will address issues of business viability, specialization, biosecurity, and information, and nutrient management. Each topic and speaker was chosen to help dairy producers plan their future business and family needs. Speakers include dairy producers, industry experts, and university faculty from across the United States.

Planned by representatives from four agribusinesses and seven academic institutions from the Mid-Atlantic region including Penn State, the conference is Feb. 24-25 at the Radisson Penn Harris Hotel and Convention Center in Camp Hill.

A case study, "The Final Permit: Will Environmental Policy Crack the Retirement Nest Egg?" will be an integral part of the conference. This will allow speakers and attendees to interact in finding a practical solution to the problems of a farm expanding from a 65-cow dairy/grain farm in the early 1900s to a larger 525-cow specialized dairy farm by 2007.

The case will be introduced at the beginning of the conference, and speakers will contribute their expertise to different aspects of the case. After breakout discussion sessions and presentations of possible solutions, a panel of dairy producers will evaluate suggestions from their practical point of view and attempt to integrate concepts into a unified case solution.

The program has been approved for American Registry of Professional Animal Scientists (ARPAS) credits and for Pennsylvania Continuing Education Credits for Veterinarians. The registration for the two-day conference and trade show is $150 (with a $25 reduction for a second person from the same farm or firm). The fee includes a copy of the conference proceedings, three meals and access to all conference activities. The registration deadline is Feb. 10. For more information, contact Beth Moore at (717) 375-2639 or beth @internet.net.

WHAT'S IN THE BOX?

ORIGINAL MASSEY FERGUSON® PARTS

Nothing Comes Before The Original.

Massey Ferguson® parts are your first choice for quality and reliability. They're designed especially for the Massey Ferguson equipment you've already invested in, so they fit our unique specifications like no other part. Plus, all new Massey Ferguson parts come with a no-hassle, one-year warranty. If you haven't been in our dealership lately, stop by. We back all our parts with experienced know-how... and for that there's no substitute.

JOHN DEERE DAY '99 — BACKED BY HISTORY — DRIVEN BY PROGRESS

Stronger than our equipment, more innovative than any technology, are the relationships we have with our customers. That's why we invite you to attend John Deere Day 1999. It's our best opportunity to show how much we appreciate you and your business. Plus, it's a chance for you to preview new equipment and see where our partnership will take us in the years ahead.

Please plan on joining us for John Deere Day 1999 to celebrate this long-lasting relationship.

DYNASHIFT TRANSMISSION

From Massey Ferguson
32 Speeds with the best features of manual and powershift design

Simple concept, simple design.

The Dynashift transmission features a smooth, 4-speed powershift matched to a rugged, 4x2, fully synchronized gearbox.

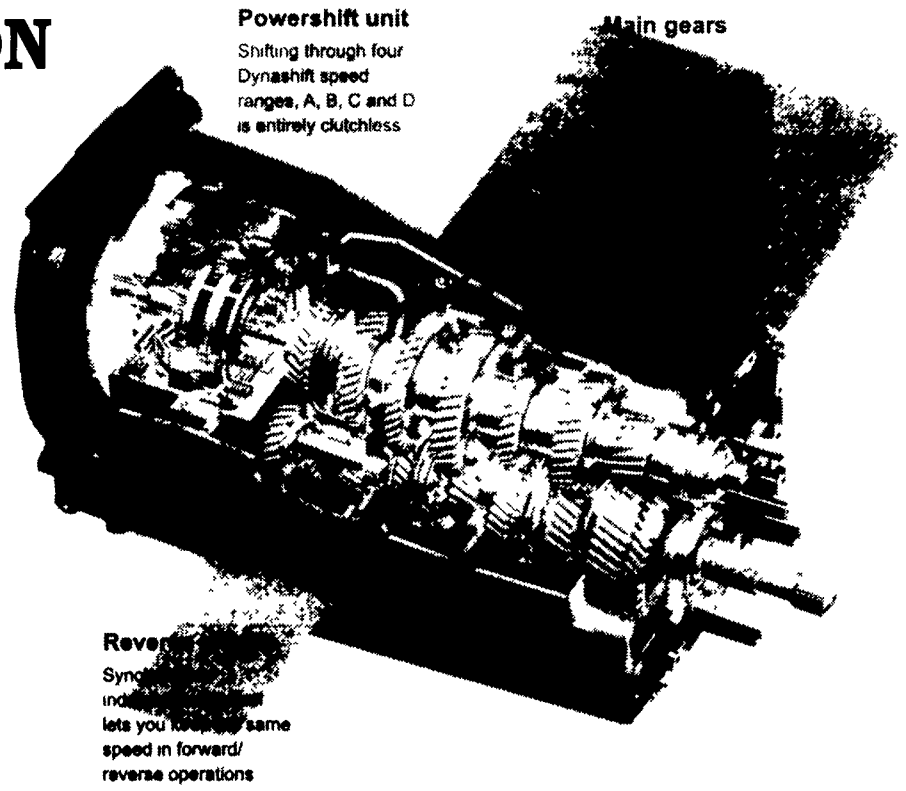
Like a synchromesh.

You get the low power loss and reliability of an 8 speed manual transmission. More of the flywheel horsepower is available for use in all other tractor functions. Up to half the power loss of most full powershift tractors.



Like a powershift.

Get the ease-of-operation and productivity of four no-clutch powershifts. Each of the four powershifts gives you an ideal 17% increase in speed.

Like a shuttle.

The synchronized independent shuttle lets you quickly reverse directions in any of the 32 gears with one quick shift. There's no need to sequence through multiple gears or navigate a complex shift pattern.

Like no other transmission.

"Intelligent overlap" means you can always select a gear to shift-on-the-go with a 17% speed change. And you get the highest number of gears in the 2.5 to 7.5 mph (4 to 12 kph) working range.

On The Mark, Get Set, Grow!

The 6100 Series Rigid And Vertical Fold Planters.

Precision farming starts with precision seed placement. And that's exactly what you'll get with the White 6100 Series planters. Our pull-type planters feature an exclusive air-metering system that's designed to singulate every seed. Its low air pressure, edge-drop seed discs and short, 18" seed drop ensure precise seed placement for maximum germination.

Adaptable To Any Tillage Situation.

Our 4, 6, 8 and 12 row planters have the flexibility to meet most tillage practices both now and in the future. They're built rugged with a massive 7" x 7" frame and strong, welded-tongue design to handle the demands of heavy residue. Add a 6900 splitter attachment for interplant capability.

This season get the planter that places each seed where it'll grow the best — and perform the best. Stop by your AGCO® White Planter dealer today.

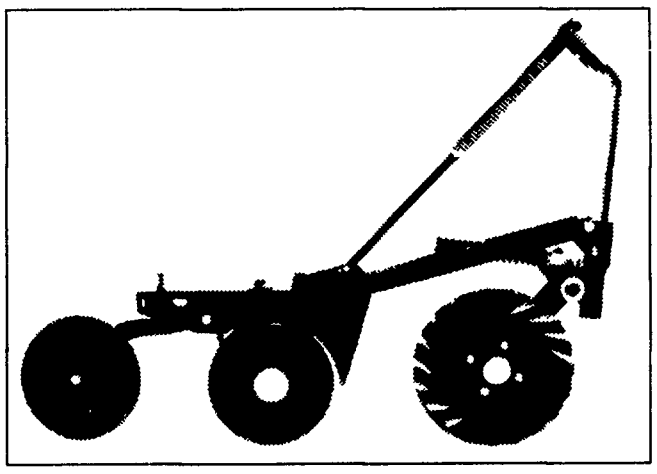
THE CONSERVATIONIST

The most comprehensive, time-proven set of no-till drill features in the business.



The proven Great Plains no-till system utilizes a coulter to prepare a mini conventional seedbed for the openers to place the seed at the precise depth selected.

- Utilizes proven coulter-and-opener no-till system.
- Compact, well-balanced design transports easily.
- Heavy-duty coulters cut through tough ground and heavy residue.
- Dry fertilizer, small-seeds and native-grass options.
- Lock-out hubs disengage drives for transport.
- Large 9.00 x 24 tires provide a smooth ride and consistent seed metering.
- 705(7') and 1005(10') models available

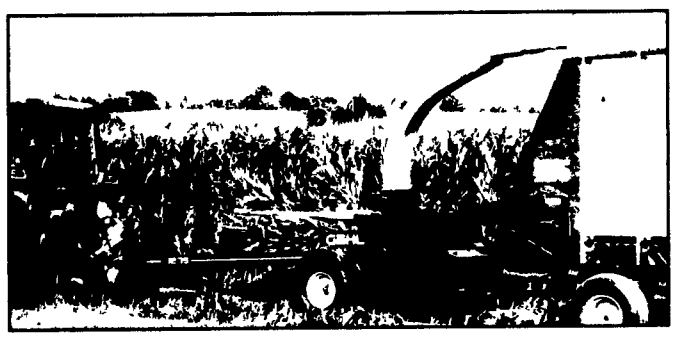
GEHL



New! PULL-TYPE Crop Processing Forage Harvester

Chop and process corn silage with one pass through the field. Gehl's high-speed grooved rolls crack kernels, break up the cob and smash the stalk. The results: 10 to 20 percent higher digestibility for significant increases in milk production.

- Huge harvesting capacity - utilizes up to 300 tractor horsepower.
- Eight-knife cutting cylinder delivers length of cut up to 1 inch.
- Swing-away auger allows access to cylinder knives, processing rolls.
- Roll assembly is easily removable for haylage operations.
- Processing roll gap adjusts for varying crop conditions.

All-New & Expanded!

Gehl "35 Series" Skid Loaders

35 Series Features Include:

- Reliable oil-cooled Deutz diesel engines
- Powerview® boom for better visibility
- All-Tach™ attachment system – now compatibile with more attachments
- Easy roll-back cab for easy servicability
- Hydraloc® system locks loader hydraulics and drive for added safety
- A variety of models with horsepower ranging from 44 to 80 and SAE lift capacities from 1425 to 2600 pounds

For over 25 years, Gehl skid loaders have proven their worth in a variety of tough applications. And now the all-new "35 Series" is even tougher than ever. Four different models – all with increased lift and unsurpassed visibility – offer the latest in break-through design. Reliable, easy to maintain and very user-friendly, Gehl's "35 Series" skid loaders are the unit of choice for performance and quality.

AGCO ALLIS

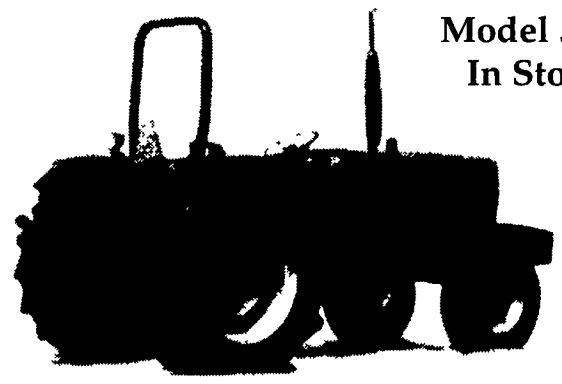
Definitely The One To Get.

Introducing the new AGCO® Allis 8745. The 70 PTO hp 8745 puts the advanced engineering and streamlined design of the AGCO Allis tractors into a versatile, practical ROPS model. Come get a good look at one today.

GET ON GREAT NEW IDEAS. BETTER BUSINESS. AGCO

Model 8745 In Stock

In fact, this mid-range tractor has a 45 PTO hp engine that offers you the ultimate in maneuverability. Its low height and low center of gravity make this the ideal tractor for working inside buildings and other confined work areas. And because the platform is low to the ground, it's easy to get on and off the tractor.



Model 5650 In Stock

- The synchromesh transmission has 12 forward and 12 reverse speed choices, with synchronized shifting in four gears and a synchronized forward/reverse shuttle
- These directional changes help to reduce loader and rear blade cycle times.
- The AWD models feature a true centerline drive shaft for more efficient power transfer and less maintenance.
- As always, behind every AGCO Allis tractor lies a 4-year/4,000 hour warranty that's backed by your dealer

To get a closer look at the 5650, stop by and see us.
We'll be happy to show you the way to higher productivity

- 100% bolted knife assemblies

When performance, reliability and durability count, you can count on the "1465"

NEW HOLLAND

Super Boom™ is best

When you're looking for a skid-steer, there's the challengers and then there's the champ. Well say hello to the undisputed champ in the all-new Model LX885 New Holland Super Boom™ skid-steer loader

It has a 60-horsepower, turbocharged diesel engine for the ultimate in power Its massive 2,200-lb operating load picks up where all others leave off Of course, it has the features you expect from New Holland, such as the best speed, stability, visibility, lift height and dump reach in the industry Add that to the Pick Up 'n Go™ universal attachment system and there's nothing it can't handle

Stop by today and see for yourself why no other skid-steer can compare

Why choose a New Holland skid-steer loader?

- Superior visibility
- Greater bucket & lift capacity
- Unbeatable stability
- The most attachments
- Faster speeds
- Unmated dependability
- Superior dump height & reach

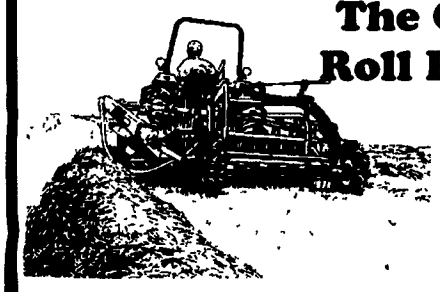
NEW HOLLAND

The Original Roll Bar Rake



NEW HOLLAND

Don't settle for second best when it comes to rakes. Choose the original-- a dependable New Holland Rolabar® rake. The rake more farmers buy over all other brands combined Because its rugged construction makes it one hard-working, hay-grabbing machine.

Stop in & See the Original Model 258 Rolabar® Rake with rubber teeth today.

Cut faster... conditioner better

For greater maneuverability and higher efficiency, nothing beats the Model 1431 Discbine® disc mower-conditioner from New Holland. It features a 13' cutting width, and operates at high ground speeds in wet, heavy grass without plugging, Fire anthills and gopher mounds won't stop the new Model 1431 either

Outstanding features include:

- A center pivot-tongue design
- Independent modular cutterbar with ten small-diameter cutting discs
- 102" wide conditioning rolls
- A full range of vertical and lateral flotation
- A torsion-bar roll-pressure system
- A cutterbar driven from both ends

For maximum harvesting efficiency, check out the Model 1431 Discbine. It's the best in the field.

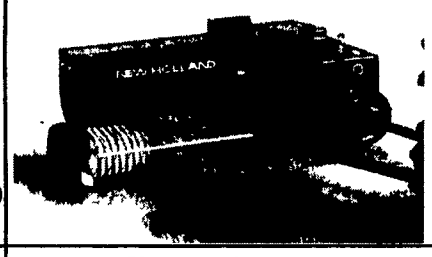
NEW HOLLAND

Class leader

The New Holland "575" square baler tops every baler in the 14x18-inch bale class... for capacity, bale quality and reliability

- Revolutionary rotary feeding system Mechanically simple, but unbeatable for hay handling
- Exclusive Wider Super-Sweep™ pickup that's 75" wide to get all the hay
- Heavy-duty materials in the bale case and plunger
- Gear-driven knotters or twisters
- Increased load capabilities handle extra capacity.

See us for the New Holland "575" square baler

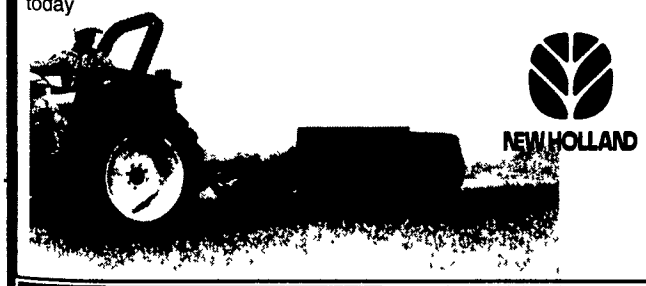


NEW HOLLAND

Fluffed up... never roughed up

If a storm hits while you're making hay, you'll need the New Holland Model 166 windrow inverter. It helps to dry hay fast, so you can bale or chop sooner The "166" gently lifts, fluffs and turns windrows without roughing up the hay. So, you move your windrows onto dry ground for faster drying and retain valuable leaves.

For hay that's fluffed up not roughed up, check out the "166" today



NEW HOLLAND

Get Precise Application Control

NEW HOLLAND

New Holland Model 3110 puts the right amount of material right where you need it

- Handles a wide variety of material – slurry, gutter material, cow manure, even poultry litter
- V-tank design delivers material to the auger fast
- Heavy-duty round-core auger produces less drag
- Double-acting hydraulic cylinder moves auger up and down to keep material flowing
- Hydraulic gate and specially designed expeller give precise application control
- Backed by a 10-year warranty against tank rust-through

See us for all your spreader needs

Built for the long haul

The New Holland Model 185 is a spreader you won't buy too often because it's going to be with you for a long time

Here's why

- Corrosion-resistant steel sides
- Indestructible plastic floor boards (HDPE)
- 12-year guarantee for FREE floor and sides if they fail

The Model 185 carries a 287-bushel load with ease We'd like to show you why this is the best-selling spreader in its class

DIGGING DOWN? POWER UP!

Kubota introduces the KX-Series mini-compact excavators from 22 2 HP to 42 7 HP, featuring Kubota's "Power Up" hydraulic system that increases digging performance and traveling speed

Whatever your construction needs, we have the right excavator for you The KX-41 and KX-71 come with a two speed swing system that improves operator feel in delicate digging areas, while the KX-101 and KX-151 are equipped with the "TPSS" two pattern selection system that lets the operator choose the most comfortable operating pattern

If you require an excavator that delivers superior performance and digging capabilities, work a Kubota KX Excavator and "Power Up"

Model	HP	Digging Depth	Operating Weight
KX-41	22 2	6'9 1" -7'11 3"	3,615 lbs
KX-71	32 2	8'9 1" - 10'2"	6,415 lbs
KX-101	36 6	10'1 3" - 12"5"	8,115 lbs

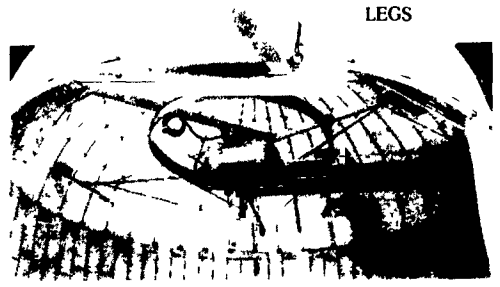
HI-LIFT LEGS



The new advance design Volumaxx unloader gives you the best of both worlds your choice of distribution New HI-LIFT legs let you raise the unloader an extra 15" into the silo roof, so you can use a conventional side distributor Or, choose the Jamesway Powermaxx™ broad pan silage distributor With proper distribution you'll have better quality feed, and you'll increase your silo's capacity up to 35% And we can prove it!

Mighty Lite™
THE PROVEN DAIRY MAT

Still the same and still in use after more than 11 years.

- A Full 5 Year Warranty that protects you even against wear & tear in tie stall and freestall barns.
- Non-absorbent closed cell foam does not support bacterial growth.
- Non-abrasive surfacing to protect hocks, teats and udders.

Cut stall clean-out time by 50% with a Millcreek Compact Spreader.

EARL SINKS - Brock, Texas

Say "Good-Bye" to back-breaking manure handling and cut stall clean-out time in half. Hook an affordable Millcreek Compact Spreader to your 10 hp garden tractor, take it right to the stall for easy loading. No more wheelbarrow.

Millcreek Spreaders last and last

Since spreaders are our specialty, we put more into each one For example our 20-year guaranteed floor will never rust or rot. Positive chain drive provides excellent spreading action And tough steel construction holds up to rugged farm use Seven sizes, for 1-horse barns to 50-horse stables PTO and ground drive models available.

OPTIONS IN FEEDING

Your Dairy Herd

Call us today for a feeding program built to fit your Dairy Herd and your Production Goals.

For maximum performance and income over feed cost, rations should be balanced to provide the optimum levels of degradable and undegradable protein, nonstructural and structural (fiber) carbohydrate as well as minerals and vitamins This allows for maximum utilization of the rumen microbes and total ration efficiency Because you needs may be different from your neighbor's, we adjust the following nutrients and ingredients to fit your needs and goals.

- Protein
- By-Pass Protein
- Energy
- Fiber
- Calcium
- Phosphorus
- Salt
- Vitamins & Trace Minerals
- Organic Trace Minerals
- Multi-Protein Sources
- Added Animal Fat

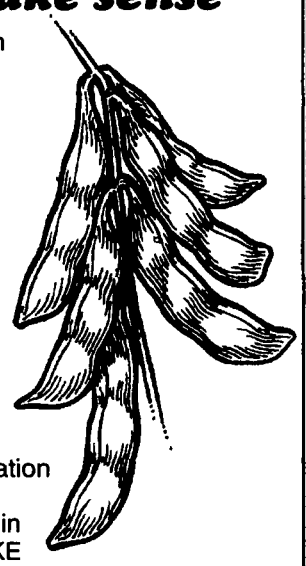
Sell your beans? "It just doesn't make sense"

1. Why loose the 18% high energy oil in your own beans?
2. Why let the soybean processor take the valuable lechicin?
3. Why forfeit 50% of the metabolizable energy over SBM?
4. Why pay storage, trucking and shrink?



Be sensible! Let SCHNUPP'S custom roast your Soybeans

Receive the value of added fat in your ration - MORE MILK
Get the most By-Pass Protein available in your beans - MORE PROTEIN UPTAKE
Keep all the nutritional components originally in the soybean. - MORE FLEXIBILITY
Soybeans are valuable, keep profits at home! - MORE FARM INCOME

WE SERVICE WHAT WE SELL

When agriculture is your life, the equipment choice is Eby.

EBY is the leading manufacturer of aluminum bodies and trailers for agri-transportation. Our products are designed for superior strength, reduced weight for greater payload capacity, minimum maintenance and higher resale value. In addition to premium standard features, we offer full custom options built to your specs.

EBY's complete line includes models for every requirement:

- Gooseneck Trailers- lengths 14' - 32'; widths 7', 7'6", 8' and 8'6"
- Bumper Hitch Trailers- lengths 12' - 18'
- Grain Bodies- lengths to 24', plus landscape and general purpose dumps to 12'
- Flatbed Bodies- lengths to 32' in 5 widths
- Landscape Bodies- lengths to 12'

For quality equipment and customer service that works as hard as you do, nobody offers more than EBY.
